THE ATHENÆUM

Tournal of English and foreign Literature, Science, and the ffine Arts.

No. 1650

'59

LO.

CE.

e Uni-

RS.

AC.

US.

T'S

ID:

CRAE.

18.

TS.

18.

lers

LONDON, SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1859.

KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON.—

FROTOGRAPHY.—Mr. HARDWICH has COMMENCED his CLASSES, and is now giving Private Instruction in the Principles and Practice of the Art of Photography.

For information, apply to T. F. Hardwich, Esq., King's College, London.

R. W. JELF, D.D., Principal.

KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON.—TOOKE FROFESSORSHIP of ECONOMIC SCIENCE and STARISTICS, Founded in honour of the personal character of, and be eminent services rendered to Science by the late THOMAS PROCE, East, F.R.S., of Spring Gardens.
The Council are now ready to receive applications for this apcontinuent. For full particulars apply to.
W. UUNNINGHAM, Secretary.

WHITSUN HOLIDAYS.—SOUTH KEN-SINGTON MUSEUM Open FREE every day from 10 7 ull 10. By order of the Committee of Council on Education.

ROYAL LITERARY FUND.—
The SEVENTIETH ANNIVERSARY DINNER of the CORPORATION will take place in Freemasons' Hall on WED-MEDIA, The Part of June.

The Right Hon. W. E. GLADSTONE, M.P., in the Chair.

STEWARDS.

Richard Edward Arden, Esq. F. 8.5. F. R. 6.5. F. R. 6.5 7. F. Dillon Croker, Esq. F.S.A. F.R.G.S.
Raikes Currie, Esq. F.R.S.
John Dickinson, Esq. F.R.S.
F.G.S.
George Digby Wingfield Digby, Rev. Wm. Ellis, Hoddesdon. The Very Rev. the Dean of Ely. Bight Hon. T. Sotheron-Est-court, M. P. Ber. Frederich W. Farrar, M. A. Harrow.

F.R.S.

John Pepys, Esq. M.A.

John Pepys, Esq. Pollock, Esq.
M.A.

M.A.

Rev. Edwin Prodgers, B.D.

C. W. Giles Puller, Esq. M.P.

Right Hon. the Earl of Ripon,

F.R. G.S. Rev. Canon Robertson, M.A. Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Salisany Ber. Frederich W. Farrar, M.A. Harrow. Wm. Forsyth, Esq. M.A. Q.C. Charles Lewis Gruneisen, Esq. F.R.G.S. Samuel Gurney, Esq. M. P. Ber. Ernest Hawkins, B.D. Thomas i Hughan. Seq. M. P. Ber. Ernest Hawkins, B.D. Thomas i Hughan. Seq. B. W. Johnson, Esq., Birmingham. Salisburyour, Esq.
James Spicer, Esq.
James Spicer, Esq.
The Vice-Chancelor Sir John
C. T. Svanston, Jun. Esq. M.A.
Rev. J. Montgomery Traherne,
M.A. F. E.
Thomas Wright, Esq. M.A.
E.S.A. Thomas F.S.A. Tickets, 21s. each, may be obtained from the Stewards; and from the Secretary, at the Chambers of the Corporation, 73, Great Russell-street, W.C. OCTAVIAN BLEWITT, Sec.

PROPOSED BANQUET and TESTIMONIAL TO CHARLES REAN, F.S.A.

COMMITTEE.

PROPOSED BANQUET and TESTIMONIAL TO CHARLES KEAN, F.S.A.

COMMITTER.

His Grace the Duke of Newentle.
His Gracethe Duke of Rutland.
Most Noble the Marquis of Lendonders.
Lendonders.
Lendonders.
His Hon. the Earl of Cartisia.
Hight Hon. the Earl of Cartisia.
Hight Hon. the Earl of Craven.
Right Hon. the Earl of Tonburr.
Hight Hon. the Earl of Schlirk.
Hight Hon. W. E. Gladstone, High Hon.
High Hon. W. E. Gladstone, High Hon.
High Hon. W. E. Gladstone, High Hon.
High Hon. Spencer Walpole,
High Hon. W. E. Gladstone, High Hon.
High Hon. Spencer Walpole,
High Hon. W. E. Gladstone, High Hon.
High Hon. Spencer Walpole,
High Hon. W. E. Gladstone, High Hon.
Hig

SWINEY LECTURES on GEOLOGY, in connexion with the British Museum.—A COURSE of TWELVE LECTURES will be delivered at the Museum of Practical Geology, Jernya-street, on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in each week, commencing on the 13th of June, at Three o'clock r. M., by A. G. MELVILLE, M.D., Professor of Natural History in the Queen's University, Ireland.—Admission Gratia.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY, REGENTS

PARK.

The SECOND EXHIBITION this Season of PLANTS,
FLOWERS, and FRUIT will take place on WEDNESDAY,
June Bricketic be obtained at the Gardens only by orders for Fellower Methods of the Secticy, price be each, or on the day of Exhibition, 7s. 6d. each.

The Gates open at 2 o'clock.

CONSUMPTION HOSPITAL, BROMPTON.

-Further HELP is sought to MAINTAIN this Hospital, which is NOW FULL, in entire efficiency. Bankers: Messra Williams, Deacon & Co., 29, Birchin-lane. HENRY DOBBIN, Sec.

PORTY THOUSAND POOR MARRIED LYING-IN HOSPITAL, been admitted within its walls, and have there received succour and relief in "the great pain and peril of Childbirth."

The Funds of this time-honoured Institution are low and in-

of Childbirth.

The Funds of this time-honoured Institution are low and in-adequate to the maintenance of the Hospital in a state of efficiency. To those wealthy and charitable Ladies of this Metropolis, and indeed to all those who take an interest in the welfare of their poorer sisters, the Weekly Board of Governors now appeal for aid and assistance.—Subscriptions will be thankfully received by Mesars. Hoare, Fleet-street; or at the Hospital, Endell-street, Long-acre.

LONDON LIBRARY, 12, St. James's square. LIBRARY, 12, St. James sequare.
on nomination, sl. a year; or sl. a year, set now due. Terms, on nomination, sl. a year; or sl. a year, set th Entrance-fee of sl.
spectus free.—The Annual Report, with a List of the Books added during the year, may be had by Members and Subscribers on application to the Secretary.

By order of the Committee,
May 28, 1850. ROBERT HARRISON, Secretary.

TO LITERARY INSTITUTIONS.-DR. H OWGAN invites the attention of Committees, &c. to his LECTURES on Historic and Literary Subjects, delivered with signal success in several leading Institutions. Syllabus and testimonials forwarded on application.—Address Clifton, Bristol.

THE NANTWICH MECHANICS' INSTI-TUTION invite Pirst-class LECTURERS, and Persons giving Musical Entertainments, &c., to communicate Terms and List of Subjects to the Hon. Secretary, Mr. Wh. Church.

MR. GEORGE MAC DONALD'S Fifth Lec-The ture, on COLERIDGE, and Sixth Lecture, on WORDS-WORTH, will be given on MONDAY and FRIDAY NEXT, the lath and 17th of June, at the Literary Institution, in Edwards-street, Portman-square, at Three o'clock.

MR. KIDD'S SOCIAL and GENIAL

"WILLIAN KIDD, as is well known, deals extensively in all that is most valuable both for noor and usyn. He ought to be—and we trust he is—a happy man, seeing that his public labours are attended with a more than commonly large measure of success."

—Dr. Monaus in The Naturatist.

Terms, de. cent Free.—Hammersmith, June 11.

IN a PREPARATORY SCHOOL for the SONS Na PKEPARATUKY SCHOOL for the SONS of GENTLEMEN, where twelve Pupils are received, there are now VACANCIES for FOUR LITTLE BOYS, between the ages of six and twelve. The locality is within ten minutes walk of Kensington Gardena. Terms 42 Guineas per annum, inclusive of extras. References of the highest order. The term commences from the time of entrance.—Address A. B., Mr. Harvey's, 54, St.
James's-street, S. W.

TRAVELLING TUTOR or COMPANION. A Graduate of Oxford, who obtained an open Scholarship at his College, and took high honours, desires to meet with One or (not more than) Two Young Noblemen or Gentlemen to travel with in the above capacity. The Advertiser is a good French and tolerable German scholar, knows something of Italian, and has been several times upon the Continent.—Address M.N., Harrison's Library, Portsdown-terrace, Kilburn, W.

PARENTS and GUARDIANS .-ATTOM for the DAUGHTERS of GENTLEMEN.—A Married Lady, of good family and high respectability, residing in one of the best parts of London, receives a LIMITED NUMBER of PUPILS, upon whom she bestows a liberal education, added to Most assistance reference will be given.—Address ALFRA, 14, Randolph-road, Clifton-gardens, W.

LOUCATION (Superior).—UPTON HOUSE, SLOUGH, Rucks.—Madame PÉRETTE, assisted by experienced Resident Governesses and London Professors of the first of GENTLEMEN.—TWO VACANCIES in JULY.—Reference to numerous Parents of Pupils.—Address as above.

WOOLWICH, SANDHURST, &c.—Gentle-men rapidly prepared in FORTIFICATION, Military and Geometrical Drawing.—Address Alpin, Godling's Newspaper Office, Westbourne-street, Eaton-square, S.W.

THE GOVERNESSES' INSTITUTION, 34, THE GOVERNESSES INSTITUTION, 34, SOHO-SQUARE-MRS. WAGHORN, who has resided many years abroad, respectfully invites the attention of the Nobility, Gentry, and Principals of Schools, to her REGISTER of English and Foreign GOVERNESSES, TEACHERS, COMPANIONS, TUTORS, and PROFESSORS. School Property transferred, and Pupils introduced in England, France, and Germany. No charge to Principals. AN M.A. of ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE, Cam-

A. bridge, Sighth Wrangler of his year, 180. Who has lived for two years in the South of France, and speaks Spanish, would be glad to meet with a Few PUPILS for a READING PARTY in the Fyrenees, the Basque Country, and Spain.

Further particulars may be obtained from the Rev. Houst Nicolson, 6, Adam-street, Adelphi, Strand, London, W. C.; from Mesars, Dirunova & BELL and Mr. Machillan, Cambridge, or from the Rev. Journ Marting and Mr. Machillan, Cambridge, or from the Rev. Jour Marting Masses Dirunova & BELL and Mr. Machillan, Cambridge, or from the Rev. Jour Marting Masses Principal Company of the Machillan, Cambridge, or press Pau, Basses Pyrenees.

MUSIC.—A LADY (Pupil of Moscheles and Brinley Richards, having a few hours disengaged, is desirous of meeting with PUPILS requiring PIANOPORTE LESSUAL, She is perfectly competent to complete that a studies.—Terms Halfa-Guinos.—Address K.A.E., Messra Cramer & Beales, 201, Regent-street

EDUCATION.—There are a FEW VACAN-CIES in an Establishment where a limited number of the BAUGHTERS OF GENTLEMEN are received, situated near Kenstigated and reperiosación de l'Principal is assisted by Frodessors of repute and experienced Generalese. Terms, from 86 to 80 Guineas and Company of the Company o

S.W.

SUPERIOR EDUCATION.—In a first-class

SUPERIOR EDUCATION.—In a first-class

Establishment for VOUNG LADIES, attuated within five allies entered to the condition of the condition of the condition of the condition of the property of the condition of the condition of the property of the condition of the condition of the property of the condition of t

RUGBY.—BOYS are PREPARED for Year, Senior Optime and First Classman of Trinity College, Cambridge, Senior Optime and First Classman of Trinity College, Cambridge, Ca

NESLEY COLLEGE, SHEFFIELD.—
WANTED, after the Midaummer Vacation, a RESIDENT MASTER. Experience in the Tuition and Management of a large number of Boys indispensable. Qualifications, Classics or Mathematics. Age not less than twenty-two.—Apply to the Rev.
8. D. Naddy, Governor.

HEAD-MASTER WANTED.

WANTED, a HEAD-MASTER by the Trustees of an Institution to be established at CRIEFF, in Perthahire, for the Education of the Youth of the Middle Clauses. A Salary of 2001 per annum will be guaranteed, together with a free House, suitable for the reception of Boarders.

The locality is the centre of a populous district, well known for its beauty and healthfulness. There is easy access by rallway. The beauty and healthfulness. There is easy access by rallway. Application to be addressed to Andrew Munray, jun, Esq. W.S., 20, Castle-street, Edinburgh.

S. T. M. A. R. Y. S. H. A. L. L.,

LADIES COLLEGE,
MARYS-ROAD, CANONBURY.

A Course of LECTURES on NATURAL THEOLOGY, with Illustrations, will be delivered on the following days, at 7 o'clock, by the Rev. J. F. DENHAM, M. A. F. R. S. Rector of St. Maryle-Strand, May the 19th, June the 2nd and 16th, and June the 2nth.
The Parents of the Students and Priemds of the Institution are Tickets of Admission may be had upon application at the College, by parties leaving their cards.

SARAH NORTHCROFT, Principal.

EDUCATION FREE.—A Gentleman, who to place tem at the disposal of a Gentleman for a period for his Son.—At Ires Bully 184, Lendenhall-street, London.

The United States 21, 124, Lendenfull-street, London.

HOUSE, SUNBURY, Middlesex, S.W.—Two Pupils from this Establishment were honourably distinguished at the Oxford Examination of Schools in June last. One of these was third in order of merit, for languages, Greek, Latin, French, and German, in the senior divisions, containing of upwards of 36e candidates the order of the Control of the Contr

A LADY wishes for an Engagement either as COMPANION, CHAPERONE, or HOUSENEEPER. She has no objection to travel, or to take charge of an Invalid to the See side for a few months—A. B., care of Mrs. Moore, Coperroad, Cleredon the Seasons or a construction of the Council of the

CRYSTAL PALACE.—ROYAL ITALIAN OF TALL PALACE, —ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA CONCERTS.—The PHIRD of the Series will take place on WEDNESDAY NEXT, the 18th inst., when the followMarsi, and Penco: Sironof Gardoni, Debassini, Graziani, Neri Baraldi, Tagliañoo, Polonini, Zelger, Lucchesi, and Tamberlik
(his first appearance at the Crystal Palace this Season). Conductor, Mr. Costa.
The Programme will be duly announced. Open at 10; Concert

Admission Free by Two Guinea Season Tickets, or by One Guinea ditto and payment of Half-a-Crown; by Day Tickets, 7z. 6d., or, if purchased on or before the lith inst., is. Reserved Seats, 2z. 6d. extra. Tickets may be had at the Crystal Palace, Exeter Hall, or of the usual Agents.

COMMEMORATION FESTIVAL.

The FULL REHEARSAL of the entire Band and Chorus with principal Vocalists, will be held at the CRYSTAL PALACE, under the direction of Mr. Costa, on SATURDAY, the left June, commencing at 11 colock, or as near thereto as may be possible.

The portions of each day's selection to be rehearsed, including solos as well as choruses, will be taken in the order in which they stand in the Books of Words, viz. 'Messiah,' and 'Te Deum' and Selection, for the first part of the Rehearsal, and 'Israel in Egypt' for the second part. It is expected that the second part of the Rehearsal will commence between half-past I and 2 o'clock. The donrs of the Palace will be opened at 9 o'clock. Frequent Trains will run from London Bridge and Pimlico Stations from 8 o'clock in the morning.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR ADMISSION.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR ADMISSION.

By Two-Guinea Season Tickets, Fee.

By One-Guinea Season Tickets, on Payment of Halfa-Crown.

By Day Ticket, Halfa-Guinea, or, if purchased before Thursday,

The whole of the Area will be open to Holders of the preceding Tickets. Reserved Seats will be provided in the Galleries only, Halfa-Crown extra.

Tickets are now ready for issue at the Crystal Palace, and at Exeter Hall.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—HANDEL COM-MEMORATION FESTIVAL.—This Great Musical Festival, the preparations for which have been in progress for the past three years, will be held as follows:

Solo Vocalists already engaged,
Madame CLARA NOVELLO, Mr. 81MS REEVES,
Miss DOLBY, Conductor, Mr. COSTA.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR ADMISSION.

To the Rehearsal—by Two-Guines Season Tickets Free, or by One-Guines Season Ticket and payment of Half-a-Crown; by Day Ticket, Half-a-Guines, or, if purchased before Thursday, June 16, Seven Shillings and Sixpence.

The whole of the Area will be open to Holders of the preceding Tickets. Reserved Seats will be provided in the Galleries only, at Half-a-Crown extra.

The whole of the Area will be provided in the Galleries only, at Halfa-Crown extra.

To the Ferformances—Numbered Stalls, Two-and-a-Half Guinens. To the Ferformances—Supple Tekets. (A few of the Front Seats of the Gallery and Raised Seats in the Area at Five Guineas the Set, or Two Guineas for Single Tickets. Unnumbered Reserved Seats, Twenty-five Shillings the Set; or Single Tickets, Halfa-Guinea. Early application for both of the above is recommended. Seats in the Naves—Five Shillings each Daych class of Tickets, and, to prevent inconvenience to Visitors, the audience arrangements will be under the management of 200 experienced stewards from the Sacred Harmonic Society and other quarters.

Tickets, and Plans of Seats, and full particulars, on personal or written application, may be had at the Crystal Palace, or at Cheques or Post-office Orders (the latter at the chief office) to be Cheques or Post-office Orders (the latter at the chief office) to the orders of Grance Grave, Esc., Secretary of Exeter Hall.

Cheques or Post-office Orders (the latter at the chief office) to be made payable to the order of Gzonga Gaora, Esq., Secretary of the Crystal Palace Company.

GEO, GROVE, Secretary.

HANDEL FESTIVAL.—J. ALFRED NOVELLO informs the Public that he has been again entrusted by the Sacred Harmonic Society to sgint the Musical Copies accessary for the performers at the approaching Commemoration, and by the Directors of the Crystal Palace Company to provide the Vocal Socre Octavo Hand-books for the use of the audience. He has also been authorized to print the whole of the Music for the Wednesday's Selection, in the order of its performance, which will be published uniform with his complete editions of Handels' Messah and Israel in Egypt. The Music for either day can be pursued to the commence of the continuous states of the commence of the commence

DAVID ROBERTS'S HOLY LAND, SYRIA, IDUMEA, ARABIA, EGYPT, and NUBIA, from Drawings on Stone by Louis Haghe.—GEO. NEW BOLD, having purchased the remainder of these noble Works of Art, consisting of about 150 varieties, all beautifully coloured and mounted in imitation of the original Drawings, has determined to sell them at prices which must insure a speedy clearance, namely, i.e. 6d., 2s. and 2s. 6d. each. A specimen dozen forwarded, carriage free, on receipt of a Post-office Order for 24s., payable to GEO. NEW HOLD, 300 and 304, Strand, London, W.C.

ROSA BONHEUR'S HORSE FAIR

CENTLEMEN who appreciate intelligible and Catholic Christian Doctrine, are invited to DINE at St.
JAMES'S HALL, Regent Street, on MONDAY, the sorth of June next, the eve of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Swedenhore Society.

Society.

Respondents to this social summons are requested to send their names and addresses, with 8s. 6d., to Mr. Whire, 36, Bloomsburystreet, New Oxford-street, not later than Monday, the 13th of June, when Thecets for the Dinner will be from and to clock.

The chair will be taken at 8 oclock.

PORTRAIT OF THE LATE DEAN OF

COMMITTEE

For purchasing and presenting to the Royal Society the POR-TRAIT of the late GEORGE PEACOCK, D.D. F.R.S., Painted by Mr. DOUGLAS Y. BLAKISTON.

DUGLAS Y. BLAKISTON.

G. J. Schynp, Esq. M.P. Q.C., Chairmen.

G. B. Airy, Esq. F.R.S., Astron. Royal.

The Rev. Wm. Vernon. Harrourt, F.R.S.

T. E. Headlam, Esq. M. P.

Sir John Herschel, Bart, F.R.S.

Dr. H. Bence Jones, F.R.S.

E. H. Bence Jones, F.R.S.

S. F. Roderick Murchison, F.R.S.

Major-Gen. E. Sabine, Treasurer R.S.

The Rev. Prof. Sedgwisk, F.R.S.

Archibald Smith, Esq. F.R.S.

Archibald Smith, Esq. F.R.S.

Hon. Sec.: Dr. LIONEL BEALE, F.R.S.

Hon. Sec.: Dr. LIONEL BEALE, F.R.S.

ure is to be seen at Messrs, P. & D. Colnaghi, 13, P.

The Picture is to be seen at Messrs. P. & D. Colnaghi, 13, Pall Mall East.
Subscriptions (limited to One Guinea) will be received by Messra.
Colnaghi, or by the Hon. Secretary, 61, Grosvenor-st., London, W.

WANTED, for First-Dash Provincial Daily Paper of Liberal Politics, an EXPERIENCED POLITICAL WRITER. His duties would also comprise a small amount of Editorial supervision.—Address Entron, Mesers. Newton & Co., Advertising Agents, Warwick-square, City, London, E.C.

TO PUBLISHERS.—TO BE SOLD, the COPYRIGHT of an ESTABLISHED FRENCH GRAMMAR.—Address, by letter only, to X. Y. Z., care of Mr. W. Allan, Paternoster-row, London, E.C.

PROVINCIAL NEWSPAPERS supplied with INSIDE SHEETS, printed on superior paper, containing Special Intelligence up to the hour of going to press, and all the News of the Week.—Apply to Typo, 100, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

BANK DEPOSIT

BANK OF DE POSIT

ESTABLISHED A.D. 1844,
3, PAIL MALL EAST, LONDON.

Parties desirous of Investina Mozzy are requested to examine the Plan of Tite Bank or Derrost, by which a high rate of Interest may be obtained with ample security.

The proposite made by Special Agreement, may be withdrawn without not proposite made by Special Agreement, may be withdrawn without notice.

The Interest is payable in January and July.
The Interest is payable in January and July.
Forms for opening Accounts sent free on application.

AN APPEAL ON BEHALF OF THE WIDOW and CHILDREN

THE LATE PROFESSOR WALLACE, M.A. The Friends of this well-known Writer, who died on the 16th ovember last, have been induced to make the following appear a consequence of the sad and urgent necessities of the bereave

November assay, and and urgent necessities of the bereaveu in consequence of the sad and urgent necessities of the bereaveu in consequence of the Books which he wrote and edited show the extent of his labours, especially in the cause of Popular Education,—a cause which was always dear to his heart, even to the close of his life, and secured his carnest and assiduous devotion for many years. Numerous have been the benefits resulting from his labours; and the promoters of Social Science and improvement have lost and the promoters of Social Science and improvement have lost and the promoters of Social Science and improvement have lost and the promoters of Social Science and his large family, which entirely precluded him from making any provision for the future. By his death, and that of his three closets sons, within the last few months, his W IDOW and SEVEN surviving CHILDREN and a Father, but also of assistance from the clder branches of the family.

family.

The loss which the family has sustained by their death is inexpressibly great; and it is hoped the Friends of the deceased, and those who appreciate the educational boon which his various have conferred, will afford a grateful tribute to his meters of the sustained by the sustained by the sustained by the form of the fo

The Right Hon. the LORD MAYOR, The Right Hon. LORD BROUGHAM and VAUX, And the following Ministers and Gentlemen recommend the Rev. James Hill, Clapham. Rev. James Wilson, Aberdeen. Rev. James Spence, D. D., Clap-Rev. Frank Soden, Clapton. Rev. David Wallace, Aberdeen. Rev. William Wolfe Fletcher, cev. William Camden-town. amuel Morley, Esq., Wood-street, Cheapside. street, Cheapside. E. Pye Smith, Esq., Hackney. Henry Rutt, Esq., Clapton.

Henry Child, Esq. (Mesers Wire & Child, Turnwheel-lane, Cannon-street, City. Alexander Scrutton, Esq., 81, Old Broad-street. Samuel Osborn, Esq., Brixton, Edward Simpson, Esq., Bank of Edmand Dring, Esq., Brixton, Henry Campkin, Esq., Libra-rian, Reform Club, Pall Mail. T. Nutter, Esq., 9, Hampshire-terrace, Camden-road.

Trustees to the Fund.
Samuel Morley, Esq., Wood-street, Cheapside.
Henry Child, Esq., Turnwheel-lane. Treasurer-Alexander Scrutton, Esq., 81, Old Broad-st., London.

Bankers.

Messrs. Hankey & Co. Fenchurch-street;
Messrs. Barclay & Co. Lombard-street.

By whom Subscriptions will be received.

References as to further particulars, if required, may be made to Edmund Dring, Esq., 17, Russel-grove, Brixton; Edward Simpson, Esq., Bank of England; T. Nutter, Esq., 9, Hampshire-terrace, Torriano-avenue, Camden-road; Mrs. Wallsco, 3, Alma-toud, Daliston, London, March 2016, 1899.

WANTED, a PARTY with a SMALL very useful Periodical Publication, by which a permanent position may be realized.—Address A. F., No. 11, Janue-street, Corent agriculture of the periodical Publication, by which a permanent position may be realized.—Address A. F., No. 11, Janue-street, Corent agriculture of the periodical Publication of t

TRENCH LANGUAGE and LITERATURE.

—M. ÉMILE, of 280, Rue St.-Honoré, Paris, has the honses to inform his Friends and Pupils that he is now in London.
LESSONS at Pupils residences, or at his own Rooms, of, Jermys, street, St. James's.—Cards of terms may be had of Means. Riingtons, Waterloo-place: Hatchard & Co. Piocadilly; and Nistet & Co. Emerastreet, Oxford-direct.

PRENCH, Italian, German.—Dr.ALTSCHUL, Author of 'First German Reading-Book,' (dedicated, by special permission, to Her Grace the Duchess of Sutherland, dec. M. Philolog. Soc., Prof. Elecution.—TWO LAKULGES TAUGHT in the same lesson, or alternately, on the same Term a One, at the pupils' or at his house. Each language spoken is hid development. Proposition of the languages for mercantile and or dinary purposition of life, the Universities, Army, and Cityl Servise Examinations.—9, OLD BOND-STREET, PICCADILLY.

TO PRINTERS AND PUBLISHERS.— TO BE DISPOSED OF, an Old-established and First-class BUSINESS, in the City of London, upon advantageous terma-Apply by letter to Z. R., Mr. Whites, 38, Fleet-street, E.C.

TO ARTISTS, SCULPTORS, and Others.—
TO BE LET, a lofty, newly-creeted STUDIO, with capitallight, 3T, 6 in. by 90 ft, and also an Anteroom, small kitchen and Bedroom attached, with front and back Entrances.—Apply to Mr. HULLIM, 6, Benrear-street, W., Oxford-street.

GOOD BOOKS AT LOW PRICES.—Just O published, and will be forwarded free for two stamps, Wy DAWSON & SONS' CATALOGUE of CHEAP BOOKS in all classes of Literature, including many thousand volumes of Modern Works at extremely reduced prices.—74, Cannon-street, City, London, E. C. Established 1899.

RARE BOOKS and MANUSCRIPTS .-NEW CATALOGUE of an Extensive and Valuable COL LECTION of BOOKS is now ready, and will be sent by post an receipt of a stamp. UPHAM & BEET, 46, New Bond-street, Libraries Purchased, and Valuations made for Executors, &c.

A SHBEE & DANGERFIELD, LITHOGRAPHIC ARTISTS and PRINTERS in Colour.
ORNAMENTAL DESIGNERS, and ENGRAVERS on WOOD and COPPER,
No. 22, BEDPORD-STREET, COVENT-GARDEN.
Estimates given for the Illustration of Periodical and other

Ul

DAY & SON, Lithographers to the Queen, with despatch, every description of LITHOGRAPHY, Chromathography, and Steel and Copper Plate Printing, Artistic or Commercial. Estimates prepared with promptness—Gatestred, Lincoln's Inn-Stella.

MR. B. H. SMART continues to INSTRUCT ML CLERICAL and other Pupils in ELOCUTION, to attend Classes for English generally, and to engage for Readings—The INTRODUCTION to GRAMMAR on its true BASIS, will Relation to Logic and Rhetoric, price 1s., of all Booksellers. Wyndham-street, Rynantone-square, W.

WOOD-ENGRAVING.—MR. GILKS respectfully announces that he continues to execute ever branch of the Art in the best style, and at most reasonable charges. Labels, show-cards, and Trade Catalogues DESIGNED and PRINTED—London, it, ESSEX-STREET, STRAND, W.C.

THOMAS & CO.'S WHOLESALE MANU-FACTORY of PICTURE and other ORNAMENTAL FRAMES, Cornices, Girandoles, &c. from the latest Designa-A good Frame 34 in. by 20 in. supplied for One Guines.

GUARANTEED PAINTINGS by Modern and Old Master always ON SALE—Old Paintings carefully restored.

286, EUSTON-ROAD, opposite Fitzroy-square.

BOOKBINDING.—BOOKBINDING executed in the MONASTIC, RENAISSANCE, GROLLER, and ILLUMINATED,—in every style of superior finish, by English and Foreign worknen.—Joseph Zaranspoor, English and Foreign Bookbinder, 30, Brydgesstreet, Covent-garden, W.C.

Bookinder, 39, Byoges-street, overst-garden, w. C.

PHOTOGRAPHIC VIEWS OF COUNTRY MANSIONS,

PARK SCENERY, &c.

MESSRS. MASON & CO. having arranged with Mr. MELHUISH, of Blackheath, to Photograph the Cathedria and Churches of England, are now prepared to recore commissions for PHOTOGRAPHIC VIEWS of MANSIONS, &c.

in any part of the Country. This will afford an opportunity of obtaining first-rate pictures at least half the usual price, by swing the expense of a special journey.

Specimens and ferms on application of the property of

MICROSCOPIC OBJECTS-DIATOMACE&, AND OTHER INTERESTING SPECIMENS.

MR. SAMUEL STEVENS, Natural History
OBJECTS, nestly mousely retreet, London, has ON SALE OBJECTS, nestly mounted for MICROSCOPHIC EXAMINATION. The price is 10s 6d, per dosen, packed in racked boxa, containing one or two dosen. Printed Lists sent on application as above. Post-office orders to be made payable at the Bloomsbury Office.

THE AQUARIUM.—LLOYD'S DESCRIP-TIVE LIST, 198 Pages, and 88 Cuts, for 14 stamps.—Apply direct to W. Alford Lloyd, Portland-road, London, W.

FOR FAMILY ARMS, send Name and County to the Heraldic Office. Sketch, 2s. 6d.; in colour. 5s.—Monumental Brasses, Official Scale, Dies, Share and Diploma Plates, in Mediaval and Modern Styte.

HERALDIC ENGRAVING.—Crest on Seal or Bing, 8a; on Die, 7a; Arms, Crest, and Motto on Seal or Book-plate, 259.

SOLID GOLD, 18 Carat, Hall marked, Sard Sardonyx, or Bloodstone Ring, engared Crest, Two Guines, Seals, Dosk Seals, Mordan's Pencil-cases, &c. Illustrated Price List post free.

T. MORING, Engraver and Heraldic Artist (who has received the Gold Medal for Engraving), 44, HIGH HOLBORN, LON-DON, W.C.

NEW ESTABLISHMENT.—The LONDON SCHOOL of PHOTOGRAPHY have opened a New P-trait Establishment at 23, POULTRY, (three doors from t Mansion House), a situation convenient for Families residing the Southern or Eastern suburbs.

Pirst-class Portraits, as usual, from 2s. 6d. to 10 Guineas.

FIRST-CLASS PORTRAITS for Half-a-

The HALF-OUINEA MINIATURE Coloured and Frame PORTRAITS and PAINTINGS COPIED for 5s. (on paper), an coloured, in Oil or Waster-colours, at the seven following Est blishments of the LONDON SCHOOL of PHOTOGRAPHY:
174. Regent-street.
174. Regent-street.
Myddelton Hall, Islington.
25, Foultry.
1, Louise, Manchester.
66, Church-street, Liverpool.

MR. J. G. BARRABLE, PHOTOGRAPHER,

FIRST-CLASS PORTRAITS on Paper for Halfa-Crown.
SIX PORTRAITS for los. 6d. will go by post.
THE 10s. 6d. MINIATURE, a perfect Photograph on Paper inted by Miniature Painters of acknowledged talent—a delicat recess, which without altering the unerring truth of the sun encess, which without oliver and reality of life.

344, REGENT-STREET.—Entrance round the Corner.

MR. C. R. TAYLOR, NUMISMATIST (late of Tavistock etreet; respectfully announces that he con-inces to have ON 'IEW, at his new Residence, a Mowracur-ter of the Control of the Control of the Control of the Germ Coll's and MEDALS, NUMISMATIC BOOKS, CABI-GETS, dc. dc. Articles will be forwarded for approval to any act of the kingdom in reply to orders addressed as above, and very information desired promptly given. Commissions faith-ally attended to on the usual terms.

MAYALL'S PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAIT M. GALLERIES, 234 and 226, REGENT-STREET, corner of Angula-place.—Photographs, Daguerreotypes, and Stereoscopic Miniatures taken daily, plain or coloured, in the highest style of Art. Specimens on view.

CEORGE ROWNEY & CO.'S CHROMO-LITHOGRAPHS, or Fac-simile Water-Colour Drawings. The following beautiful subjects have lately been added to the collection, and are recommended to the notice of Amateurs:—

The following collection, and are recommended to the notice of all the Cultivistics of the Cultivistics of

Ulysses deriding Polyphemus, after J. M. W. Turner, R.A. a. Artist's copies 165 0
Beating up Channel, after Callow ... at 165 0
DLAPHANIE, or Decorative Coloured Glass.—Messrs. Row sty
& Co. invite inspection of their new and very beautiful stock of Diaphanie, suitable for decorating the windows of private houses, Messrs. R. & Co. supply the materials for the Art (which is easily acquired), or the windows ready prepared.
Manufacturing Artists' Colourmen, 51 and 52, Rathbone-place, W.

HERING'S PHOTOGRAPHIC
ESTABLISHMENT, 137, REGENT-STREET—Fortenits taken on quite a new and improved principle, whereby a permanent, true, and pleasing Likeness is insured; also tinted or coloured in the highest style of Miniature Painting by the best Arrists of the Day, on paper or ivory, in water of oil colour. From its long-existing artistic pre-eminence, this Establishment destrous of having Portraits taken, or Oil or Water-colour Paintings and Drawings copied. A great variety of Photographic Specimens of Copies from Thorburn, Ross, Richmond, Eddis, Sir Thomas Lawrence, and others, may be seen at his Gallery, 137, Regent-street. HERING'S PHOTOGRAPHIC

Just published, Fourth Edition, price 1s.; per post, 1s. 2d.

PRACTICAL PHOTOGRAPHY on GLASS and PAPER; containing Simple Directions for the Production of Portraits and Views by the Collodion, Albumen, Calotype, Waxed Paper, and Positive Paper processes: also Papers on the Method of taking Stereoscopic Pictures, the Colouring of Photographs, and on Failures, their Causes, and Remedies. By CHAS.

Published by Bland & Co. Photographic Instrument Makers to the Queen, 153, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

STEREOGRAPHS of the SEA. Price 58.
No. 1, Fine Weather; No. 2, The Ground Swell; No. 3, A. Capful of Wind, Instantaneous Photo-CTEREOGRAPHS of the SEA. Price 5s.

No. 1, Fine Weather; No. 2, The Ground Swell; No. 3, A Sout-Wester; No. 4, A Capful of Wind. Instantaneous Photographs printed on Class, by Samuel Fry, Brighton, showing every graphs printed on Class, by Samuel Fry, Brighton, showing every of Sunshine, Shipping, Spray, &c.—"One with marvelous effects of Sunshine, Shipping, Spray, &c.—"One printed graphs and their bring savour."—Photographic Journal.
Wholesale at Horne and Thornthwaite's, 123, Newgate-street, London.

STEREOGRAPH of the MOON. Die. 6d. With descriptive Pamphile and Chart. A Photo-phyl printed on Glass, taken by Samuel Fry. Brighton, at the Brighton.—"Mr. Samuel Fry has been eminently successful."— Photographic Journal.—"Mountains, Volcanoes, &c., are brought under the eye. One of the most wonderful, novel, and beautiful objects vet produced for the stereoscope.—Brighton Heroid. Horne & Thornthwatt, £2b, Newgastertert, London.

AKE WINDERMERE HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT.
Proprietor—E. L. HUDSON, M.R.C.S.

Prospectuses may be had on application to Dr. Hudson, Windermere.

ARMY AND NAVY COMESTIBLE

Epicurean Culinary Laboratory, and Register Office for PROLessons in Domestic, Commercial, and Scientific Cookery.

First-class Provisions for Home and Export.

Manufactured by BRAND BROTHERS, 57, Pall Mall, London.
Pics, Pastics, Pattics, and Crusts, in terrines of various delicate viands and fish.

**Delication Comp. Private Fasters descend on preserved as provi * Delicacies, from Private Estates, dressed or preserved, as may be required.

DERBY DAY.—Just published, a STEREORACE-COURE at the most important point in the field, during the run for the Derby, and comprising nearly 100 excited Spectators, which is the largest number ever taken in a stereoscopic group; also the 'Road,' Rail' (ind and 3rd class), and 'Settling Day. All admirers of photography should purchase the above, as they form, if taken as a set, the most interesting slides ever Stereoscopic Company, $4. Cheapside, E.C.; and 313, Oxford-street, W.—The Trade supplied.

W.—The rrace suppuse.

| EXT-OF-KIN WANTED, and others who have been Advertised for—Being Exact Copies of Advertised for—Being Exact Copies of Advertised For State of State of Advertised For State of S

CHROMATIC MICROSCOPES .- PILLI-A SCHER'S CATALOGUE of Achromatic Microscopes and other Optical Instruments sent free by post.—88, New Bond-street, corner of Caford-street, W.—X.B. OPERA, RACE, and FIELD GLASSES of the very best description, and in great variety.

MR. JAMES ROBINSON, DENTIST, has REMOVED from No. 7 to No. 3, GOWER-STREET, Bedford-square, London, where he may be consulted as usual. 8, Gowersteet, Bedford-square.

NOTICE.—J. A. BRODHEAD & CO.,
AUCTIONEERS and GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, 53 and 55, TREMONT-STREET, BOSTON, UNITED STATES, respectfully solicit CONSIGNMENTS of Books, Encravings, Paintings, and on to the Sale of such Consignments, and insure for their English friends good prices. Liberal advances (when desired), and prompt returns in all cases. References: Hon.
R. B. Campbell, United States Consul, Messrx, Willia & Sotheran, London; His Excellency, N. F. Banks, Boston; Butler, Keith &
Co. Beston.

F. A. BRODHEAD & CO. Boston, United States.

Bales by Auction

To Librarians, Dealers in Photographs, Stationers, and Others.

MR. PAGE will SELL by AUCTION, at the Rooms, 13, High Holborn, on WEDNESDAY, June 15, at 13, the STOCK of TWO FUBLIC LIBRARIES, removed from the City and Old Kent-road; comprising about 5,00 vols. of Novels, Komanoes, and Miscellancous Works, by Authors of repute—also, an assortment of Photographs.

One viewed, Catalogues at the Rooms, and at the Auctioneer's Offices, 25, Coleman-street, E. C.

To Stationers, Account-Book Manufacturers, Printers, and Others.

MR. PAGE will SELL by AUCTION, at the Rooms, 13, High Hollorn, or THIP ADAY, at the M. F. FACE WIR SELLI by AUCHTON, at the Rooms, 13, High Holborn, on THURSDAY, June 16, at the ROUCK of a WHOLESALE STATIONER, removed from senfort-buildings, Strand; comprising 900 reams of Writing and ritting Papers—14,000 Euvelopes—10 gross of Copy-books—also trusting in Trade, including an 11-inch Albert Cutting-lachine, Slanding Press, Stamping Press and Dies, Weighing Aschine, Counters, Desks, &c.
To be viewed. Catalogues at the Rooms, and at the Auctioneer's ffices, as, Coleman-street, & C.

Library of an Artist.

Library of an Artist.

MESSRS. PUTTICK & SIMPSON, Auctioners of Literary Property, viil SELL by AUCTION, at their new and very spacious Premises, 47, Leicester-square, W.C. (formerly the Western Literary Institution), on TUSSDAY, June 14, the LiBRARY of an ARTIST, deceased; comprising a Colours, the Sciences, Sports and Pastimes, Provincial Antiquities, &c.—Strutt's Sylva Britannies, half morococ—Cutt's Ruins of the viden Time, half morococ—Cooper's Designs for Cattle Painting, half morococ—Ottman's Architectural Remains, 2 vols. half morococ—Sprace Britannia Depicts, half morococ—Scott's Broder Antiquities, 2 vols.—Scott's Provincial Antiquities, 2 vols.—Art.—Journal for 1869, &c.—unervous intercating Wafer-Colour Draw Glover, a few Paintings, Collection of Engravings, numerous Works of J. M.W. Turner, Proofs, &c., selection from the "Liber Studiorum"—also Drawing and Painting Materials of the best quality, Easels, Colour-Boxes, Mounting-Boards, Portolios, &c. Catalogues on receipt of two stamps.

Rare and Curious Books, Tracts, MSS., &c.

Rare and Curious Books, Tracts, MSS., &c.

MESSRS. PUTTICK & SIMPSON, Auctioners of Literary Property, will SELL by AUCTION, at their new and very spacious Premises, &c. Leievier square, W.C. June 15. and two following days, an externelly interesting COLLECTION of BOOKS, selected from the Library of an Amateur; consisting of rare Editions of the Holy Scriptures — English Poetical and General Literature—Early Printed Books in various Languages—curious and rare Spanish Books—Anglo-American Literature—a superb Copy of the Philosophical Transactions of interesting Manuscripts relating to Mexico, Peru, Guatemaia, Quito, and the South-American Provinces generally—a most important volume of the age of Las Casas, consisting of pepositions taken before the Council of the Indies—Manuscript Collections of the late Signor Navarette for the continuation of his Colection de Viages—MSS. relating to English Geneslogy and Family History, &c. Catalogues on receive of asis stamps.

Catalogues on receipt of six stamps.

Richly Illustrated Library, Autographs, and Engravings of the late Miss JENKINS, of the Royal York-crescent, Clifton.

MESSRS. PUTTICK & SIMPSON, Auctioners of Literary Property, will SELL by AUCTION, at their new and very spacious Premises, 47, Lelester-square, on MONDAY, June Yr, and following days, the extensive and very important Ackers, and following days, the extensive and tery important Ackers, and following days, the categories and the Works. English ONES expectally rich in Blocks which are illustrated with Portraits and Autographs - very numerous Works on the Fine Arts, also early English Literature and Poetry—curious and early editions of the Scriptures, English and Foreign —Illuminated Missais and other interesting and important Manuscripts—one sumptuous Illustrated extensions of the Company o admired Publications; also Valuable Streetype Plates, Wood Blocks, and Copyrights.

Important Remainders of First-Class Standard Publications, including many of the late Mr. DAVID BOGUE'S much admired Publications; also Valuable Stereotype Plates, Wood Blocks, and Copyrights.

SOUTHGATE & BARRETT will SELL by AUCTION, at their Rooms, 25, Fleet street, on MONDAY, June 13, and three following days, REMAINDERS of Valuable and Interesting Publications, including 400 Tennyan's Millerty Baughter, beautifully illustrated, cloth—2,000 Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illustrated by Harvey, cloth and moreoco—2,000 Milton's Dayber, beautifully illustrated, cloth—2,000 Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illustrated by Harvey, cloth and moreoco—2,000 Milton's Posterial Works, illustrated—2,000 Poe's Poetical Works, illustrated—3,000 Poe's Poetical Works, illustrated—4,000 Poe's Poetical Works, illustrated—5,000 Poe's Poetical Works, illustrated—6,000 Poetical Works, illustrated—6

Very Important Literary Property, producing a Profit of 9001, per annum, by Order of the Mortgagees.

SOUTHGATE & BARRETT will SELL by AUCTION, at their Rooms, 23, Fleet-street, by Order of the Mortgages, on THURSDAY, June 16,

THE SIXTY-TWO ENGRAVED STEEL-PLATES AND THE COPYRIGHT TO

THE COPYNIGHT TO
THE MODERN ATLAS OF THE WORLD;
Consisting of 63 elephant 4to, Maps, with a most voluminous Tabular Index, recollated. The Plaises are all corrected up to the following Atlases:—viz., The College Atlas, The Family Atlas, and The Junior Atlas.

Stock of Mesers, COLLINS BROTHERS, by Order of the SOUTHGATE & BARRETT will SELL by AUCTION, at their Rooms, 22, Fleet-street, or THURS-DAY, June 16, the STOCK of ENGRAVED PLATES and COPYRIGHTS to a Valuable Series of Modern Atlases and Maps, and a Miscellaneous Assortment of Books, Maps, Globes, &c.

The Scientific Library of the late ROBERT BROWN, Esq.

The Scientific Library of the late ROBERT BROWN, Eng.

M. R. J. C. STEVENS is instructed by the Secution to SELL by AUCTION, at his Great Room, Se, King-street, Covent-garden, on MONDAY, June 27, and two following days, at half-past is precisely; the SCIENTIFIC PORD.C.L. F. R.S., Foreign Member of the Institute of France, and formerly President of the Linnama Society; including (together with many other valuable Botanical Works) Bauer's Illustrationes Flore Nova Hollandiar—Lambert's Genus Pinus-Yon Martius, Genera et Species Palmarum—Yon Martius, Nova Genera et Species Plandarum Brasiliensium—Ehrenburgh, Industrations Flier
Flicum—Kunth, Revision des Graminées—Palisot de Beauvais' Flore d'Oware-Rosburgh's Coromandel Plants, &c &c.
May be viewed on Saturday, 32th, and mornings of Sale, and Catalogues had of Mr. J. C. Stevens, 38, King-street, Covenigarden, W.C.; if for the country, by Inclosing two postage stamps.

Miscellaneous Books-Six Days' Sale.

MR. HODGSON will SELL by AUCTION, M. R. HODGSON will SELL by AUCTION, at his New Hooms, the corner of Fleet-street and Chancerplane, on THURSDAY, June 16, and 5 following days (Sunday excepted), at half-past 13, A LARGE COLLECTION of BOOKS, including portions of several Private Libraries, the Library of a Clergyman (deceased), and a Small Architectural Library, or prising Works in Theology, History, Glassies, Topography, County Drama, & C. Amongat them will be found, A Complete Set of the Gentleman's Magazine, 1731 to 1856, 195 vols.—Hasted's Kent. 13 vols.—Canden Society Publications, at outs.—Canden Society Publications, at outs.—Card Speeches, de vols.—Hansard's Debates, 1849 to 1857—Stuart and Revett's Farly Manuscripts, with Illuminations—Modern Publications, Novels, &c. &c.

To be viewed, and Catalogues forwarded on receipt of two stamp.

MESSRS. COCKETT & NASH are instructed by the Assigness to SELL by AUCTION, on THURB-DAY, June 16, on the Fremises, at 10 for 11 o'clock precisely, on account of the number of Lots,

DAY, June 16, on the Premises, at 10 for 11 o'clock precisely, on account of the number of Lots,

The VALUABLE and EXTENSIVE LIBRARY of Mr. Q. CARVER; comprising rare Editions of Standard, Theological, Classical, and General Literature, in good preservation, including Le Jay's Polyglot Bible, 8 vols. imperial 8vo. Paris. 1645—Pole's Synopsis Criticorum, 6 vols. royal folio, 1650—Calmet's Dictionary, 5 vols. 4to.—and a curlous Manuscript Biblis Sacra, on vellom, illuminated—Works by Virtings, Beza, Ireneus, Coteler, Viccara, Matchard Clark, By Virtings, Beza, Ireneus, Coteler, Viccara, Matchard, 1998

Sales by Auction

Rare and Curious Books, illustrative of the English Dran ESSRS. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN M. ESSIGS. S. LEIGH SOTHEDY & JOHN
WILKINSON, Auctioners of Literary Property and Works illustrative of the Fine Arts, will SELL by AUCTION, at their House, 3, Wellington-strees, Strand, on MONDAY, June 13, at 1 precisely, RARE and CURIOUS BOOKS, illustrative of the English Drama and Early English Literature.
May be viewed two days previous, and Catalogues had; if in the Country, on receipt of two postage stamps.

The Valuable Library of the late EDWIN COTTINGHAM, Esq., M.R.C.S., of Bexley, Kent.

MESSRS. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN Worker INTERPRETARIES. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN Worker INTERPRETARIES. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN Worker Literary Property and with their House, 3, Wellington-street, Strand, on WEDNESDAY, June 15, and three following days, at 1 precisely, the VALUABLE LIBRARY of the late EDWIN COTTINGHAM, Esq., M.R.C.S., of Bezley, Kent. S. Wellington-street, Strand, on WEDNESDAY, June 15, and the Library of the late EDWIN COTTINGHAM, Esq., M.R.C.S., of Bezley, Kent. S. Wellington, S.

The Valuable Medical Library of the late EDWIN COT-TINGHAM, Esq. M.R.C.S., of Bexley, Kent.

MESSRS. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN MESSIGS. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN WIKINSON, Auctioners of Literary Property and Works illustrative of the Fine Arts, will Sell. by AUCTION, as their House, J. Wellington-street, Strand, on MOS PALY, June Li BRARY of the late EDWIN COTTINGHAM, Esq. M. K.C.S., of Berley, Kent.
May be viewed two days prior, and Catalogues had; if in the Country, on receipt of two postage stamps.

The Valuable Library of the late JAMES HASTIE, Esq., of Gray's Inn.

MESSRS. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN MESSRS. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN
WILKINSON, Auctioneers of Literary Property and Works illustrative of the Fine Arts, will SELL by AUCTION, at their House, 3, Wellington-street, Strand, on THURSDAY, June 33, and two following days, at 1 o'clock precisely, the VALUABLE LIBRARY of the late JAMES HASTIE, Eag., of Gray's Inn; comprising Theological, Historical, Mathematical, Botanical, and Geological Works-Greek and Latin Classics and Translations—Valuable Books in German Literature—some useful Bookcases and Library to the Country, on receipt of two postage stamps.

The Valuable Library of the late W. J. BRODERIP, Esa. MESSRS. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN
WILKINSON, Auctioneers of Literary Property and Works connected with the Fine Arts, will SELL by AUCTION, at their House, 3, Wellington-street, Strand, on MONDAY, Jone
47, and two following days, at 1 o'clock precisely, the VALUABLE LIBRARY of the late W. J. BRODER, Eact, comprising very important and valuable Works in Ornithology, Geology, Botany, and other branches of Bockcases, &co.
May be viewed two days prior.

The Fine-Art Collection formed by the late Rev. JOHN MIT-FORD, Vicar of Benhall, Saxmundham, Suffolk.

FORD, Vicar of Benhalt, Saxmundham, Suffolk.

MESSRS. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN
Works illustrative of the Fine Arts, will SELL by AUCFLOX, at their House, 3, Wellington-street, Nyrand, on THURSDAY, June 36, at 1 o'clock precisely, the FINE ART COLLECTION, formed by the late Rev. JOHN COLLECTION SAXMUNDHAM, Suffolk, Autique Cameos and Intaglios-highly-flouided Ministures, by Hillard, Hoskins, Cooper, Ziucke, &c.—some pleasing Cabinet Pictures, including Specimens of Vicing Report of the Articuse Control of t some pleasing Cabinet Pictures, including Specimens of Velvet Breughel Elabiemer Ostade Stothard Fr. Carracci Griftier Poelember Vander Meulen Crome Molinner Poussin Wynants De Koninek Moucheron Rubens Acc. — a few Miscellancous Articles of Virtù—some Antique Bronzes and Marbles, and others of a later period. May be viewed two days prior, and Catalogues had; if in the Country, on receipt of two postage stamps.

Antiquities and Miscellaneous Articles, including those of the late JOHN HUXTABLE, Esq.

MESSRS. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN MESSRS. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN WILKINSON, Auctioners of Literary Property and Works illustrative of the Fine Arts, will SELL by AUCTION, at their House, S. Wellington-street, Strand, on FRIDAY, July 1, at 1 o'clock precisely, a Collection of ANTIQUITIES and MISCELLANDUIS ARTICLES, including that formed by the late CELLANDUIS ARTICLES, including that formed by the late Entry British Pancies, Bebliedian Cylinders, Brouse and Stone Celts, Early British Vase, and other interesting Saxon and Enclish Antiquities, principally with the localities where found, Watches of curious construction, a superb Oval Tray in Limoges Enamel, attributed to Jean Pierre Courteys, and many other Articles illustrative of Art and Antiquity.

Country, on receipt of two postage stamps.

Capital Books on the various Branches of Literature.

MESSRS. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN M. SONGS. S. DAUTINESS OF LITERARY Property and Wicker House, 2, Wellington-street, Strand, on SATURDAY, July 2, a Collection of Capital BOOKS in the different Departments of Literature. May be viewed two days prior.

The Highly-Important Collection of Roman Imperial Large Brass Medals, formed by FRANCIS HOBLER, Esq.

Herat Medals, formed by FRANCIS HOBLER, Eq.

MESSRS. S. LEIGH SOTHEBY & JOHN
WILKINSON, Auctioners of Literary Property and works illustrative of the Fine Arts, will SELL by AUCTION, as their House, 3, Wellington-street, Strand, on MCNICTION, as their House, 3, Wellington-street, Strand, on MCNICTION, to tant, fine, and extensive Collection of ROMAN IMPERIAL LARGE BRASS MEDALS, formed, with taste and judgment, by FRANCIS HOBLER, Esq., ex-Secretary to the Koyal Numismatic Society of London, &c. &c. This remarkably interesting and oostic Cabinet includes also many and anomalication, a few select Frass Medallions, &c. &c., forming altogether a valuable and highly-instructive Series-Numismatic Books, Mahogany Cabinet, &c. rrass Medallions, &c. &c., forming altogether a valuable and ighly-instructive Series—Numismatic Books, Mahogany Cabi-er, &c. May be viewed two days prior, and Catalogues had; if in the cuntry, on receipt of two postage stamps.

LEONARD & CO., AUCTIONEERS, respectfully solicit Consignments, especially of Literary Property; that an actual to the consignments, especially of Literary Property; attention, and ample neases, will insure assistance and prompt returns. They have the honour to refer to Mesgra Sampson Low, Sox & Co., Ludgate-hill, London.

"Thave & Warren, India-buildings, Liverpool.

"LITTLE, BROWN & Co., Boston, U.S.

"PHILLIPS, SAMPSON & Co., LEONARD & CO.

N.R. LEONARD & CO. are the Auctioneers for Conducting the Annual Book-Trade Sales in Boston.

THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW. - AD-VERTISEMENTS intended for insertion in the JULY UMBER (Na. XXXI. New Series) are requested to be forwarded the Publisher not later than the 35th inst. BILLS and PRO-PECTUSES by the 37th.

London: John Chapman, 8, King William-street, Strand.

DHOTOGRAPHIC JOURNAL.—ADVER.

TISEMENTS for the next Number (which will be published no near 13) are requested to be sent to the Publishers on or before he 13th of June 1.

TAYLOR & FRANCIS, Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

THE UNIVERSAL REVIEW for JUNE.

price 22. 6d., contains—
Man and his Swelling-place.
A Reviewer's Parcel.
The Story of Microscopical Discovery.
The Slavonians and Austria.
The Resources of India and its Colonization. Part 2.
The Royal Academy and the Water-Colour Exhibitions.
Popular History.
The French in Italy: a National and Traditional Policy.
Books on our Table.

London: Wm. H. Allen & Co. 7, Leadenhall-street.

Now ready, price 3s. 6d. cloth,

WILLIAM BURKE the AUTHOR of 'JUNIUS': an Essay on his Era. By JELINGER C.
SYMONS, Barrister-at-Law.
Smith, Elder & Co. 65, Cornhill.

This day, 870, 164.

GEORGE CANNING AND HIS TIMES.
By AUGUSTUS GRANVILLE STAPLETON.
London: John W. Parker & Non, West Strand.

Now ready, in fcap. 8vo. price 2s illustrated Cover, THE ANGLER'S COMPLETE GUIDE to the RIVERS and LAKES of ENGLAND and WALES.

By R. BLAKEY, Ph.D. With an Illustration by Birket Fester. *x* The object of this volume is to point out to the Angler th principal fishing districts in England and Wales, and as a general guide to direct him to those localities where the sport can be ob-tained in the readiest and cheapest manner.

London : W. Kent & Co. (late D. Bogue), 86, Fleet-street.

MR. WESTERTON'S

NEW WORKS.

This day, 3s. 6d. bound

EMILY MORTON: a Tale.

WITH SKETCHES PROM LIFE.

By CHARLES WESTERTON.

Also, now ready at all the Libraries, in 2 vol

THE WIFE'S TEMPTATION.

By MRS. CHALLICE, Author of 'The Sister of Charity,' &c. "The novel of the season."—Morning Advertiser.

Complete in 1 vol. 10s. 6d. bound

LADY MORGAN'S 'LUXIMA

THE PROPHETESS.' A Tale of India. "Powerfully drawn."-Rhutrated London News.

FIRE-SIDE MELODIES,

AND A LOVE-DREAM.

By SYLVAN, Author of 'The Spirit of Home,' &c. In Sto.

IN THE PRESS.

BACHELOR'S HALL and AUNT KATE. In post 8vo. 10s. 6d. bound.

THE MORNING OF LIFE:

A DOMESTIC STORY.

By the Author of 'Gordon of Duncairn,' 3 vols.

SERMONS IN SONG;

Or, DOCTRINE AND DUTY IN LYRIC AND LAY.

CHARLES WESTERTON, HYDE PARK-CORNER.

ELECTRIC INDUCTION.—For very impor-tant and interesting Communications on this Subject, as-the ENGINEER of THIS WEEK. Price 6d., stamped, 7d.—18, ROMAN REMAINS in LONDON.—COPY. DOMAN REMAINS in LONDON,—COPY.

RIGHT.—The BUILDER of THIS DAY, price at., stamped, 5d., contains:—Fine View'of the Mutual Life Assurance Offices—Art and Engineering Abroad—On the Construction of Domes—What to Teach Mechanical Workmen—Architectural Domes—What to Teach Mechanical Workmen—Architectural Domes—Than —Architectural Construction—Architectural Taname-street—The Metropolitan Main-drainage—The Deriota for House Association Competition—Provincial Invaving—Ventilation of Schools—Church-building News—Stained Glass—Competition—Office, 1, York-street, Coveni-garden; and all Booksellers.

Will be published on the 18th inst. No. I. of THE PARLOR JOURNAL, an illustrated weekly Periodical, price 1d., commencing with an original by Thomas Miller, Author of 'Godfrey Malvern,' 'Gidson lies,' &c., and illustrated by Julian Portch, entitled 'Langer-he-Les; or, Time's, Changes.' Full of Tales, Sketches, Wi. office, 184, Fleet-street, London; and to be had of all Newsond Booksellers.

NEW and ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS of Subscription to the ILLUSTRATED NEWS of the WORLD. The "Drawing-room Portrait Gallery of Eminent Personages' (First or Second Series), a Fire Guines Book, beautily bound, delivered at once, and the Hustrated News of the Multiple Book, delivered at once, and the Hustrated News of the Agents wanted in every town and village to procure Bubacriptine. Agents wanted in every town and village to procure Bubacriptine and the Second Series of Series (Second Series), and is, with No. 72 of the Hustratist of the Second Series of Series (Second Series), and Series of Series (Series). Series (Series) Series (Series), and Series (Series), and Series (Series), and Series (Series).

Offices, 199, Strand; West-End Branch, 122, Regent-street (next to H. J. & D. Nicoll's Paletot Warehouse); and all Booksellen and News-agents

Now ready, feap. 8vo. cloth, price 2s. 6d. THE FORM of the HORSE, as it lies open to the Inspection of the ordinary Observer. By JAMES C. L. William Robertson, Sackville-street, Dublin; Simpkin, Mar-shall & Co. London.

To be completed in 40 Parts, a Part to be published every Fortnight, price 6d., with a beautiful Engraving to each Part, THIERS' HISTORY OF THE GREAT Part I. on June 15. Richard Bentley, New Burlington-street, Publisher in Ordinary to Her Majesty.

Just published, fcap. cloth, price 7s. 6d.

BRIERRE DE BOISMONT on HALLU-Visions, Dreams, Ecstacy, Magnetism, and Somambulism. Translated from the French by RUBERT T. HULME, M.R.C.S. London: Henry Renshaw, 34, Strand.

SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.
In the press,

VETUS TESTAMENTUM GRÆCE JUXTA LXX INTERPRETES. Recensionem Grabianam ad fidem Codier Alexandrial albrumqua demun recentrit, Graca secun-dum or Alexandrial albrumqua demun recentrit, Graca secun-dum or Alexandrial albruman demun recentrit, Librez Aportypho a Canonicia segregavit Rebreat reformavit, Librez Aportypho a Coll. SS. Trin. Cantab. Quondam Socius.

DEPOSITORIES:-77, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's Inn-fields, W.C.; 4, Royal Exchange, Cornhill, E.C.; 16, Hanover-street, Regent-street, W.; and by the Booksellers.

Just published, price 2s. 6d. PASTORAL and OTHER
By Mrs. GEORGE HALSE.
Harrison, 59, Pall Mall. POEMS.

NEW SPORTING WORK, ILLUSTRATED BY LEECH. On June 30, No. I. of

"DLAIN OR RINGLETS?"

By the Author of 'Sponge's Tour.' 'Ask Mamma, '&c.

To be completed in Thirteen Monthly Numbers, price is each uniform with 'Handley Cross,' &c. With Coloured Histories and Woodcutch by JOHN LEECH.

Bradbury & Erans, II, Bouverie-street. RINGLETS!"

This day, feap. 8vo. 4s. A SELECT GLOSSARY OF ENGLISH WORDS USED FORMERLY IN SENSES DIFFERENT
FROM THEIR PRESENT. BY RICHARD CHENEVIX
TRENCH, D.D., Dean O'Westminster.

ENGLISH: PAST and PRESENT. Fourth

ON THE STUDY OF WORDS. Eighth

PROVERBS and THEIR LESSONS. Fourth

Edition. 24, London: John W. Parker & Son, West Strand.

Now ready,

LE RAPHAEL DE M. MORRIS MOORE;

Translations, Notes, and an ESSAY. By LEON BATTE.

Jeffs, 15, Burlington Areade, London.

ROME AND THE POPE.
Now ready, in 1 volume, 5vo, price 7a &d.
THE ROMAN QUESTION. By E. ABOU Translated from the French by H. C. COAPE. (Suppress in France.)

"One of the most pungent productions of the day."
Times, May 26.

"Iutolerably witty, and mercilessly truthful." If Name, May 28.

"M. About descends into the darkness, as will Name, May 3. Iter of this national Fromesthem." — discours, May 18. The rule w. Jeffs, Foreign Bookseller and Publisher, 15, Burlington Arcade, and e., King's-road, Brighton.

BOHN'S ILLUSTRATED LIBRARY FOR JUNE. BOHN'S ILLUSTRATED LIBRARY FOR JUNE.

BEOREATIONS in SHOOTING; with some Account of the Game of the Bitlish Islands. By CRAVEN.

Edition, with Sixty-two embellishments, engraved on wood

F. W. Branston, from original drawings by William Harvey,

Nine Engravings on steel, chiefly after A. Cooper, R.A. Post cloth, 55.

Henry G. Bohn, York-street, Covent-garden, London.

BOHN'S CHEAP SERIES FOR JUNE. Price 24.

(To be continued fortnightly.)

DOSWELL'S LIFE of JOHNSON, including his Tour to the Hebridge, Tour in Wales, &c., with large Additions and Notes by the Right Hon. JOHN WILSON CROKER. The Second and most complete Copyright Edition, rearranged and retried, at WHIGHT, to suggested on of Lord Macaulay, by TOINER. WHIGHT, to suggested on the Lord Macaulay, by CHONER. To be completed in S vols. illustrated with upwards of Forty sine Engravings on Steel. Vol. VII.

see The public will now have for 16s, what was formerly published at 3s.

Henry G. Bohn, York-street, Covent-garden, London.

LITERAL TRANSLATION of the NEW A TESTAMENT, on Definite Rules of Translation, with an English Version of the same; in Nine Parts. By HERMAN HEINFETTER, Author of Rules for Ascertaining the Sense conveyed in Ancient Greek Manuscripts.—Alexander Heylin, 28, Paternoster-ow; and J. Bumpun, 185, Oxford-street.

FRENCH SIMPLIFIED .- Fifth Edition, 5a. 6d.

PRENCH SIMPLIFIED.—Fifth Edition, 5a. 6d.

OF SPEAK FRENCH; or, French and France: Facts, Rules, Practice,—State, History, Literatore, condensed. By A. ALBITES, Lt. B., Paris, Professor of Fruch and History, Birmingham Proprietary, Schol.

"Incomparably superior."—Alkencum." Perfect. ".Era.

London: Longman & Co. Edinburgh: Mensley.

Now ready, in 1 vol. 8vo. pp. 370, price 7a 6d.

A TREATISE on MEDICAL ELEC-Tresiment of Paralysis, Neuralpia, and other Diseases. By J. ALTHAUS, M.D. Trübner & Co. 60, Paternoster-row.

MR. DIXON ON DISEASES OF THE EYE, Just published, 2nd Edition, revised, with considerable Additions, post 8vo. cloth, 9s.

A GUIDE to the PRACTICAL STUDY of

A GUIDE to the PRAUTICAL STUDY.

BISEASES of the EYE. By JAMES DIXON, F.R.C.

Surgeon to the Royal London Ophthalmic Hospital, Moorfields.

John Churchill, New Burlington-street.

NEW WORKS FOR JUNE.

Hawksview:

A Family History of Our Own Times. By HOLME LEE Author of 'Sylvan Holt's Daughter, &c. Crown Svo. cloth 7a 6d.

There's always sunshine somewhere in the world."

Our Living Painters:

Their Lives and Works. A Series of nearly a Hundred brief Notices of Contemporary Artists of the English School. Crown 8vo. cloth. 52.

Manners and Customs of the ENGLISH NATION, from the Invasion of Julius Caesar to the Present Time. By JOHN BROOKES. Crown 8vo. cloth, 5s.

The Gladiator of Ravenna:

A Drama, in Five Acts. By PRIEDRICH HAHN. Translated from the German, with a Freface by Professor DE VERICUER. Crown Sv. olbh, 3z ed.

Wellington: a Historical Poem. With an Analysis of the Duke's Life and Character. By the Rev. J. G. AUGLEY, M.A. Crown Svo. cloth. 3s. 6d.

England subsists by Miracle.

By FELTHAM BURGHLEY. Demy 8vo. cloth, 2s. Sd.

The Little Silver Barrel, And other Fairy Tales. Square 16mo, cloth gilt edges. Illustrations.

Florence: a Tale.

By M. E. HAMMOND. Crown 8vo. 7s. 6d.

Well written, and not without considerable interest." "Readable, graceful, sometimes sparkling; and the moral is good."—Crific.
"A where found amusement in its pages, and were irresistibly led on to the end."—Alias.

Lorimer Littlegood, Esq.,

A Young Gentleman who wished to See Society, and Saw it accordingly. By ALFRED W. COLE, Esq. Barrister. Second Thousand. Demy 8vo. cloth. Plates, 10a &d. "A very good tale, very well told. There is much graphic, powerful, and humorous writing in it."-Bath Journal.

The Juvenile Railway Library,

1a. sach.
1. Headley's Sacred Moun1. Headley's Sacred Moun1. Fountain of Living Waters.
1. Headley's Sacred Scenes and
1. Cousin Alice.
1. Husbare; or, Home
1. Principles
1. Page 1. Page

London: JAMES BLACKWOOD, Paternoster-row.

Just published, price 1s.

DLACKIE'S MAP of the SEAT of WAR.—
PARTMA, MORTHERN ITALY, Including Sardinia, Lombardy, Partma, Modena, Tuscany, and Part of the Papal States.
Blackie & Son, Warwick-square, City, London; and Glasgow and Edibungar.

HANDKE'S MAP of NORTHERN ITALY, from the Austrian and Sardinian Surveys. Two sheets, each 26 inches by 16, price 7c, or mounted in Case, 90.

WOERLL'S MAP of NORTHERN ITALY Marseilles to Trieste, and from Lausanne to Florence and Anousa, National Strategy and from Lausanne to Florence and Anousa, National Strategy and the Strategy and Clubs. Price 18s.; or mounted in Case, 21s. of Libraries and Clubs. Price 18s.; or mounted in Case, 21s. d. Henrietts-attreet, Covent-garden, London; and 30, South Frederick street, Edinburgh.

THE WAR IN ITALY.

THE WAR IN ITALY, AND ALL ABOUT IT. By J. II. STOCQUELER, Esq. Containing a lucid and brief Exposition of the different European Treaties bearing on the War Question, with their Effects; and a Description, Folicical and Topographical, of Northern Italy, &c. With a Map of the Seat of War. Price le. cloth boards.

London: Henry Lea, 22, Warwick-lane; and all Railway Stations

LEA'S CHEAP SERIES FOR JUNE.

LEA'S CHEAP SERIES FOR JUNE.

MARTHA BELL; or, the Old Abbey Farm.
By Mrs. MARY BENNETT. Price 1s. 6d. fancy boards,
3 colours
The Black Knight; or, the Unknown. Crusader. By the Author
Old London Bridge. By 6, 1L. Redwell. With Steel Plates, 3s. 6d.
Handy Andy. By Samuel Lover 2s.
The Wild Irish Girl. By Lady Morgan. 2s.
Tom Bowling. By Captain Chamier. 3s.
Record Love; or Beauty and Intellect. By Mrs. Trollope. 2s.
The Metors. By Capt. Armstrong. 2s.
The Two Midahipmen, 2s.
The Two Midahipmen, 2s.
The Two Midahipmen, 2s.
The Two Commander. 2s.
The Master-Passion. By the Author of 'Valentine Vox.'
London: Henry Lea, 2s. Warwick-iane.

Post Svo. 68.

Post 8vo. 6s.

EXACT PHILOSOPHY, by Dr. HALLE.—In reason by means of uncertainties, 'Law III.' is for the first time writers, including Liebig, Bestellus, Gregory, Comte, Hume, Lewes, James Mill, Stuart Mill, De Morzan, and many others.

"We recommend its perusal to all who who feel a preuliar interest in the nature of the Proceedings of the Philosophy of Mind, 4 vol. 611.

Effingham Wilson, Royal Exchange.

Uniform with the 'Aldine Poets,' fean, 8vo. 6s

R. ISAAC TAYLOR'S LOGIC in

THEOLOGY; and other Essays

"The sensible and quiet utterances of a mature, a manly, and a thoughtful Christian."—Literary Gazette.

"Like all works of a man who thinks for himself on practical questions, Mr. Isaac Taylor's little volume of seven essays deserves a careful reading for the matter, and invites it by a moderate simplicity of style. We cannot but respect the candour and perseverance with which he has devoted his mind to the most important questions which underlie the religious, and therefore the social, welface of mankind. He has had no other interest to serve than that of truth, and he has served it, we believe, with fairness and with success.—Sustant Review. It will be found rich in wise thoughts."—British Quarterly Review.

This day, fcap, 8vo. 5s

FOLK-LORE.

Being the New Volume of CHOICE NOTES from 'Notes and Queries.' By the EDITOR.

Also, recently published, uniform with the above, 5s

CHOICE NOTES from HISTORY.

"It is full of curious matter, pleasant to read, and well worthy of preservation in a permanent shape."—Leader.

Now ready, fcap. 8vo. 3s. 6d.

LOCKE on the CONDUCT of the HUMAN UNDERSTANDING. Edited by BOLTON CORNEY, Esq. M.R.S.L.

Now ready, Second Edition, fcap. 8vo. 3a, &t.

READINGS on the MORNING and EVENING PRAYER. By JULIA S. BLUNT.

"This work may be usefully employed in various ways by the clergy, heads of families, and principals of schools."

English Churchman.

This day, Fifth Edition, cloth, 2s.; calf, 3s

HOLY THOUGHTS and 'PRAYERS, arranged for Daily Use on each Day of the Week, according to the stated Hours of Prayer. To which are added, Prayer and Meditations on the Holy Eucharist, together with Devotions for other special Subjects and Seasons.

This day, fcap. 8vo. 2s. sewed; 2s. 6d. cloth, the Authorized Edition of the

SERMONS PREACHED in ST. PAUL'S

London: BELL & DALDY, 186, Fleet-street. | London: J. F. HOPE, 16, Great Marlborough-st.

THE HANDEL FESTIVAL-Price Sixpence Handel's Messish, the Words comblete, with all the Airs.

Rection with the above, I arred in Egypt, 6t.—Aiso, Messish, complete, 1s. 4d. and 2s.—Israel in Egypt, 6t.—Aiso, Messish, complete, 1s. 4d. and 2s.—Israel in Egypt, 2s.—The Dettingen Te Deum, 1s.

London: Robert Cocks & Co. New Burlington-street.

CONTINUATION OF ALISON'S EUROPE.

CONCLUDING VOLUME.

THE HISTORY OF EUROPE,
FROM THE FALL OF NAPOLEON TO THE ACCESSION OF LOUIS NAPOLEON.

By SIR ARCHIBALD ALISON, BART., D.C.L. Vol. VIII., 908 pp . and Index Volume, 320 pp ; price together, 21a 6d.

together, 24s. ed.

The Contents of Vol. VIII, include
War in China in 1841-23, and of India from the Affahanistan disaster Ill the India from the Affahanistan disaster Ill the India from the Fall of Louis Philippe to the Assumption of the Imperial Crown by Louis Napoleon in 1852- Insurrection in Italy, and War between Austria and Sardinia in 1848-49-Austria Hungarian War-Intervention of Russia-Domestic History of Great Britain, 1843-25, &c. &c.
The Work is now complete in Eight Vols, and Index Volume, Demy Octavo, price &f. 7s. 6d, uniform with the "Library Edition" of the Author's "History of Europe from the French Revolution" of the Author's "History of Europe from the French Revolution" of the Author's "History of Europe from the French Revolution and Blackwood & Sons, Edinburgh and London.

2nd Edition, price 3a 6d.

COMMON SENSE; or, Deception detected in Church, Law, Physic, Army, Navy, Fine Arts, Science, and Luterature.

Luterature.

Luterature.

Co. (late Bogue), 86, Fleet-street, London.

ROBERT HERRICK'S POETICAL WORKS, A Biographical Memoir, by E. WALFORD, M.A.
Reeves & Turner, 23s, Strand, London.

Now ready, fcap. 8vo. price 5

POEMS of the FIELDS and the TOWN.

By JOHN ALFRED LANGFORD,
Author of 'The Lamp of Life, &c.

London: Simpkin, Marshall & Co.

Just published,

GLANCE at the RISE and CONSTITU-DON (in a letter to the Editor of The Times, by John PYE, Honorary Method for the Times, by John PYE, and Author of Patronage of British Art. John Van Voorst, Paternoster-row.

J. F. HOPE'S ANNOUNCEMENTS.

SHERIDAN AND HIS TIMES.

By AN OCTOGENARIAN,
Who Stood by his Knee in Youth, and Sat at his Table in Manhood.

In 2 vols.

"Whatever Sheridan has done, or chosen to do, has been par excellence always the best of its kind. He has written the best connedy, the best opers, the best farce, (it is only too good for a farce), and the best address—the monologue on Garrick. And to crown all, delivered the very best oration, the famous Begum Speech, ever conceived, or head in this country. —Srios.

HISTORICAL RECOLLECTIONS

REIGN OF WILLIAM THE FOURTH:

Including the PARLIAMENTARY REFORMATION of GREAT BRITAIN and IRELAND. In 2 vols. [About June 25th.

1 vol. demy 8vo, price 10s. 6d.

MAN:

CONSIDERED IN RELATION TO A PRESENT AND FUTURE STATE OF BEING.

By the Rev. John Lockhart Ross, M.A. Vicar of Avebury-cum-Winterbourn, Monkton, Wilts, Author of 'The Traces of Primitive Truth,' The Church and the Civil Power,' Letters on Secession to Rome, 22.

FRANK MARLAND'S MANU-SCRIPTS;

Or. MEMOIRS OF A MODERN TEMPLAR. By F. FREDERICK BRANDT.

Post 8vo. price 10s. 6d.

ZYME

THE MASKELYNES OF MASKELYNE.

CHURCH of ENGLAND PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAIT GALLERY

In Parts, at 2s. 6d. each, or framed at 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. NOW READY.

Archbishop of Canterbury.
Bishop of Durham.
Bishop of Exeter.
Bishop of Oxford.
Bishop of Carlisle.
Bishop of Ripon.
Dean of Westminster.
Dean of Winchester.
Dean of Canterbury.

ADY.
Dean of Chichester.
Dean of Ely.
Rev. W. Thomson, D.D.
Rev. Canon Stowell.
Rev. Canon Girdlestone,
Rev. Thomas Jackson,
Rev. Derwent Coleridge.
Rev. Daniel Moore.

IN JUNE

Rev. Dr. Cureton. Rev. Dr. J. A. Hessey Archdescon Robinson. Hev. J. E. Kempe. Each Portrait, with fac-simile Signature and Biographical Notice. A single Portrait free by post, on receipt of thirty postage stamps.

Mason & Co. 7, Amen-corner, Paternoster-row, and 28, Old Bondstreet. and all Booksellers.

THE BENCH and the BAR: a Series of Photographic Portraits of Eminent Lawyers. In Parts, at 4s. each, or framed at 7s. and 9s. NOW READY.

Lord Justice Knight Bruce, Vice-Chancellor Wood. The Attorney-General. The Solicitor-General.

M. D. Hill, Esq., Recorder of Birmingham. Samuel Warren, Esq., Recorder of Hull, &c.

IN JUNE.
R. Malins, Esq. M.P. Each Portrait, with fac-simile Signature and Biographical Notice. A single Portrait free by post, on receipt of price in postage stamps.

Mason & Co. 7, Amen-corner, Paternoster-row, and 28, Old Bond-street: and all Booksellers.

BRITISH ARCHÆOLOGY: its Progress and Demands. Being Two Papers. I. British Actiquities, elicapresent treatment and their real delins. II. The property of the prope

DUEL AFTER THE MASQUERADE. A. Lithograph by Sirouix, after Gerome's celebrated Picture. Published by E. Gambart & Co. 23, Berners-street, Oxford-street, Now ready for delivery.
Artists Proof, signed by Gerome & Sirouix, 22. 22.; Proofs B. L. 12 48; Prints, 18.; Coloured, 259.

Now ready, in 1 vol. erown 8vo. cloth, price 6s. CONANT'S HISTORY of the ENGLISH BIBLE. Edited and with Introductory Preface by the Rev.
C. H. SPURGEON.
London: Arthur Hall, Virtue & Co. 25, Paternoster-row.

Price 1s. 6d.

THOUGHTS on a few SUBJECTS of POLI-TICAL ECONOMY. By JOHN CAZENOVE. Simpkin, Marshall & Co. Stationers' Hall-court.

EVENTEEN YEARS' EXPERIENCE of the TREATMENT of DISEASE by MEANS of WATER, BY ANDREW HENDERSON, M.R. CS., Member of the Pathological Society of London; Consulting Surgeon to Sudbrook Park Hydropathic Establishment, London; Henry Renshaw, 356, Strand.

Just published, price 5s. cloth, NEW HANDBOOK FOR TOURISTS. DELGIUM, AIX-LA-CHAPELLE, an colloque an entirely new Guide-Book for Travellen with numerous Historical and Archeological Notes, Plans, and Maps. By W. H. J. WEALE, Member of the Royal Society of Fine Arts, chem. London: Wm. Dawson & Sons, 74, Cannon-street, E.C.

POPULAR TALES BY F. E. SMEDLEY, ESQ.

FRANK FARLEIGH; or, Scenes from the Life of a Private Pupil. 2a 6d. boards; 3s. 6d. cloth gilt.

LEWIS ARUNDEL; or, the Railroad of Life.

HARRY COVERDALE'S COURTSHIP, d WHAT CAME OF IT. 22. 6d. boards; 3s. cd. cloth gilt.

The FORTUNES of the COLVILLE FAMILY. Cuts by Phiz. 1s. 6d, boards; 2s. 6d, cloth gilt.

Arthur Hall, Virtue & Co. 25, Paternoster-row.

BOTANY WEEDS and WILD FLOWERS. By LADY WILKINSON. Post 8vo. with Coloured Engravings and

MANUAL of BRITISH BOTANY; containing the Flowering Plants and Ferns, arranged according to their Natural Orders. By C. C. BABINGTON, M.A., P.R.S. F.L.S. &c. Dearth Edition, with many additions and corrections, 10s. 6d. cloth

ELEMENTARY COURSE of BOTANY; Structural, Physiological, and Systematic. With a brief Outline of the Geographical and Geological Distribution of Plants. By ARTHUR HENFREY, F.R.S., L.S., &c., Professor of Botany in King's College, London, Examiner in Natural Science to the Royal Military Academy and to the Society of Arts. Illustrated by upwards of 500 W odculat. Fost 8vo. 12s. 6d.

Also by Professor Henfrey.

RUDIMENTS of BOTANY. A Familiar Introduction to the Study of Plants. With Illustrative Woodcuts. Second Edition, foolscap 870. 3a. 6d. A Familiar

A SET of SIX COLOURED DIAGRAMS illustrative of the Rudiments of Botany; for Schools and Lectures. 156. John Van Voorst, 1, Paternoster-row.

MR. MURRAY'S HANDBOOKS FOR TRAVELLERS.

FOR THE CONTINENT, &c.

HANDBOOK OF TRAVEL TALK.—ENG-LISH, FRENCH, ITALIAN, and GERMAN. 18mo. 3s. 6d.

HANDBOOK FOR NORTH GERMANY.—
HOLLAND, BELGIUM, PRUSSIA, and the BHINE to SWITZERLAND. Map. Post 8vo. 10s.

HANDBOOK FOR SOUTH GERMANY.—
The TYROL, BAVARIA, AUSTRIA, SALZBURG, STYRIA, HUNGARY, and the DANUBE from ULM to the BLACK SEA. Map. Post ovo. 10s.

HANDBOOK FOR SWITZERLAND. — The ALPS of SAVOY and PIEDMONT. Maps. Post Svo. 90.

HANDBOOK FOR FRANCE.—NOR-MANDY, BRITTANY, the FRENCH ALPS, DAUPHINE, PROVENCE, and the PYRENEES. Maps. Post 870, 10a.

HANDBOOK FOR SPAIN.—ANDALUSIA, RONDA, GRENADA, CATALONIA, GALLICIA, the BASQUES, ARRAGON, &c. Maps. 5 vols post 8vo. 302.

HANDBOOK FOR PORTUGAL.-LISBON,

HANDBOOK FOR CENTRAL ITALY.—
SOUTH TUSCANY and the PAPAL STATES. Map. Post
870. 72.

HANDBOOK FOR ROME AND ITS ENVI-

HANDBOOK FOR NORTH ITALY .- SAR-DINIA, LOMBARDY, FLORENCE, VENICE, PARMA, PIACENZA, MODENA, LUCCA, and TUSCANY as far as the VAL D'ARNO, Maps. Post 8vo. 12s.

HANDBOOK FOR SOUTH ITALY.—The TWO SICILIES, NAPLES, POMPEII, HERCULANEUM, VESUVIUS, &c. Maps. Post 870. 10s.

HANDBOOK OF PAINTING.—The ITA-LIAN SCHOOLS. Woodcuts. 2 vols post 8vo. 30s.

LIAN SCHOOLS. Weedcuts. 3 vols post 8 ro. 30s.

HANDBOOK FOR EGYPT.—The NILE,
ALEXANDRIA, CAIRO, and THEBES. Map. Post
8 vo. 13s.

HANDBOOK FOR SYRIA AND PALES-TINE.—The PENINSULA of SINAI, EDOM, and the SYRIAN DESERT. Maps. 2 vols. post 8vo. 24a. HANDBOOK FOR INDIA.—BOMBAY and MADRAS. Map. 2 vols. post 8vo. 24s.

HANDBOOK FOR GREECE.—The IONIAN INLANDS, ALBANIA, THESSALY, and MACEDONIA. Maps. Post 8vo. 15a.

HANDBOOK FOR DENMARK,-NORWAY

HANDBOOK FOR RUSSIA. - FINLAND and ICELAND, Maps. Post 8vo. 12s.

FOR ENGLAND.

HANDBOOK OF MODERN LONDON. With

HANDBOOK FOR KENT AND SUSSEX.

HANDBOOK FOR SURREY, HANTS, AND THE ISLE OF WIGHT. Man

HANDBOOK FOR WILTS, DORSET, AND SOMERSET. Maps. Post 8vo.

HANDBOOK FOR DEVON AND CORN-WALL. Maps. Post 870. JOHN MURRAY, Albemarle-street.

Just published, in post 8vo. price 2a cloth,

A METHODICAL and COMPLETE TREA.

TISE on FRENCH PRONUNCIATION, illustrated by upwards and German Languages. A. S. JUNOS, Teacher of the London: Longman & Co. Chester: J. Bayne.

Just published, in 8vo. price 7a 6d. cloth,

THE PSYCHOLOGY of SHAKSPEARE,

By J. C. BUCKNILL, M.D., Editor of the 'Journal of Mental Science'; Joint-Author of 'A Manual of Psychological Medicine.'

Nearly ready, by the same Author SHAKSPEARE'S MEDICAL KNOWLEDGE. London: Longman, Brown, and Co. Paternoster-row.

MR. DENDY'S NEW ILLUSTRATED HANDBOOK OF THE HEBRIDES OR WESTERN ISLES.

Just published, in crown 8vo. with a coloured Map and a Vignettes engraved on Wood from Sketches made on the spot by the Author, price 5s. 6d. cloth,

THE WILD HEBRIDES. By WALTER
L COOPER DENDY, Author of 'The Beautiful Islets of Britains—The Islets of the Channel' (price 4s. éd.), &c.
"We are delighted to join Mr. Dendy in his trip."—Atheneus.
London: Longman, Brown, and Co. Paternoster-row.

Now ready, 8vo. cloth, 7a. 6d.

STRICTURES on Mr. COLLIER'S NEW
ANDER DYCE.

ANDER DYCE.

By the same Author, 8vo. cloth, 5a.

A FEW NOTES on SHAKESPEARE, with Occasional Remarks on the Emendations of the Manuscript Corrections in Mr. Collier's Folio of 1632.

London: John Russell Smith, 3s, 8oho-square.

MR. M. A. LOWER'S WORKS.

N

T

R

B

per del

MR. M. A. LOWER'S WORKS.

FINGLISH SURNAMES. An Essay on Humoron; with severa illustrative Appendices. By MARK ANTONY LOWER, M.A. 2 vols post 8vo. Third Edition, energy of the property of th

CURIOSITIES OF HERALDRY, with UILLUSTRATIONS FROM OLD ENGLISH WRITERS. With Illuminated Title-page, and numerous Engravings from Designs by the Author. Soc. cloth, 142.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO LITERATURE, HISTORICAL, ANTIQUARIAN, and METRICAL. Post Syo. Woodcuts, cloth, 7s. 6d.

CHRONICLE OF BATTEL ABBEY, in SUSSEX. Originally compiled in Latin by a Monk of Establishment, and now first translated, with Notes, and an attract of the subsequent History of the Abbey. Svo. with illus-tions, cloth, 92.

John Russell Smith, 36, Soho-square, London.

NEW PARLIAMENT.

MR. DOD'S PARLIAMENTARY COM-PANION, containing the NEW PARLIAMENT, Royal 32mo, morocco gift, Whittaker & Co. Ave-Maria-lane.

Shortly will be published, in 1 vol. 8vo.

NOTUM TESTAMENTUM GRÆCE e codice ALEXANDRINO a C. H. WUIDE, olim descriptum. This volume will be a faithful and accurate reproduction in modern type of the New Testament Fast of the above named celebrated MS. It will be printed uniformly with the recently published citizen of the Coder Vaticanus. Frospectus will be issued in a day or two.

London: David Nutt; and Williams & Norgate.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

MACKAY'S LIFE and LIBERTY in AMERICA. 2 vols. Post 8vo. with Ten Tinted Illustrations, price 21s. cloth. [Now ready.

Edited by LADY SHELLEY. SHELLEY MEMORIALS. One Volume. [In a few days.

The FOOL of QUALITY. By HENRY BROOKE. New and Revised Edition. With Biographical Preface by the Rev. CHARLES KINGSLEY. 2 vols. post 8vo. with Portrait of the Author. [In a few days. NEW NOVELS.

COUSIN STELLA; or, Conflict. By the Author of 'Violet Bank and its Inmates. [In a few days.

CONFIDENCES. By the Author of 'Rita.' One Volume.

By A. J. BARROWCLIFFE, Author of TRUST for TRUST. [Just published. Amberhill.' 3 vols SMITH, ELDER & Co. 65, Cornhill.

E,

ER of

MR. NEWBY'S NEW PUBLICATIONS.

This day is published, in 2 vols. price 21s. cloth

A PANORAMA of the NEW WORLD. By KINAHAN CORNWALLIN, Author of "Two Journeys to Japan," The New El Dorado, 'ac.

"Nothing can be more spiritele, graphic, and full of interest: nothing more piclorial or brilliant in its execution. It is all life and an orbit the second of the second of the second or the s tion."-Examiner.

"A book that will be read, for it is fresh and sparkling, lively, true, and original."-Morning Herald.

AMERICAN PHOTOGRAPHS. By the Misses TURNBULL. In 2 vols. 31s.

OUR PLAGUE SPOT.

1 vol. post 8vo. 10s. 6d.

[Just ready;

DEDICATED TO POERIO, THE NEAPOLITAN EXILE. NIL DESPERANDUM; or, an ESCAPE from ITALIAN DUNGEONS. From the Memoirs of PRIGNAYL. 1 vol. 10s. 6d.

We find the volume entertaining, and really Italian in spirit."

"There is much fervour in this romantic narrative of suffering."

AUTUMN IN SILESIA,

AUSTRIA PROPER, and the OBER ENNS. By the Auth of 'Travels in Bohemia,' &c. Price 10a. 6d. [In a few days

THINGS worth knowing about HORSES. By the late HARRY HIEOVER. Price Se

REVELATIONS of a HORSE.

BETTY WESTMINSTER; or, the WORSHIP of WEALTH. By W. PLATT, Esq.

the WORSHIP of WEALTH. By W. PLAAT, Esq.

"A quaint title, but a capital book, for the moral it teaches is a healthy one; and we recommend it to all money-loying Westminsters, male and female, for in it they will be taught that wealth is not the only requisite to insure happiness—Globe.

"Certainly an original work. The characters of the old miser and his miserly sons and daughters are all original conceptions, and well drawn—all a secretical by a muster hand." John Fall. and well drawn—all shows the substance of the old miser and will draw and the spirit; the interest never flags."—Navad and Milkary Gazetts.

"A book of greater interest has not come under our notice for many years."—Review.
"There is a good deal of spirit in these volumes; the varieties of miserlings in the Westminster family are well drawn. There is taked thewen in the book.—Athenesses.

REUBEN STERLING.

"The design and execution of 'Reuben Sterling' entitle it to the promai of all classes. The author has with considerable skill delineated the many-sided character of Burns, the Scottish Poet."

"Mr. Cox manifests a more than ordinary graps of intellect, and the simplicity and beauty of his style are certain to gain for Heuben Sterling" a permanent fame. "Advertiser.

BEVERLEY PRIORY.

"This is an admirable tale. Perhaps some of the incidents are almost too painful, but they cannot be passed over, so intense is the interest excited."—Naval and Military Gazette. "It is unquestionably clever."—Examiner.

THE CAMPBELLS. By THOMAS SOLLY, Esq. [Now ready.

EBB AND FLOW.

SYBIL GREY.

The PARSON and the POOR.

GEORGIE BARRINGTON.

"The manile of the Author of 'Jane Eyre' has descended on the Author of 'Georgie Barrington.' Like Miss Bront's works, this novel is full of power, full of interest, and full of those faccinations and spells, which none but the extraordinarily gifted can from all the congle Barrington, like 'Jane Eyre, "till stand apart own at the congle Barrington, like 'Jane Eyre, will stand apart own all the style and thought, are the two novels that must take the reading public by storm. They are both of the highest order of Erneld, Edwinder of the common than the common that the continuous works of Scioo, both in incident and the development of character."

"There is a sparkling, joyous tone evined throughout these valences, which is perfectly refreshing in these days of bookmaking. *Review.

NEW WORKS.

The following are now ready:

RECOLLECTIONS by SAMUEL ROGERS, edited by his Nephew, W. SHARPE. Comprising

FOX, BURKE, GRATTAN, PORSON, TOORE,

Talleyrand,
Lord Essains,
Sir Walter Scott,
Lord Grenville, and
The Duke of Wellington

Fcap. 8ro. price 5s. cloth ..... [On Thursday next.

OUR NAVAL POSITION and POLICY. By a NAVAL PEER. Map and Plan .... 12s.

MRS. JAMESON'S LECTURES on the SOCIAL EMPLOYMENTS of WOMEN. New Edi-tion, with Letter to Lord John Russell. 22.

MRS. SCHIMMELPENNINCK'S ESSAYS on BEAUTY, the TEMPERAMENTS, and AR-CHITECTURE 122 6d

FIRST IMPRESSIONS of the NEW

MR. NASSAU SENIOR'S JOURNAL kept in TURKEY and GREECE in 1857 and 1858.... 19s.

THE PYRENEES, WEST and EAST.

A LADY'S TOUR ROUND MONTE ROSA, and Visits to Eight of the Italian Valleys .... 14s.

9. PEAKS, PASSES, and GLACIERS.

By Members of the Alpine Club. Edited by JOHN BALL,
M.B. I.A. President

REV. Dr. J. H. NEWMAN'S LEC-TURES and ESSAYS on UNIVERSITY SUBJECTS. 64

MR. J. F. MAGUIRE'S Work on

ROME, its RULER and INSTITUTIONS. Second Edition, enlarged 102. 6d. 13.

PEOPLE'S EDITION of the Rev. SYDNEY SMITH'S WORKS, now complete, in 2 vols price S. cloth. In a few days.

PEOPLE'S EDITION of MOORE'S NATIONAL AIRS, with the MUSIC, in course of publication in Is Numbers.

PEOPLE'S EDITION of MOORE'S POETICAL WORKS, in course of publication in 1s. PARTS.

JOB: A Dramatic Poem. By EDWARD HENRY PEMBER, M.A .....

PYCROFT'S CRICKET-FIELD. Third Edition, enlarged; with 2 Plates .....

London: LONGMAN, BROWN, and CO.

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPÆDIA

KNOWLEDGE. USEFUL

Completion of the Supplement.

In Demy 8vo. 5s. cloth extra, VOLUME XIII., OR SUPPLEMENTAL VOLUME.

Containing 2,700 Articles on every subject, carefully written up to the present time.

By P. A. NUTTALL, LL.D.

Invaluable to the 20,000 purchasers of the original 12 volumes, it now enables the Publishers (who, in order to have a large sale, have determined to issue this new Edition at the lowest possible price,) to announce

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPÆDIA

in its entirety, as the cheapest, latest completed, and most compact Cyclopædia in the English language.

Sets are now published as follows, viz. :-

In 13 vols. Demy 8vo. cloth				£2	7	6
- Quires, for binding				1	17	6
Half Calf, lettered				3	5	0
						0
OR TI	HE
13 vols. bound in 7, Cloth extra					2	6
	, m	arbled	edges	3	7	6
- Half Russia, m	arb	led eds	es	3	10	0

Its General Contents embrace :-

AGRICULTURE—comprehending Husbandry, Rural Economy, and Gardening.

ANATOMY—Physiology, Medicine, Surgery, &c.

ARCHITECTURE and SCULPTURE, Civil and Eccle-

ARTS—Inventions, Trades, Manufactures, &c. ASTRONOMY.

BIOGRAPHY. BOTANY.

GEOGRAPHY and TOPOGRAPHY. GEOLOGY and MINERALOGY.

HISTORY—Chronology, Epochs, Dynasties, &c. LAWS and GOVERNMENT.

LITERATURE—Philology, Poesy, Education, &c.
METALS and METALLURGY.
MILITARY and NAVAL AFFAIRS.

PHYSICAL SCIENCES

RELIGION—Priests, Doctrines, &c. SOCIAL, POLITICAL, and DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

ZOOLOGY, &c.

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPÆDIA-RE-ISSUE.

For the convenience of many, THE NATIONAL CYCLO-PEDIA is being Re-published in

Forty-eight One Shilling Monthly Parts.

Thirty-one have already appeared, each containing a por-tion of Supplementary matter, separately paged. When complete, this will form a handsome Supplemental Volume, bringing up to present date the entire work.

NOTICE.

After the completion of the Re-issue, the Volumes (with the exception of the Supplement) will not be sold separate; all parties having portions of the NATIONAL CYCLOPÆDIA are therefore requested to purchase at once what they are deficient of.

London: ROUTLEDGE, WARNES & ROUTLEDGE, Farringdon-street.

In Monthly Parts, price 6d. each,

TALES FROM BENTLEY.

Comprising the Stories of some of the most Eminent Writers in Bentley's Miscellany.

BICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street.

Price 5a. 21st Thousand.

THE INGOLDSBY LEGENDS.

RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street, Publisher in Ordinary to Her Majesty.

Price 6s. 4th Edition, with Illustrations,

BUCKLAND'S CURIOSITIES OF NATURAL HISTORY.

RICHARD BENTLEY. New Burlington-street. Publisher in Ordinary to Her Majesty.

Price 4s. Sixth Edition, with 19 Illustrations,

SERMONS IN STONES: Or. SCRIPTURE CONFIRMED BY GEOLOGY.

By DOMINICK McCAUSLAND, LL.D.

RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington street, Publisher in Ordinary to Her Majesty.

Price 5s. neatly bound.

AUGUSTUS SALA'S JOURNEY DUE NORTH.

RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street, Publisher in Ordinary to Her Majesty.

Price 5a neatly bound.

ANTHONY TROLLOPE'S THREE CLERKS.

"Of all Mr. Trollope's novels, perhaps the greatest ability is displayed in 'The Three Clerks,' a really brilliant tale of official life."—Times.

RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street,

Price 6s. handsomely bound,

MY LITERARY LIFE:

With Selections from my favourite Poets and Prose Writers.

By MARY RUSSELL MITFORD.

'RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street, Publisher in Ordinary to Her Majesty.

Price 5s. each, neatly bound,

MISS MANNING'S POPULAR STORIES.

THE VILLAGE BELLES.

THE LADIES OF BEVER HOLLOW.

RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street.

Price 2s. 6d. neatly bound.

RITA: AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street.

13, GREAT MARLBOROUGH-STREET.

HURST & BLACKETT'S

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

SIXTEEN YEARS of an ARTIST'S

SIXTEEN VEARS of an ARTIST'S
LIFE in MOROCCO, SPAIN, and the CANARY ISLANDS. By Mrs. ELIZABETH MURRAY. 2 vols.
Was Muray, wife, we believe, of the English Consul at Tentifications.
Mrs. Muray, wife, we believe, of the English Consul at Tentifications.
In the Consultations of the English Consultations of the English Consultations of the Army of the Consultation of

The JEWS in the EAST. By the Rev.

P. BEATON, M.A., Chaplain to the Forces. From the German of Da. Franks. 2 vols. 21s.
"Those persons whe are curious in maters connected with John with the control of the c

THE DUKE of BUCKINGHAM'S

MEMOIRS of the COURT of GEORGE IV. From Original Family Documents. 2 vols. with Portraits.

"These volumes, disclosing as they do the motives of individuals, the secret movements of parties, and the causes of public vents, are of high value to the student, and exceedingly interesting to the general reader."—Daily News.

SIX YEARS IN RUSSIA. By an ENGLISH LADY. 2 vols. with Illustrations, 21s.
"The extracts we have made will afford some idea of the variety contained in these volumes, and the interesting and amusing nature of their contents."—Athenaum.

HENRY III. KING OF FRANCE HIS COURT AND TIMES. By MISS FREER. 3 vols. with fine Portraits, 31s. 6d. bound.

LODGE'S PEERAGE & BARONET-

AGE for 1859. Under the especial Patronage of Her Majesty and H. R.H. the Prince Consort; and Corrected throughout by the Noblity. 28th Edition, 1 vol. royal 8vo. with the Arms beautifully engraved, handsomely bound, with gilt edges, 31s. 6d.

ATKINSON'S TRAVELS IN

ORIENTAL and WESTERN SIBERIA, CHINESE TARTARY, &c. Royal 8vo. with Map, and 50 beau-tiful Illustrations, coloured Plates, &c., from the Au-thor's Original Drawings, 2l. 2s, bound.

NATHALIE. By Julia Kavanagh.

New Edition. Forming the Fourth Volume of HURST & BLACKETT'S STANDARD LIBRARY OF CHEAP EDITIOSS OF POPULAR MODERN WORKS, price 5s. each, elegantly printed, bound, and Illustrated. "Nathalie' is by much Miss Kavanagh's best imaginative effort. We should not soon come to an end were we to specify all the delicate touches and attractive pictures which place' Nathalie' high among books of its class."—Albencum.

THE NEW NOVELS.

MIRIAM COPLEY. By J. C. Jeaf-FRESON, Author of 'Novels and Novelists,' 'Crewe Rise,' &c. 3 vols.
"'Mirism Copley' is by no unknown hand. Mr. Jeaffreson has already made his reputation, and this clever production cannot fail to add to it. The author's unaffected, vigorous style and vivid colouring must be attractive to all readers."—John Bull.

A MOTHER'S TRIAL. Author of 'The Discipline of Life,' 'The Two Brothers,' &c. 1 vol. with Illustrations by Birker Foster, 7s. 6d. bound.

THROUGH THE SHADOWS. By the Author of 'SIDNEY GREY.' 3 vols.

NEWTON DOGVANE. By Francis

FRANCIS. 3 vols. With Illustrations by LEECH "' Newton Dogvane' is a capital sporting novel. It bids fair to ecome one of the most popular of its highly popular class."

"An uncommonly clever, amusing, and original novel. The orting part is full of life."—Globe.

WOODLEIGH. By the Author of

"WILDFLOWER," ONE-AND-TWENTY, &c. 3 vols.
"This book has sterling merit. It is likely to sustain and extend an air-eady high reputation."—The Press.
""Woodleigh' is a clever novel; and better still, it is a consistent work of art."—Spectator.

HELEN LINDSAY; or, the Trial of FAITH. By a CLERGYMAN'S DAUGHTER. 2 v. [Just ready.

Routledge, Warnes & Routledge's

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

RELIGION IN CHINA.

By the Rev. JOSEPH EDKINS, B.A.
[In fcap. 8vo. price 2a 6d cloth extra,
The RELIGIOUS CONDITION of the CHINESE; with Observations on the Prospect of Christian Conversion amongst that People. By the Rev. JOSEPH EDKINS. BA.

ELIZA COOK'S POEMS. COMPLETE EDITION.

The POETICAL WORKS of ELIZA

ROUTLEDGE'S NEW LIBRARY OF FICTION. NEW VOLUME.

In post 8vo. 5a cloth extra,
WHO IS TO HAVE IT? By the Author of 'The Netherwoods of Otterpool.'

Recently published in this Series The MAN of FORTUNE. By Albany al

tı

w

re

at

vi

T of

gr

gran

fo

ti re

th

sh

sī fr

Sdi

E

fo di

w b

FONBLANQUE, Jun.

HOLYWOOD HALL. By James

RIPLE BOOKS FOR RIPLE CLUBS, ETC. Price 2s. 6d. half boun

The RIFLE, and HOW TO USE IT.

By HANS BUSK, First Lieut. Victoria Rifles. The Fifth Edition, with Illustrations.

The RIFLE VOLUNTEERS, How to Organize and Drill them. By HANS BUSK. The Sixth Thousand.

MARTIN F. TUPPER on RIFLE CLUBS. Third Edition, with Additions. 6d.

RIFLE TARGET REGISTER. By LIEUT, BUSK. 8vo. 1s.

W. H. BUSSELL ON RIFLE CLUBS. Price 1s. 6d. cloth limp,

OBSERVATIONS on RIFLE CLUBS,

Volunteer Corps, in their relation to the Requiar Military Forces, and to the System of National Defence; with Bemarks on Long-Range Target, and on Rifes and Rifemen, Accountements, Uniforms, &c. By W. H. RUSSELL, The Times Special Corruspondens.

HANS BUSK ON THE NAVIES OF THE WORLD. In post 8vo. 7s. 6d. cloth extr

The NAVIES of the WORLD, their Present State of Efficiency compared. By HANS BUSK, Author of 'The Rifle, and How to Use it.' With Illustra-tions.

In 1 vol. post 8vo, price 5s. with Portraits The VICISSITUDES of ITALY since the Congress of Vienna. By A. L. GRETTON the congress of vienna. By A. L. GRETTON.

A historical summary of the Revolutions and other Remarkable Political Events which have occurred in the various Italian States, from the property of the property of the States, from the Company of the Co

HOGG on the MICROSCOPE. The FOURTH EDITION, with 500 Illustrations. Post 8vo. cloth, 64

SHERIDAN KNOWLES'S DRA-MATIC WORKS, A New Edition, in 1 vol. post 878.

The GOLDEN RULE; or, Stories illustrative of the Ten Commandments. By the Author of 'A Trap to Catch Sunbeam.' With Illustrations. Feap. 876.

The ANCHOR of HOPE; or, New Testament Lessons for Children. By MARIA WRIGHT, Author of 'The Bow of Faith.' 18mo. cloth, la 6d.

The BOW of FAITH; or, Old Tes-

London: ROUTLEDGE, WARNES & ROUTLEDGE, 2, Farringdon-street.

LONDON, SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1859.

LITERATURE

Our Naval Position and Policy. By a Naval Peer. (Longman & Co.)

It is the old question:-what constitutes a State? Not moat or mound, gold or brass; but State? Not most or mound, gold or brass; but men. And what makes a navy? Symmetrical lines, oak, iron, hemp, vast dockyards, or the typical sailor? French and German writers— and, for the chief part, English writers—forget this question. Yet, does it not constitute our Naval Position? The formulas of philosophy may teach us something; mechanics sophy may each us sometime; mechanics may have a share; the statistician, certainly, claims a voice; but historical evidence stands the highest. We cannot say, or pretend to know, why the ancient Northmen were naturalized on the waters; but traditions, which scepticism has left unassailed, and testimony which no criticism can touch, build up the annals of that mighty seafaring race. What they were in Cæsar's time they are now, and have been, far and wide as we can trace their conquests, settlements, and adventures. Spain Italy tell us how those Northerns prospered while their salt basis was within reach; but never did the crews of the crested galleys triumph when beyond the influence, so to speak, of foam and spray, of roller and breaker. Modern usage prescribes that no naval officer shall sit on a court-martial unless within sight of his pendant; so, also, as it seems, some un-written code of nations determined that the heroes of a frozen Salamis should ever conquer within maritime boundaries, or, at least, so near the sea that they might suppose themselves resting upon it, as an army rests on the strength of some huge and impregnable fortress. Unconquering inland, the Northmen were invariably conquerors on the coast; all Europeat any rate, whatever part of Europe they visited—points this moral and adorns this tale. The epic is that of a sailor race, from the days of The Triads to those of William Peel and that gallant Agamemnon, which he "handled like a fiddle-bow." To little purpose shall we investigate the origin or reason of the maritime genius and propensity characterizing our nation. It cannot be traced to our insular position, because our forefathers found their way hither from a continent. It must not be ascribed to our close relations with the brine, since other tribes have equally fraternized with the unfathomable. We have existed, in this respect, upon a level with the Malays, the Pacific Islanders, and those land-loving serfs whose cottages sprinkle the shores of the Tartar Gulf. Whence, then, sprang the British sailor? From the old stock; from the hereditary sea-rovers; from the fellows with salt blood and a love for keel and helm. Such were the men in whom the spirit of Coke delighted. The king's ships, in his day, were royal palaces," "moving castles and barbicans"; among the vessels of other nations they were "like lions among silly beasts, or falcons among fearful fowls." Nor was the English writer more flattering than the Roman, who thought none could rival us in our capacity for resisting "the assaults of storms." But why dig bare these deeply-laid foundations of our naval history? Are we to be proud because Edgar was rowed on the Dee by eight tributary kings, or because Canute was rebuked by a ripple? The problem of our time is, whether Great Britain has really an incomparable fleet. Dibdin will not help us in that investigation. We want facts, not songs. The dramatic sailor, who can dispose of ten French lubbers before breakfast, is no antidote to Brest or Cherbourg.

Have we a sufficient navy, and do we, practically, rule the waves?

"A Naval Peer" thinks decidedly not. His book is intended as a denunciation and a warn-Without hinting at that which is manifestly intended as a secret, we may say that the work comes to us as one of authority. It is not an amateur who writes. If we are told to listen for danger-signals it is by one who has a right to admonish. Better have no navy at all, he says, than such a navy as ours, in the middle of the nineteenth century! This is a startling shot, fired across the bows of our British across the bows of our brisis patriotism, so accustomed to the audacious "Mariners of England." But we must be brought to think seriously sometimes about connivings and conspiracies abroad. We cannot rely for ever and ever upon forests of masts in the Thames, inky hulls, patched sails, and lurching able seamen. Certain uncomfortable questions have been put to the Navy, which it has not yet known how to answer, except by a band of music and an extra bounty. A frenzy of embarrassing independence has seized the seafaring classes; we can no longer persuade them that, after a short cruise, they may fry watches or light their pipes with Bank of England notes; they have learnt how, during the great war, floggings and hangings were more abundant than prize-money; they remember the crimp and the press-gang, and that frightful legend of a Lord Chancellor spirited away to Toulon, where he was taught, by harsh tutors, the difference between a flush-deck and a high-poop, the cock-pit and the cross-trees. There is something to do aboard ship in this degenerate epoch besides flouting a yellow handkerchief, hailing a bumboat, catching parrots to sell on Ratcliffe Highway, or hitching up a pair of intolerably blue and broad trousers. Civilization has done its worst under spanker booms and hatches. Or is it that we have abandoned the melo-dramatic theory of a sailor's life, the cant of novels and songs, and yarns about blue-jackets, who are all the cutlassbearing lovers of black-eyed Susans? Susan's black eye, it may be feared, is generally the result of a promiscuous back-handed fight in the cosmopolitan parish of Stepney.

Many chapters in the treatise of "a Naval Peer" are written lightly and satirically. Sometimes the form is that of parody; at others, of dialogue. But the purport of the volume is unmistakeably serious. The author, whom we may guess as one wielding a responsible pen, commits himself to the view that our naval forces, as at present organized, are worse than none at all. We cannot be expected to discuss with him this question, however extraordinary its interest, however close it comes to all English sympathies. But we have suggested the one difficulty in the way of accepting these alarmist views; they all leave out of sight the unique British seamen as a sailing, fighting, tempest-quelling being. Where else in the world is there strictly and purely a sailor? Not even in America, we think. Certainly not in France. Scarcely in the Baltic. Russia supplies not one. The Greeks are but coasters and bathers. Roll, hitch, handkerchief, slang, courage, skill, patience, power of mastering the sea, friendship with the waters; all these belong, exuberantly and exclusively, to that Jack Tar who employs, without a deflection of accent, the faithful dialect of Wapping.

Still, it would be national madness to go to sea in search of a fool's paradise. "A Naval

Still, it would be national madness to go to sea in search of a fool's paradise. "A Naval Peer" insists upon this point elaborately. We have a navy, he urges, but, considering what it is, we might more safely be without one. In that case we should have a large army, inland but we may hope that the blood of all our fortifications, entrenched camps, and all the other securities of continental nations. But we rely upon our fleet, which is never in readiness, and upon a system of naval administration only comparable in its impotent dilatoriness with an old-fashioned Chancery suit. Thus, being without military guarantees, we should establish our supremacy at sea. This, the writer maintains, Great Britain has hitherto failed to do. Eight millions sterling are yearly paid for the British navy; but what of the results? France, the "Naval Peer" affirms—in concurrence with Sir Charles Wood—has secured a far larger supply of seamen for her fleet, and has superior facilities for equipping her naval forces upon a sudden emergency. To oppose her, or any other enemy at sea, we have but our blockships, and our aggregate of liners scattered over all the waters of the globe:

"It is worth mentioning here, that about the time when an English minister was making his statement of our invulnerability, a French naval officer was upon a mission to this country, which brought him into contact with an English officer peculiarly and officially conversant with our maritime population. The Frenchman, referring to the immense number of our merchant seamen, observed that in practice they were not, as in France, available for manning our ships of war. This was admitted by the British officer, who qualified the admission by saying, that although we could not get men at the beginning of a war, yet we should after a time; and that of course it would always be our policy to prevent any other power obtaining command of the Channel. 'Obtaining command of the Channel, 'Said the French officer, 'France could do so at any time, under her present arrangements, or rather, has command of the Channel' at this moment.'"

The French Maritime Inscription means, of course, a large fleet with superior celerity; but let us again suggest, is the result equivalent? Were the serf-soldiers shot down at Inkermann comparable with the British Guards? If not, would the forced naval levies of France compete, physically or morally, with our race of hardened volunteers? It is true, however, that while merchant-vessels have filled, men-of-war have been unable to collect their crews,—that the Renown was engaged for five months in obtaining her complement, -and that seamen of late have held back from service in the Royal Navy. We question the "Naval Peer" for an explanation, and his volume supplies it, amply and intelligently. It must be admitted, however, that he puts something like a dismal faith in the probability of invading England, overrun-ning Sussex, and sacking London. Woolwich is defenceless; the Thames lies open; any Dutchman might ascend our sacred river, just as a British commodore might run up to Rouen with sword and fire! And, thus unprotected, we are incessantly chafing, goading, and challenging the Continental powers, particularly France, which the British press has marked for ignominy, insult, and vituperation. Here, according to the authority we quote, there is a clear casus belli, or a pretence which, on a convenient occasion, may be interpreted as meaning the same thing. Consequently, the "Naval Peer" urges, it is unsafe to rely upon our "invincible navi," a country "rising as one man," or the calculation that, should an invasion take place, no French Hector would return to his Hecuba. "Be beaten, or even perish," said the first Napoleon to his subordinate and friend; "but clear the way for me." Suppose thirty Russian three-deckers advancing from the Baltic, and the same number of French first-rates, entering the Channel, what would

N = peradide

In distance as as fast the authors as the authors are also as the authors as the tin

th

a be m m le ou

an

to lo

lis an by kin tich hu pr man fu Pr ns en per ta m sc th B st w be m be a ti Mije it m T gan fo to v CE

Blakes has not yet been spilled. Still, we have an embarrassing prospect:—

"According to the unquestionably correct statements made by the First Lord of the Admiralty, we could, 'in case of emergency' (for the sources relied upon are only available in such a case), collect, possibly 'in a fortnight,' but 'at all events in a month,' a Channel fleet of twenty sail, of which, however, nine would be old blockships, and the eleven remaining ones only, line-of-battle ships. Lord Palmerston has said, "The channel is no longer a barrier; steam navigation has rendered that which was before impassable by a military force nothing more than a river passable by a steam-bridge." Perhaps this view undervalues the "thin streak of sea-sickness" lying between Great Britain and France; but the development of new facilities for invasion is undeniable. In the Mediterranean, possibly, flaws in the French naval system may be discovered,—and at Brest and Cherbourg we may detect differences between truths and boasts; yet the stream is wide and deep enough to carry us away. We cannot expect, as did the sanguine Black Sea officer, always to fight in a gale of wind, or to bring our best broadsides against the enemy's worst. So far we have condensed the Naval Peer's opinions. He may now proceed in his own terms; concerning the strategic railway system soon to be inaugurated at

Cherbourg:—
"Why France will in any case have a fleet of fourteen sail of the line off Toulon, perhaps at Cherbourg, to inaugurate the new military railway. Russia will have thirty sail of the line in the Baltic, which may perchance also drop in at Cher-bourg. England will (it is said) try to get up a small force also; why not a demonstration worthy of her, and calculated to repair her injured prestige?"

"A steam ship is like the queen in chess, a sailing ship at best but a castle." Then, we our commanding officers, such as not one in a hundred ever had a chance of acquiring. But what and where are our raw materials? The yard at Cherbourg is as large as Portsmouth, Devonport, and Keyham put together; the French "have one hundred and thirty acres in all their yards, to our thirty-four acres;" they can bring their vessels nearer to their quays; more-

"1. In efficient ships, France nearly equals us, our force being (of the line) forty-two to their forty. 2. In the power of manning those ships for any sudden emergency, France greatly surpasses us. 3. And for equipping her ships, France possesses, in Sir C. Wood's words, infinitely greater facilities."

At the central point of his dissertation the writer of this significant volume breaks off to Who is he? descant about himself. Who is he? That must be unexplained. What is he? Well, a peer, with naval experience, and on half-pay.

Why does he publish? Because no one else of equal authority will do so. He served in the late Russian War; he is not Methuselah; and he thinks he may do some service by printing his notes and queries on the British navy. Useful he may be, but he is not consolatory when he criticizes the hearts of oak and wooden walls,-and yet who could pay warmer homage than the Peer?

What would Napoleon I., who proposed to carry 120,000 soldiers across the Straits in rowboats, have given for steam power? It was one of his aphorisms, that 'England over-awed Europe by 30,000 trained seamen,' and his difficulty was to get that number of French sailors to cope with the vicissitudes of wind, tide, and weather, that affect a sailing fleet. Where is that difficulty now? Who that has really considered the matter doubts that France, aye, or Russia either, has 30,000 sufficiently trained seamen to stand on their legs and to fight the guns of a steam fleet? The gun-drill is learned in harbour, and a few weeks at sea will make even landsmen steady on their legs. But, in fact, both France and Russia have the required number of seamen, not mere blue-jackets, trained man-of-war's men, quite good enough for a

-And to what does all this amount? We follow the argument of the Naval Peer and find him, after deploring the defenceless state of Great Britain, congratulating Russia upon her maritime resources. As to the readiness with which thousands of men may be made to embark, Russia, he urges, would take the lead, and her sailors would be imbued with the strictest and sternest sense of military discipline. Cui bono? Can they fight at sea? Of what value is an unhorsed hussar on the deck of a frigate? - and what is the use of a frigate that dares not venture out of harbour? We must have a Russian Rodney or Nelson before these calculations alarm us. France, indeed, deserves better treatment than she meets with from the Naval Peer, who catalogues her as second to Russia "in the power of embarking a large force of disciplined seamen." Here is the very mistake over which so many transcendental disquisition-ists have stumbled. They forget that Nelson's simple watchword, "England expects every man to do his duty!" was more effective than twelve months of drill or terror. You cannot make a sailor out of a Frenchman or a Turk, any more than you can make a hippopotamus out of a water-snake, or a rainbow out of a chameleon. The things may have attributes in common; but they are essentially, inevitably, and interminably different. The invasion of Great Britain, however, is contemplated by "a Naval Peer" as more of a military than a naval operation. Natural and nautical circumstances, he considers, would further the enemy's purpose. Speaking of Cherbourg :-

"From the depth of water at the entrance of the docks, ships can be taken in at all times of high water, while in Portsmouth and Plymouth we are obliged to wait for spring tides. Should a general engagement, therefore, occur in the Channel during the neap tides, France could repair her ships at once, and send them to sea, while ours were waiting to get into dock."

It was time that the coronetted alarmist should explain. Though in one chapter he deplores the sacrifice of British naval supremacy, in another he believes that we retain it. We are still guarded by the fame of Blake and Benbow, Shovel and Anson, Rodney, Howe, St. Vincent, Duncan, and Nelson. This is reassuring, but a figure looms on the horizon, a portentous image—Louis Napoleon. He and France, says the Naval Peer, have much to forget and forgive, to forego and forswear, before they leave England safe. Concerning the Emperor himself, no compliments are wasted:-

"The inheritance of a great name is (we know such cases in England) not an unmixed advantage, for the giant's clothes will only make the dwarf more ridiculous.

"Six ages of shame and insult" have to be avenged by France, was the first Bonaparte's declaration. Waterloo has to be avenged, said the third. Our brethren of the press have been carrying on so fierce a warfare that it were no wonder if some of the shafts stung at the Tuileries. This, according to the Naval Peer, should prompt all Englishmen to be careful of their navy. He adjures them to remember how their maritime ascendancy was won, how they broke up the fleets of Holland, France, and Spain, and how our pedigree of triumph lengthened, from St. Vincent to Jervis, from Camperdown to the Nile, from Copenhagen to Trafalgar. By these battles England won a prestige, which, he imagines, she since has lost. It must be recovered, at any price,-and a picture is set before us, like that famous one drawn by Canning at Liverpool. to stimulate our enthusiasm :-

"The old watch-word, 'All's well,' may perhaps be heard within the walls of Parliament still, yet be heard within the waits of Parliament sain, yet feebly, hesitatingly pronounced, and incredulously heard. How significant, 'par parenthese,' may the application of our naval watchwords to this case application of our naval watchwords to this case be made! When the ship of war is in harbour, snugly moored, and sails furled, the hands below, the half-hourly watchword is no longer that used at sea. As the officer of the watch slowly paces the deck, instead of turning his eyes aloft, to windward, or to the compass, in quick succession, he abandons himself to pleasant musings, and enjoys the quiet scene. The giant ship slumbers in her black shade; her well-squared wards sail in her black shade; her well-squared yards and lofty masts show out sharp against the starlight sky; the glimmering shore lights are reflected upon the dark smooth tide, and the great-coated sentry looks peeringly down into its gloomy mysterious bosom. Suddenly his reverie is broken by the clang of a ship's bell. One, two—three, four— five, six—seven, peals the bell: 'A-l-l's—well!' calls out the first gangway sentry, not unmusically, 'A-1-1's—well !' responds his comrade on the other side, in a tenor; 'A-1-1's—well!' continues the forecastle sentry; while, as if Echo had been disturbed in her midnight slumber, the same sounds come floating down from invisible ships 'up the harbour, faint and more faint, until the well! dies away, and moody Silence returns to well! dies away, and the her post. But when the ship is at sea, and the her post. of the look outs are on the stretch, quick eyes of the look-outs are on the stretch, there is another watchword when the bell strikes: Keep a good look-out on the starboard gangway! cries the first, with a quick, sharp, lively 'Keep a good look-out on the starboard cries the second, and so on right round the ship to the last receiver of the challenge, who responds with 'Aye, aye.'"

It was once an admitted query, whether a seasoned bargeman, having made a thousand trips on a canal, was not superior, as a sailor, to a midshipman who had gone round the world. Burke, we know, doubted whether & postillion, pacing incessantly up and down twelve miles of road, did not gain more experience of human nature than most explorers; but what is to be said of civil Admiralty Lords? Must they all be professional, asks the Naval Peer, or may laymen intrude into the precincts? Leaving that question unanswered, let us pass on to an interrogation followed by a reply:

"The French are a strange, a most eccentric people! But of all their eccentricities their manner of dealing with their Naval Administration was the most surprising! Like some other countries, they had a naval system which did not work well, and of all things in the world, what does any one suppose they did with their system? They changed

The account of the French system, though somewhat tedious, is satisfactory. "A Naval Peer" has evidently studied that branch of his subject in its minutest detail. A very important and attractive section of his volume repeats the evidence of sundry French naval officers concerning their own fleet, and the feasibility of invading Great Britain. To all present and to come, be it known, by these presents, that the majority are in favour of humbling us "proud islanders," if not "under the walls of Calcutta," at any rate in Lombard

A satirical chapter is devoted to the British principle of stationing a naval force near the various colonies and dependencies of the Empire. We have nothing to say, of course, for or against the theory thus sustained; but it may be suggested, that the "Naval Peer" would have more effectively supported his views had he been less melo-dramatic and personal. We cannot help thinking that his imaginary characters, consuls or captains, represent viduals against whom he may have laid up, perhaps involuntarily, a store of ridicule and rancour. Still, the general argument flows on dispassionately enough. To rifle volunteers are dedicated, without permission, sundry unpremeditated remarks :-

59

"Nine Englishmen out of ten, if the subject of Invasion were discussed, would indignantly repu-diate the idea of its success, declaring that 'We should rise as one man to oppose the enemy'; or else, 'They might land in England, perhaps, but not one would return.' Now neither of these assertions will bear examination. In words, the rising of a whole people may appear something very feasible and very formidable, but for any services that a great mob of unorganized, undisciplined men, ald render against a regular army, they might as well stay at home. Numbers without any organization count for nothing in modern warfare. In fact to the general who might command our army there could hardly be a less welcome sight than such there could have be a less welcome sight than sug-naudilaries, forming a huge, shapeless, unmanage-able mass, cumbering all the roads and utterly incapable of united action! The first and only thing to do with such well meaning volunteers would be to get them (if possible) out of the way."

Cruel, but possibly true. A little too much stress is laid on the colour of plumes and the tint of coats, on the "browning" of rifles and the "appearance" of a waist-belt. So thorough a veteran as the "Naval Peer," as might have been expected, spurns these trivialities; but we must judge of him by his ultimate views, as we do of the first Napoleon by his final achievements. To believe this book, we must acknowledge that, scientifically speaking, Napoleon ought to have successfully invaded England, that Villeneuve should have won at Trafalgar, and that our British race owes its chief glory to vulgar accident. In fact, we are marvellously fortunate, or our enemies must, long ago, have been our perdition :-"We are all familiar, either from actual observation or through the excellent plans and views published, with the defences of Sebastopol, Cronstadt, and Cherbourg. We know that they are protected by tier over tier of frowning batteries, and that the guns may literally be counted by thousands. We know also, or may know at the expense of a return ticket, that where France and Russia mount a hundred guns we mount five or at most ten to protect some vital point. In some cases even this modicum of precaution has been very lately taken, and had we been attacked suddenly it is too fearful to think what must have been the result. People imagine that our superiority by sea saved us, but that superiority was often a fiction, and an enterprising enemy might have struck an almost irreparable blow at the very sources of the naval power we trust in. Any one wishing to gauge the extent of British insouciance and rashness might take his stand upon the Maker heights near P mouth, and gaze on the scene beneath—a lovely scene it is too, and full of interest. Without, in the entrance to Plymouth Sound, lies the famous Breakwater, which in France would be crowned by strong forts, each mounting a hundred guns, and with us is defended by a crane and broken sentry-Then in case of an enemy passing these formidable obstacles, there have been two new batteries erected inside the Sound, of twelve guns each, where France or Russia would have pla a hundred, with many mortars. Let the spectator turn his face landwards, and just clear of the Mount Edgecumbe woods; he will see Her Majesty's Naval Arsenal, with all its building sheds, its ships building, its heaps of timber, and its immense store-houses. To the left of these the silver Tamar, dotted over with its ships of war mastless, gunless, and unarmed. All this national wealth and potential strength, lies at the mercy of any force which may hold the Maker heights, lies temptingly beneath them, and might, by the use of ets and field howitzers, be involved in one huge conflagration. The access to the heights (for an invading force) would be either from the beach of Cawsand Bay immediately below, or Whitesand Bay, some four miles to the westward."

fied and practical illustration, and more of random firing, than we had anticipated. It is the work of some one who thinks forcibly, but writes experimentally. The "Naval Peer" exhibits, beyond all cavil, great knowledge and rare practical sense; and it would be a gratifying thing to say, that his book was worthy, not of the subject, but of the spirit in which that subject has been treated. We must, however, warn such readers as may be disposed to follow the "Naval Peer's" researches and speculations, that, keen and bright as the needle may be, a bundle of hay is, as Sancho Panza would have said, "a ponderosity and an embarrassment."

A Journal kept in Turkey and Greece in the Autumn of 1857 and the beginning of 1858. By Nassau W. Senior, Esq. (Longman & Co.) A gentleman utterly respectable, who dines with ambassadors and writes Esquire on his title-page, scouring the East of Europe in search of light, more light, but carrying with him fixed ideas of its corrupt society and detestable religion, pencil and note-book in hand, eager to pounce upon any scrap of conversation caught by the way, and to dab it down, heads and tails, crust and crumb, for a most ungrateful public at home, is not, generally, the sort of person you hear with angelic patience counting the sunny peaks of the Cyclades, or pottering over returns and averages in the Golden Horn. We have all on our travels met the bore. You are looking down from the Vela over the great Moorish capital, and the low spurs of the Sierra, where Columbus rode and Isabella encamped:—"Large city, Sir, this Granada—very large city, Sir—how many inhabitants do you suppose, Sir? Ha! Fifty millions. Should not have thought so many. Well, really, a great city. How many poor, Sir? And the staple industry, Sir?" Or you are And the staple industry, Sir?" lying under the first cataract of the Nile, enjoying the heavenly coolness and the myriad-tinted scatter of the silver spray:—"Great water-power, Sir; great loss of water-power, Sir. Fifty mills, Sir, might be turned by that fall; and fifty mills would find weaving and spinning, Sir, for all those Gawazi girls we saw dancing and shrugging at Esné the other day!" And so he goes round the world, bothering dreamers and lotos-eaters with his statistics and stuff, instead of staying at home like a good creature, to pose Lord Stanley and worry the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Mr. Senior, we grieve to say, shows a dangerous proclivity towards this class. How many inhabitants, Sir, in Tripoli? How many bushels of wheat, Sir, shipped at the Golden Horn? We confess it. We tire of these interesting queries. We don't go to the Nile, or push up the Guadalquivir, or scurry across the ea of Marmora, in search of this sort of useful information. We detest a tourist who drones about the population tables of Anadol, or the number of dates consumed per year in Abyssinia; and rather long for those rapturous old gentlemen, who, in the land of poetry and peccadilloes, never thought of asking consuls how much the Janizaries cost the Sultan in shoes, but who took care to gather every available particular about the Maid of Athens. Mr. Senior, too, is credulous. Pera is not Pall Mall, and the countrymen of Scheherazade are not as the brethren of Elizabeth Fry. A note-book, look you, is a perilous thing in a land where words are air-parti-coloured films of cloud-sparkle of glancing foam and mirage of the desert sand. Mr. Senior sets down everything told him by

We have found in this volume less of digni- | Greek and Levantine, as if he were not living in fable-land, and as if Greek and Levantine were not common English for liar and rogue, The result is not lovely, nor is it perhaps true. Turk is allowed to describe Greek, and Levantine Turk: the likeness in both cases having the happy lines of a sixpenny photograph, in which a philanthropist comes out strong as the best of cut-throats. What is the worth of this reported scandal in which everybody abuses his neighbour? Would Mr. Senior think it useful to print the gossip of a London club-room on the character of Frank or Russ? Yet he would know that the good-natured fellows who chatter and joke at our neighbour's cost have no private malice, and have had some fair means of knowledge. Can he believe as much of his Greek gossips ?

Occasionally there is a readable passage.

For instance:

"Achmed Vefic Effendi is a man of about fortyfive, speaking perfect French and reading English. His library, a respectable one, contains many lish books. On his table lay Lane's Arabian Nights. He has been much in Persia, talked of registers and Ctesias, and would pass in Europe for a remarkably well-informed man. On our ar-rival, at about half-past five, we had pipes and coffee, and aniseed and water, which I thought strong, but which our host maintained to be very . At dinner we sat round a large silver disk, placed on a round table. First came soup, for which we had spoons, but no plates. Then came half a roasted sheep, in which our host made some incisions with his knife, and we tore out with our hands morsels which were excellent. Mutton chops stewed with abundance of vegetables, a pillau, and stews of artichokes and of mushrooms followed, but only one dish at a time. We had ex-cellent Bordeaux wine, of which our host took his ceitent forceaux wine, or which our nost took his share. After dinner we returned to the library and resumed our pipes, the Effendi enjoying a hookah. He complained that the two hours after dinner were his worst time. 'We all of us,' he said, 'eat too much, and I own that I am somewhat of a boa constrictor. My natural state after dinner is kief;

—'What precisely,' I asked, 'is kief;"—'Kief,' he answered, 'is best described by negatives. You are not unconscious, yet you do not think. You are not awake, yet you are not asleep. Appearances float slowly before your eyes, which you know to be imaginary, but cannot either call up or dismiss. They have a charm about them which does not accompany anything real. No music is so sweet as that which you hear in kief; no women are so charming as those who visit you in kief.' But notwithstanding we interrupted his kief, our host was gay and amusing. We talked of pictures. 'That is an expense,' he said, 'in which we do not indulge, but I will show you our substitutes.' he brought out three or four manuscript books, small folios written on vellum in very black ink, and adorned with arabesques in gold. 'These,' he and adorned with arabesques in gold. said, 'are written by some of our old masters in caligraphy, men whose names and whose works are as well known as those of Raffaelle or Titian. They belong to the great 16th century, the golden age of caligraphy. You will observe that there is not in any of them a single erasure or interlineation, and I can assure you that there is not a single fault.—I suppose, I said, 'that when a fault had been made, the leaf was cancelled!'—'A great writer,' he answered, 'never makes a fault. talked about the state of the country. 'What we most want,' he said 'are roads. We have nothing but tracks filled with stones in our towns, so that it takes you an hour to walk a mile, and, in the country, rocky, stony, or boggy, according to the ground. Except in the immediate neighbourhood of our towns, the land is not half cultivated, beof our towns, the land is not half cultivated, because the peasant cannot carry the produce to market. He produces, therefore, only for his own consumption. He is truly a proletaire; he contributes to the population of the country, but not to its wealth."—'It seems to me,' I said, 'that you neglect the great sea-road which nature has give you. You have scarcely any steamers across th

Si

be N

Bosphorus, and those which ply laterally are not half enough for the demand, even at their extrahalf enough for the demand, even at their extra-vagant prices.— 'That is quite true,' he answered. 'A company has the monopoly, and finds it more profitable to have a few steamers overcrowded at high fares, than many at moderate ones. The mo-nopoly has still some years to run.— 'And will it be renewed?' I asked.— 'That will depend,' he answered, 'on what the monopolists are able or willing to pay, and who is in office. With us government is supposed to exist for the benefit, not of the governed, but of the governors. When the question of renewing the monopoly has to be discussed, the only party unrepresented will be the public.'—'I was struck,' I said, 'when I walked the deck of the steamer off Stamboul, between ten the deck of the steamer off Stamboul, between ten and eleven at night, by the repose of the town. I scarcely saw a light, and scarcely heard a sound, except the barking of dogs.'—'And yet, 'said Vefic,' in this great, populous, unlighted, and scarcely-watched town, there is little crime, not a tenth of what prevails in the Frank quarters of Galata and Stamboul is divided into districts; the principal inhabitants of each district form a sort of senate. They admit into the districts as residents only those whom they approve. They turn out those whose conduct is objectionable. We have not in Stamboul the professionally criminal popula-tion, which renders many great towns unsafe."

We notice in Mr. Senior's book an involun-tary witness in favour of the Turks—their intelligence, their courtesy, and their liberality. Here is a curious note of a general conversation

at Reschid Pasha's:

"The conversation, in compliment I suppose to the Sheriffe, took a religious turn. As it was carried on chiefly in Turkish, I could follow only its general drift. First they talked of the Trinity, and compared the Buddhist, the Brahminical, and the Christian Trinities. Reschid, who apparently is not deep in ecclesiastical history, asked me about the differences between the Greek and Latin churches. 'Qu'est que c'est,' he said, 'que la Pro-cession du St. Esprit? Qu'est que veut dire le mot Procédant?' I answered that I had not the slightest notion; and that I thought it probable that if est notion; and that I thought it probable that if the same question were asked of beings with intel-lects capable of comprehending such mysteries, they would answer that the words 'Procession and Prowould answer that the words 'Procession and Pro-cedant,' as used by men in theological controversy, had no meaning whatever. 'And yet,' he said, 'those words separate the Christian world into two hostile camps.'—'Just,' I said, 'as the question, Who was the lawful successor of the Prophet, who was the lawtin successor of the Prophet, separates into two hostile camps the Mussulman world.'—'You Protestants,' he replied, 'care little about the controversy between the Greeks and the Latins; for you, I believe, are Arians.'—'Very few of us,' I answered. 'Luther was a strong Trinitarian.'—'I supposed him,' said Reschid, 'to have been an Arian, because a reformer is generally a simplifier; and certainly the Arian doctrine, that the Begetter preceded the Begetten, is simpler than the Trinitarian one, that they have been eternally co-existent.— Were the Wahabees, I asked, simplifiers?— To this extent, he answered; that they discarded the traditions, to which we attach great importance. In fact the Mussulman creed, that God is one, and that Mahomet was divinely commissioned to reveal that doctrine, is too simple to be simplified. The rules which Mahomet laid down for our domestic habits and for our conduct towards others, and which are pre-served in our traditions, and still more the commentaries on those rules, are the complicated parts of our religion. The Wahabees so far simplified it that, as I said before, they rejected tradition, and paid little attention to commentaries.

To these paragraphs we shall add one of the endless tales of the Greek banditti. The scene

"We dined with Mr. Hanson, and met Dr. M'Crith, a physician settled for some years in Smyrna. We talked of the two robber chiefs, Smyrna. We taked of the two robber chees, Yani Katergee and Simos.—'I spent a week, he said, 'in company with Simos by day and by night.'—'We all,'I said, 'heard of your capture; will you give us some of the details of your residence with him? How long ago was it?'-'Three years,' he answered; 'I was riding in 1854, one summer's afternoon, from Bournabat to a neighbouring village, about four miles from Smyrna, when I lage, about four miles from Smyrna, when I was desired to stop, and found myself surrounded by armed men. They led me into a thicket, where I found nine or ten prisoners like myself. They kept us there until it was dark, then dismissed all except six, that is to say, four Smyrniotes, a Jew, and myself. They fixed the ransoms of the Smyrniotes and me at first at 3,000l., or 600l. a piece made me write a note stating their demand, and sent the Jew to Smyrna on my horse to bring it, having first stripped him of his fur pelisse, and given it to me to wear in the mountains during the nights. They then walked us off across the plain to the mountains. We halted high up in an oak wood, took a sheep and a couple of lambs from a neighbouring fold, and roasted them whole, on which, with the fine water of the mountains, made a good supper; and Simos, who took great care of me, made me a bed of boughs of trees. All the next day we lay quiet, sentinels being posted round. As soon as it was dark, finding that three of the Smyrniotes were of little value, they sent them off, and we then started and walked rapidly towards the place, about twenty miles off, where the Jew was to meet us on the day after with the ransom. I was tired; they met an old man on a donkey, took it from him, put me on it, and made him accompany us to take care of it.'—'How many,' I asked, 'were the robbers?'—'They were originally nine,' he said, 'all Greeks ; but on the second day we recruited a tenth, a young Turk, whom we met flying from the conscription. He was well armed, and we complied with his request to be allowed to join us. The third night's march brought us near to the place where we were to find the Jew with the ransom. We posted our watch and lay quiet. One of them fell asleep on his post, and was severely beaten by Simos. Towards noon our sentinels reported that they could see with their telescopes about thirty Turkish soldiers climbing up the mountain. "We shall not let them take you out of our hands," said Simos to me: he had said wish," I said to him, "that you would not keep dinning that into my ears; I know what you mean, and you need not always be putting me in mind of it."—'What did it mean? I asked.—'It meant,' he answered, 'that to prevent a rescue they would shoot me.'—'What could they get by that?' I asked.—'It would set an example,' he answered; they could show that the only means of saving a prisoner's life was to pay his ransom, that to rescue him was impossible. The robbers, he continued. him was impossible. The robbers, he continued, aware that the Jew had betrayed them, took up a position on the mountain side, where the path was steep, and waited the arrival of the soldiers under cover of rocks and brushwood. They left my fellow-prisoner and me under the guard of two men of whom was the man who had been beaten This man stood with us, a little behind the brow of the hill. The other was on its edge, and could look down on the field of battle. In about an hour we heard shots, and from their frequency it seemed that the action was brisk. Our guard had been very sulky ever since his beating. I said to him, "You have taken to a trade which will not prosper; you are sure in a year or two, perhaps in a day or two, to be shot or beheaded. Help me to escape, and I will ensure you pardon and preferment." He turned very red, and said that he could not break his oath to Simos. "Nonsense," I said, "do you suppose that God requires you to keep such an oath as that?" Then he said that the other man would shoot us. "On the contrary," I said, "I will shoot him. He has his back towards us, lend me your gun; the instant I have shot him we will run down the hill to the soldiers below." As I was saying this the guard, who was in advance, turned, and called out to us that the soldiers were beaten, and running, throwing away their arms. So this chance of escape had failed. None of the band were hit. but I was told that several of the soldiers had fallen. Simos now said that he would take a circuit of two days to a house where he had a friend on whom he could rely, as bearer of the ransom and the message. We walked for about four hours over the mountain ridges, and then lay down in a thicket. Soon after a Turk, on horseback, rode along the track and turned from it, I know not with tion, into the thicket. He was instantly shot. The old man, to whom the ass belonged, was sitting near us, quietly smoking his chibouk. One of the robbers came behind and shot him in the back. The ball probably reached the heart, for he leap forward and fell dead. It was still daylight, and therefore earlier than our usual hour of moving, but Simos thought our position dangerous, and we commenced our march towards the house of his friend.—"You must not suppose," he said to me,

"that I like this bloodshed. It gives me great "that I like this bloodshed. It gives me g pain, but it is one of the misfortunes of my pro-sion."—"I can understand," I said, "your shoo sion."—"I can understand," I said, "your shooting the Turk. If I were a Greek, I would shoot a Turk whenever I could. But why did you shoot the poor old man, who had been living with you cating with you, sleeping with you for three days!"—"I did not do it," he answered, "Pericles did it, he is a young hand, and thoughtless. If I had known what he was going to do, I should have stopped him, but as it has been done there is no use in fretting about it." He was much elated at his victory, and wrote an insulting letter to the Pasha, and another to Mr. James Whittall, raised Pasha, and another to Mr. James Whittan, raised our ransom to 100,000 piastres, or 9,000f., and sent the letters off by a shepherd whom he found on the mountain. We walked all night, and lay quiet the next day. The Smyrniote and I convinced him that the demand of 100,000 piastres was absurd, and the utmost he could hope from us was 500l. a piece. In the middle of the following night, we reached his friend's house. He mad me write to Mr. J. Whittall a demand of 40,000 piastres, or 3,000L as ranson; but it was understood between us and communicated to the messenger, that if the messenger brought back 5001 or about 6,000 piastres, I was to be released. I believe the Smyrniote came to a similar arrangement with him. He wrote to his friends, and I wrote to my wife, and also to Mr. James Whittall, requesting our respective ransoms be given to the bearer. My wife had not the money in the house but as no time was to be lost, it was immediately procured for her. The next day the messengers returned with the 500l. a piece for us. Simos shook me cordially by the hand when we parted, and gave me a sovereign to pay my expense home.'—'I suppose,' I said, 'that you made the home.'—'I suppose,' I said, 'that you made the Turkish Government repay your ransom.'—'I drew for it,' answered Dr. M'Crith, 'on Lord Stratford, who I believe advanced it out of his own pocket. Of course the Turks ultimately paid it. —'What became,' I asked, 'of the band'!— 'Suleiman Pasha,' he answered, 'was then our was then our governor; he required looking after. not sure that part of our ransoms did not go to him, so the consuls went in a body to impress on him the necessity of repressing an organized system of crime which was in fact confining us within the walls of the town. Under the old Turkish law, the course would have been simple. A reward would have been set on the heads of all who formed part, or were supposed to form part, of the gang, and they would have been shot down by the co try people. But since the Hatt-i-Sheriff of Gul Haneh, the procedure is more regular. It was thought that they ought to be tried, and, in that case, they could not be executed unless the heirs of some of their victims asked blood for blood. Such was the terror that no one ventured to do this. At last we got over it by making the Pasha himself come into court and ask blood for blood, in respect of his soldiers killed in the attack on the mountain. The result was that all my ten companions were satisfactorily disposed of. shot, some were beheaded, and the bodies of some were found on the shore near to their prison, which was an old Genoese castle, on a low tongue of land projecting into the bay. It was said that they had all been drowned in an attempt to escape. But it took about a year. The last but one killed was Sime. was Simos. The police stopped two suspicious-looking men at Cordeleon Point; one of them said that, if they would let him go, he would tell them a valuable secret. They promised, and he then said that his companion was Simos. Simos tried

Soon rack, iten. The

the ack. eapt

ting t a

to break away, and was killed in the struggle. They cut off his head, and took it to the Austrian onsul-general to be identified. The informer was beheaded in due time."

We make no attempt to analyze Mr. Senior's book; because we hold that the method of it is false, and the material collected worthless. A few paragraphs may be culled from it, such as the above; but the mass of it is the result of an admirable industry thrown away.

The Story of Campore. By Capt. Mowbray

The story of champer. By Capta Rational Thomson, Bengal Army. (Bentley.)
SHALL we say—too late! Is not the din of battle sounding from the banks of the Ticino? No matter. Those who will take the trouble to peruse this narrative will rise from it with the conviction that its interest is of a nature that can never wholly die, and will, perhaps, think it better that its publication has been reserved for a time when the anguish of regretful friends has become less poignant, and the vengeful emotions, which it would at first have inflamed, have been appeased.

If there has hitherto been any doubt on the matter, this sober and evidently most truthful record decides the fact, that history, so rich in tales of suffering and horror, can produce few parallels to the siege and massacre of Cawnpore. We believe that the prevailing idea is that there was a short and terrible outbreak at this ill-omened place, and that the merciless Náná, having induced the feeble garrison, after a brief struggle, to surrender, put them all to the sword. This idea, terrible as it is, embodies but a small portion of the frightful reality. The Cawnpore sufferers entered the inclosure, which was to be their charnel-house, on the 21st of May, 1857. From that time till the 30th of June every kind of suffering that the most horrible forebodings, to be only too truly justified by the events,—that famine, hunger, nakedness, exposure to the tremendous heat of the flaming Indian sun,—that wounds and the agonizing spectacle of wounded, tortured, butchered relatives,—could inflict, was undergone by each and every one of the hap-less Cawnpore garrison. Take one specimenpicture of the horrors that were experienced:-

"The sufferings of the women and children from thirst were intense, and the men could scarcely endure the cries for drink, which were almost perpetual from the poor little babes, terribly unconscious as they were, most of them, of the great, great cost at which only it could be procured. I have seen the children of my brother officers sucking seen the children of my brother officers sucking the pieces of old water-bags, putting scraps of canvas and leather straps into the mouth to try and geta single drop of moisture upon their parchadips. Not even a pint of water was to be had for washing from the commencement to the close of the siege; and those only who have lived in India can imagine the calculity of such a privation to can imagine the calamity of such a privation to delicate women who had been accustomed to the most frequent and copious ablutions as a necessary of existence. Had the relieving force which we all thought to have been on its way from Calcutta ever thought to have been on its way from Calcutta ever seen our beleaguered party, strange indeed would the appearance presented by any of us after the first week or ten days have seemed to them. Tattered in clothing, begrimed with dirt, emaciated in countenance, were all without exception; faces that had been beautiful were now chiselled with deep furrows; haggard despair seated itself where there had been a month before only smiles. Some there had been a month before only smiles. Some were sinking into the settled vacancy of look which marked insanity. The old, babbling with confirmed imbecility, and the young raving in not a few cases with wild mania; while only the strongest retained the calmness demanded by the occasion. And yet, looking back upon the horrible straits to which the women were driven, the maintenance of modesty and delicate feeling by them to the last, is one of the greatest marvels of the heart-rending memories of those twenty-one days."

The hospitals of the wounded were burnt over their heads, some of the mangled victims perishing in the flames. Two hundred women and children, many of them the wives and daughters of officers, unused to the slightest privation, passed their days and nights in the privation, passed their days and nights in the trenches on the bare ground. The author of this volume saw a mother, whose husband had been shot dead by her side, lying on her back with both arms broken, and her two children, twins, laid one at each breast, "while her bosom refused not what her arms had no power to administer." On one side was a missionary, late the gentlest of men, now a raving maniac On another Lieut, Wheeler stretched out with a ghastly wound, and while his sisters were bending over him, a round shot, which left him a headless trunk, covered them with his blood. In every direction were mangled corpses, men. women and children, with frightful wounds. and none to tend them, not even one drop of cold water to allay their thirst. A wounded horse, a stray dog, was so great a delicacy that wounds and death were eagerly risked to secure so rare a prize. The murderous volleys of the enemy and the roar of their guns, the piteous wailing of the children, groans, sobs and yells, never ceased. Sleep came to none, unless the momentary snatches of forgetfulness which utter exhaustion occasioned, to be immediately dispelled by a renewal of horrors, could be called sleep.

At last, the end came. The infamous Náná, through his still more infamous agent, 'Azim-'ullah, a wretch whom, three years before, the ladies of the English aristocracy had welcomed to their saloons, induced the feeble and famishing garrison to yield up the inclosure and embark in boats, which could not be got off from shore, and were indeed intended merely as convenient shambles. It was then that the wonderful escape of the author of this volume, of Lieut. Delafosse, and two privates took place. They swam to a boat, which—the only one that could be got afloat—was drifting down the river. By a wonderful fortune, they escaped from her just at the moment when she was captured. At last, after being three days without food, and after having been the targets for thousands of bullets, utterly spent, and at the last gasp, they were saved by a faithful Oudh chief. Meantime. by a faithful Oudh chief. they had left worse horrors behind :-

The scene which followed this manifestation of the infernal treachery of our assassins is one that beggars all description. Some of the boats presented a broadside to the guns, others were raked from stem to stern by the shot. Volumes of smoke from the thatch somewhat veiled the full extent of the horrors of that morning. All who could move were speedily expelled from the boats by the heat of the flames. Alas! the wounded were burnt to death; one mitigation only there was to their horrible fate—the flames were terrifically fierce, and their intense sufferings were not protracted. Wretched multitudes of women and hildren crouched behind the boats, or waded out into deeper water and stood up to their chins in the river to lessen the probability of being shot."

The survivors from this butchery in the boats were seized as they came out of the water. The men were separated from the women, fired on, and then hacked to pieces. One lady, Mrs. Boyes, wife of Dr. Boyes, of the 2nd Cavalry, who could not be torn from him, shared his fate. There remained then 210 women and children, who, after two more days of unspeakable torture, were finally slaughtered, stripped, and hurled naked into the well of Cawnpore. The closing paragraph of the description of their horrors must be added :-

"The spies, all of them, however, persisted in the statement, that no indignities were committed upon their virtue; and as far as the most penetrating investigation into their most horrible fate trating investigation into their most horrible fate has proceeded, there is reason to hope that one, and only one, exception to the bitterest of anguish was allotted to them,—immunity from the brutal violence of their captors' worst passions. Fidelity requires that I should allege what appears to me the only reason of their being thus spared. When the siege had terminated, such was the loathsome condition into which from long destitution and condition into which, from long destitution and exposure, the fairest and youngest of our women had sunk, that not a sepoy would have polluted himself with their touch."

Such, then, was the fate of the Cawnpore victims. The authority of Capt. Thomson must be regarded as decisive. He was an eye-witness of almost all he relates, the almost sole surviving eye-witness,—and as afterwards the head of the Cawnpore police, he must have had every means of tracing the truth of what he relates on the authority of others.

Having given the general outline of the story, we now come to certain special pieces of infor-mation, obtainable from no other source than the volume before us. In the first place, it is only right to record the conduct of the 53rd Regiment, to which our author belonged. It was far the least guilty of the corps that mutinied at Cawnpore. Indeed, a large portion of it, including all the native officers, retained their fidelity unshaken. This is very remarkable, and we trust it will not be overlooked by the historian of the Revolt :-

"At length the much-dreaded explosion came. On the night of the 6th of June, the 2nd Cavalry broke out. They first set fire to the riding-master's bungalow, and then fled, carrying off with them horses, arms, colours, and the regimental treasure-The old soubhadar-major of the regiment chest. The old soubhadar-major of the regiment defended the colours and treasure which were in the quarter-guard as long as he could, and the poor old fellow was found in the morning severely wounded, and lying in his blood at his post. This was the only instance of any native belonging to that regiment who retained his fidelity. The old man remained with us, and was killed by a shell in the interschamat. An key call was continued for the in the intrenchment. An hour or two after the flight of the cavalry, the 1st Native Infantry also flight of the cavalry, the 1st Native Intantry also bolted, leaving their officers untouched upon the parade-ground. The 56th Native Infantry followed the next morning. The 53rd remained, till, by some error of the General, they were fired into. I am at an utter loss to account for this proceeding.
The men were peacefully occupied in their lines, cooking; no signs of mutiny had appeared amidst their ranks, they had refused all the solicitations of the deserters to accompany them, and seemed quite stedfast, when Ashe's battery opened upon them by Sir Hugh Wheeler's command, and they them by Sir Hugh Wheeler's command, and they were literally driven from us by nine-pounders. The only signal that had preceded this step was the calling in to the intrenchments of the native officers of the regiment. The whole of them cast in their lot with us, besides a hundred and fifty privates, most of them belonging to the Grenadier company. The detachment of the 53rd posted at the treasury held their ground against the rebels about four hours. We could hear their musketry in the distance, but were not allowed to attempt their relief. The faithful little band that had joined our desperate fortunes was ordered to occupy joined our desperate fortunes was ordered to occupy the military hospital, about six hundred yards to the east of our position, and they held it for nine days, when, in consequence of its being set on fire, they were compelled to evacuate. They applied for admission to the intrenchments, but were that we had not food sufficient to allow of an that we had not food sufficient to allow of an increase to our number. Major Hillersden gave them a few rupees each, together with a certificate of their fidelity. Had it been possible to have received these men, they would have constituted a powerful addition to our force, just as the few gallant remnants of the native regiments at Luck-now did throughout the second edition of the Cawnpore siege, as it was enacted in the Oude capital. It ought never to be forgotten, that although the influences of this mutiny spread with all the impetuosity of a torrent which sweeps everything less stable than the mountains before it, there were amongst the sepoy regiments not a few who proved faithful to their salt, and who deserve surely as much gratitude as the revolters have obtained execrtation. And amongst these honourable exceptions I, for one, shall always rank the native commissioned and non-commissioned officers, and a few privates, of the now extinct 53rd regiment of Native Infantry."

Some curious proofs are given of the credulity and ignorance of the Sipahis. Thus, after the siege, some men of the 56th, and also of the 53rd, visited Capt. Thomson, and talked unreservedly of their position. They had the fullest confidence of aid from Russia, the Náná having assured them that he had despatched troopers on camels to that country for assistance. They talked of the conquest of England by the Náná's troops as soon as he should have ex-pelled the English from India, and expressed themselves very willing to embark on board ship to reduce that distant country under his sway. Many of them were sorry for the rebellion, but said the Devil had bewitched them, having the power of the hawa, or "air." the particular fate of many individuals this book is the only trustworthy record. Instances of heroism were common, of cowardice there was but one, which is thus mentioned :-

"I deeply regret, however, to have to record the fact that there was one officer of high rank, and in the prime of life, who never showed himself outside the walls of the barrack, nor took even the slightest part in the military operations. This craven-hearted man, whose name I withhold out of consideration for the feelings of his surviving relatives, seemed not to possess a thought beyond that of preserving his own worthless life. Throughout three weeks of skulking, while women and children were daily dying around him, and the little band of combatants was being constantly thinned by wounds and death, not even the perils of his own wife could rouse this man to exertion; and when at length we had embarked at the close of the siege, while our little craft was stuck upon a sandbank, no expostulation could make him quit the shelter of her bulwarks, though we were adopting every possible expedient to lighten her burden. It was possitively a relief to us when we found that his cowardice was unavailing; and a bullet through the boat's side that despatched him caused the only death that we regarded with complacency."

The author's personal share in the defence supplies not the least interesting portion of the book. He maintained during nearly the whole siege the Barrack No. 2, about 200 yards in front of the main position, and he and his party of 17 killed many times their own number of enemies. Finally, he fought himself free, and, having done good service in command of the police, and served in General Windham's force at the second siege of Cawnpore, closed a brilliant career of service at the action of Bhagnipúr, where he was very severely wounded, and obliged to go home on sick leave. The narrative which he has now published will be indispensable to future writers on this part of Indian history, and can never fail to interest all who can be touched by the story of wondrous sufferings and unsurpassable heroism.

Ten Thousand Wonderful Things, comprising the Marcellous and Rare, Odd, Curious, Quaint, Eccentric, and Extraordinary, in all Ages and Nations, in Wit, Nature, and Science, including many Wonders of the World. Edited by E. F. King, M.A. (Ward & Lock.)

Things not Generally Known Familiarly Explained: a Book for Old and Young. Second Series. By John Timbs. (Kent & Co.)

THE value of a number of bricks depends very much upon their position with respect to each other. In a heap by the side of an unoccupied plot of ground, thousands of them may be had for a trifling outlay; while, duly arranged into the form of a comfortable dwelling, with the decorator's work properly effected,—then, the very permission to live and breathe within the limits formed by them is only to be enjoyed at a sensible cost, known, more or less, to the most of us. The same may be said of a multitude of other productions. It is the difference between the raw material and the manufactured article. The gathering together of materials is only a means to an end; and the gatherers are not without their certain uses. Often, the more perfectly they conceal the component parts which go to the making of one valuable unity, the better for both vender and purchaser. Sal ammoniac is a valuable product, but Beauty would never hold it to her nose were Mr. King or the chemists to submit only the respective ingredients of that pungent remedy separately for sale.

In the first of the above-named books, however, it is only the heap, the raw material, the ingredients before mixing, that are confusedly and carelessly flung into the lap, at the head, or on the toes of the reader. Like Jenny Dennison with her scalding soup, Mr. King empties a whole cauldron of it, scalding vegetables and all, upon the uncovered skulls of his public, with Jenny's own exclamation, — "Tak' it amang ye!"

There are materials enough in the volume to make a valuable and an amusing work. Mr. King cares nothing about that. He is a marinestore dealer, not an artist, and he delights in dirt, dust, and confusion, leaving his readers, if they list, to create order and beauty out of the mass. Everything seems to be here; but the searcher is sure not to find the precise article of which he stands most in need. He is like; the traveller who, amid the vegetating luxury of the two Americas, might look for a wild heath; or who, amid the flowers of the southern continent, might strain his sight in the expectation of meeting with that balm for aching eyes—a pure wild rose.

It is astonishing that collectors should care to remain only collectors. Is it that they have not the genius to adorn, or the learning to illustrate? It has not always been so. ancients set a good example in this way, and there are some moderns who have successfully followed a most happy example. What a farrage of materials, for instance, is there in Aulus Gellius. His collection is stupendous. The pages run over with it. In every line there is a piece of information, or a snatch of wit, or an incident detailed, or a suggestion made, or a conclusion laid down. But how comparatively useless it would have all been, had the old Roman grammarian contented himself, during his long winter nights at Athens, with only collecting, and not also with classifying, comparing, and applying. In the former case, the little Gellii and their sisters, for whom the mighty volume was composed, would but have slightly profited. On the contrary, he shaped his incongruous matter with a purpose in view, and, accordingly, readers for centuries to come will better understand the signification of antique monuments and the bearings of ancient history, social, political and literary, than if they had lacked the light by which the author of the 'Noctes' has made his nights as clear and warm as bright noon-tide.

Again, what a collector was the sophist Ælianus! The delight he experienced in collecting is to be judged of by the fact that, in order to pursue his object more seriously, he gave up the valuable practice and certain profits of "sophistry," for the less lucrative profession of literature. He then had the leisure that he loved, to turn his collection to some purpose. Much of it is rough, raw, repulsive, — and sometimes extremely puerile. In spite of all this, no note being without some value, — illustrations of actual absurdity, yet socially historical, what a pleasant book, or rather, what pleasant books has he given us in his Animaliana, if we may coin a word for his treatises on animals; and what illustrations of old life and things in his Omnium-Gatherum, or "various histories"!

In our own country, perhaps, Burton has the best shown how a collector, annotator, and therewith a thinker and doer—without which the former vocations are almost useless—may turn to charming account the masses of illustration he has formed by hard, steady, and original courses of reading. Had he published the contents of his note-book, it would have been only a note-book; it would have then descended to its well-earned and lasting oblivion. His spirit, however, was of another quality; and grateful may mankind be that such was the case, for with the bricks he had collected—all made of precious materials—he constructed that magnificent edifice called 'The Anatomy of Melancholy,' which will make an English reading world glad for ever.

In every country, indeed, is to be found some industrious gatherer, who does not amass for the sake of the heap, but for the sake of scattering it, and making fructification a result of the process. We should be sorry to guess at what we should fail to correctly number, the amount of anecdotes, quotations, odds and ends of history, philosophy, materialism, fun, profundity, nonsense, and wisdom, that may be said to make bright the wondrous pages of Montaigne. But those pages are bright because he has thrown his own light upon them,-a light in which men, as long as learning lasts, will love to bask, to enjoy, and be strengthened. To sit down with Montaigne, with Burton, with Ælian, with Aulus Gellius, is to sit down, if we may so speak, with their minds as well as their persons. You get something from them besides a mere anecdote or a marvel,—there is, generally, comment as well as text; and not only a story but a moral, declared or suggested. But even these authors must not be allowed to take place of original reading, or an independent study of nature, history, or whatever creditable pursuit is most attractive to the individual. On this account, Mr. Timbs's book, which has some advantages of classification over Mr. King's, is comparatively useless, for instruction, however it may now and then amuse mere idlers,—for whom, be it said, industrious men, like the compiler, should not labour. We will add nothing further than the remark that there is a phrase in Julius Scaliger very pertinent and happy with reference to the question and books before us, and we submit it for the use and profit of all collectors of unconnected trifles:-Ex libris colligere quæ prodiderunt auctores, longe est periculosissimum. Rerum ipsarum cognitio vera e rebus ipsis est.

Civilized America. By Thomas Colley Grattan. 2 vols. (Bradbury & Evans.)

A considerable period of time has elapsed since any work on America so carefully prepared as the one to be noticed has issued from the English press.—How far it will be found satisfactory on this or the other side of the Atlantic we do not profess to determine. No pains, it is evident, have been spared in producing it. The writer has done his best, as every writer should do when he sits down in the face of a great subject, in the study of which he has had agitated state of mind of my worthy colleague and countryman, reproach would have been cruelty. opportunities of experience.

We begin with "the voyage out" in the British Queen. Next, we arrive at Astor House, and the other etcætera of New York. Thirdly and fourthly, come a glance at Boston,—and a sojourn at Nahant, where Mrs. Grattan saw the sea-serpent, as her worse half avouches. But we submit that the avoucher may possibly be credulous; since, on a later page, we meet his indorsement of the professed feats of tableturning and spiritual jugglery in general.—Mr. Grattan was struck with the preaching of Dr. Follen, that remarkable Americanized German who perished in the Lexington, and whose biography is one of the most characteristic and touching American books in existence.-He is strong in reproof of the dawdling ways and the of the American ladies—as if in any society, let it be ever so high, ever so dry, more of slang can be heard from female lips than in the high, low, and thoroughly every-day worlds of London society.-Then we come to a public dinner at Boston, and to the part which Her Majesty's Consul for Massachusetts took therein:-also to sketches of manners, weather, police arrangements-neither quite old nor quite young.—Later is launched the old European diatribe against boarding-house life. This may be, for the moment, as inevitable an institution in "the States" as their "more peculiar one." How is Mrs. Remarkable Hominy to keep her house, if on the morning of her first dinner-party, Celinda, the cook, finds it agreeable to retire from her service, on the temptation of an extra dollar or two? Board Mrs. Hominy must, and shut up all notions of home hospitality. Such training, however, must be, and is, bad in every sense of the word for the children of the Hominy house.—Mr. Grattan is not pleased altogether with American society.—He describes the public men of America, commencing with Mr. Everett—narrates his first journey to Washington, and, on his way thither, offers a personal adventure, which is one of the most characteristic passages of the book, and which shall be, therefore, our one extract from it :-

"Accompanied by my wife and daughter, with their French maid (who soon turned out a dreadful incumbrance and torment), I left Boston on the 23rd of March, arrived at New York the next morning, and spent several days in that place very pleasantly. I made some valuable acquaintances there, and it being the period of the arrival of the news of Queen Victoria's marriage, I had an opportunity of witnessing a singular and peculiarly English celebration in honour of the event. This consisted, in the first place, of the attempted opeconsisted, in the first piace, of the attempted operation of roasting an ox whole; and, in the second, of the huge animal being served up and eaten (the repast being completed by due accompaniments of plum-pudding and port wine) by some hundreds of widows and children, all British subjects and inhabitants of the city. My warm-hearted and energetic colleague, Mr. Buchanan, had put his whole round and transith into the approximation of their mind and strength into the management of this fête. * * When I reached New York the day When I reached New York the day previous to the roasting, I found symptoms of considerable public hostility. Handbills were posted on the walls, couched in violent language against England, and calling on the people to destroy the preparations made on a grand scale in Niblo's gardens, a favourite place of public resort and enter-To counteract these attempts, Mr. Buchanan had opposition bills distributed, with a programme of the intended solemnities, a wood-cut representing a huge ox, hanging up in a temporary temple, and surrounded by the gas apparatus by which it was to be roasted entire, and winding up (to my serious dismay) with the announcement that 'the celebrated Author of 'Highways and Byways,' Her Majesty's Consul at Boston, would (among other orators) address the meeting.' It It was quite too late for remonstrance; and, in the

I never saw a more painful picture of anxiety. He was tortured by a dread of some collision with the hostile citizens, and not only that but of the failure of the procédé by which a new-fangled gas company had undertaken to perform the job of cookery. * * Mr. Buchanan reckoned, calculated, and guessed, with a truly (naturalised) Yankee imagination, relative to the probable proceeds of this novel exhibition, to which the public were in-vited, at the rate of half a dollar a head, to form a fund towards defraying the expenses of the fête. At his urgent request I accompanied him to the scene, two or three hours after the gas company had opened its fire on the suspended carcase. When we reached Niblo's gardens, but three individuals, instead of the expected hundreds of paying visitors, were to be seen. Not a dozen presented themselves altogether. My poor compatriot was crest-fallen. Nothing could be more desolate than crest-failen. Nothing could be more desolate than the aspect of the place. The day was cold, the garden comfortless; and the ox swung slowly round, an ugly object, I thought, in his unpainted, wooden temple, successive ranges of gas-burners from the top to the floor warming, but being evidently insufficient for the task of roasting him. While I peeped shiveringly through the little glass windows of the temple at this operation, pitying and sympathising with the projector by my side, a sudden crash was heard, and at the same moment I was shocked at seeing the staple from which 'the entire animal' (as the genteel Yankees say) was suspended, give way from the top of the temple, while the huge ox fell heavily to the floor, and against one of the six sides. The wood-work, however, stood this rude assault. It did not give way and tumble into ruins as I expected. But having witnessed too much of the disappointment of my fellow-consul, I turned away, leaving him in the midst of a clamorous crowd of workmen who hurried to the spot, while I made my escape, and hastened to my hotel, the 'Globe,' at the other end of the Broadway. heard nothing from Buchanan for the rest of the day; and at a soirée for which he had an engagement, the consular discomfiture formed the main joke of the entertainment. Everybody seemed pleased at what had happened. ** Hearing no-Hearing nothing the next morning, I concluded that the hostile party had finally succeeded in bullying the consul, the committee, and the constables. I there fore dismissed the matter from my mind, occupied myself after breakfast until nearly one o'clock writing letters, and then sallied out with my wife on a shopping excursion. Before long we were accosted in Broadway by a gentleman unknown to me, smartly dressed, bearing a wand, and deco-rated with a bunch of white ribbons fastened in the lappel of his coat. He had just descended from a carriage on recognising me, and he told me he was one of the committee sent to look for me, and escort me and 'my ladies' to the feasting which was going merrily on, where places were reserved for us, and where I had been for some time anxiously expected. Completely taken by surprise, and unwilling to hurt the feelings of the worthy committee-man, I could only say, that not having received any tickets, I did not know we were expected, and I regretted that we had now other engagements. The gentleman left me, evidently much annoyed, and muttering denun ciations against Her Majesty's Consul for New York, to whose blundering mismanagement he attributed the contretemps. As he rattled up Broadway in his 'hack,' my conscience smote me for having thus implicated Mr. Buchanan, whose pressing verbal invitation (often repeated on the previous day with many complimentary expressions) was worth a dozen formal summon Scarcely had I time for repentance, when I met Mr. Austin, the Attorney-General for Massa-chusetts, coming from Niblo's gardens, where he had been a spectator of the early part of the doings. He took it for granted I was going there, and recommended me to make haste, 'as the last orator on the list before me was speaking, and my turn came next!' This startling news made me take quite another turn. I called a coach, and was very soon ensconced in my apartment in the Globe, enjoying my escape, and having no doubt that the feast, both of roast beef and of reason, was com-pletely over. But very soon a short breathing waiter rushed up stairs and into my room, announcing the arrival of a 'deputation of the committee from Niblo's;' and he ushered in three gentlemen with all the well-known official insignia, who implored me in pressing terms to repair to the scene of action, describing the consul's despair as quite heart-rending, under the angry reproaches of the committee for his gaucherie, to which my absence was alone attributed. 'But,' said I, 'it must be now too late—surely all is over.'—'Not at all, Sir; Dr. Hogan is speaking against time, and he'll certainly not stop till you come.' This was irresistible. Compassion, in a double sense, for the dector and him to for the doctor and his audience, as well as for my badgered friend Buchanan, left me no further wish for refusal. Besides, I was not a little pleased at the cordial expressions of the 'deputation,' and I thought my hesitating longer might look like conceit, instead of real disinclination to be compromised in a failure. We therefore were quickly in the carriage provided by the gentlemen; and fol-lowing them we dashed along the pave, in a style that caused no small alarm, and no trifling amusement to the beholders of the gallop, and all who (safely) crossed our path. My wife and daughter were conducted to the reserved places in the gallery, and I was led into the lower portion of the great room, and to the middle of the floor, where stood the committee, wanded and decorated, round a plaster figure of Queen Victoria, placed on a broad, white elevation, balanced on a pedestal, to which an Irish gentleman (to whom I was subsequently introduced as Dr. Hogan, the President of the St. Patrick's Society) was apparently addressing a strain of most impassioned eloquence, that drew down thunders of applause. The scene around and above me was truly imposing. Having had no real notion of what was previously expected, and thoroughly convinced that the affair had after all been abortive, my astonishment was great at seeing this vast room, which can contain, I understand, 3,000 persons, completely full; several long tables, at which sat some hundreds of well-dressed women and children; the remains of the feast, women and children; the remains of the feast, flowers in profusion, and an enormous sugar-covered plum cake, forming, in fact, the upper stratum of the Victoria pedestal. The remainder of the arena and the galleries were filled with fashionably-dressed people, the ladies being brilliantly conspicuous. I was very handsomely received by the committee. But poor Buchanan, though evidently delighted at my coming, held down his head, or shock it, with shower and was down his head—or shook it—with shame, and was clearly puzzled as to whether he should laugh or But he recovered himself sufficiently to halloo out, in his own peculiar length and breadth of broque, as soon as Dr. Hogan ceased speaking, that 'Mr. Grattan, Her Majesty's Consul, was going to give them a speech.' Thus at once in medias res, without a chance of retreat, and warmed by the encouraging applauses which followed this announcement, I threw off as well as I could a few random sentences, which seemed to tell."

The "random sentences" made on our Queen's marriage-day, we submit, hardly deserve men-tion in a book so solid as this professes to be.

Next we get to Baltimore, and encounter such names and figures as those of Clay and such names and figures as those of Clay and Calhoun—subsequently, an analysis, in chapter eleven, of "the Upper Ten Thousand" (with a word concerning Mr. President Buchanan)—talk about political ultras—and a whole chapter on "the noticeable man," whom Sydney Smith likened to "a steam-engine in trowsers." Daniel Webster, — but who turned out (as every machine thus conventionally muffled must) a failure.-To succeed these, we find a chapter on "servants"-that never-ending, still-beginning cause of anxiety at home or abroad. On all such chapters we fancy a laconic review might be passed at once and for ever— "Of what sort are the masters?"

Nº

01

hall Roys

mem recli

was of th

descr

enjo

conv red-

the

serv Ast

of t nun

expl

nati

E

the

whi

stat be,

and this Roy tor

to a wit

or als an

J

OUR LIBRARY TABLE.

History of the Old Covenant. From the German of J. H. Kurtz, D.D. Vol. I. Translated, Annoof J. H. Kurtz, D.D. Vol. I. Translated, Annotated, and Prefaced by a Condensed Abstract of Kurtz's 'Bible and Astronomy,' by the Rev. A. Edersheim, Ph.D. Vol. II. Translated by James Martin, B.A. (Edinburgh, Clark.)—Dr. Edersheim, introducing this work to British and American theological readers, avows that, on some points, he differs from the author. In his annotations, however, he confines himself chiefly to the task of warking whatever advances have been tations, however, he confines himself chiefly to the task of marking whatever advances have been made by Biblical research, in special directions, since the second edition of the original was published in 1853. It was judicious, we think, to preface the first volume by a condensation of Kurtz's treatise on 'The Bible and Astronomy'; since a considerable portion of that book may be regarded as introductory to the present. In undertaking to compresse a philosophical and undertaking to compress a philosophical and critical disquisition of nearly 600 pages into a fourth of that space, Dr. Edersheim undertook a somewhat difficult task; and whatever relation the abstract may bear to the original, we have here, at abstract may bear to the original, we have here, at all events, a very clear and masterly statement of views, representing a system of ideas, which, the translator says, "seems the only sufficient and satisfactory solution of the geological and astronomical difficulties connected with the Mosaic account of Creation." The two volumes on the account of Creation. Ine two volumes on the Old Covenant, the one translated by Dr. Edersheim himself, and the other by Mr. James Martin, of Nottingham—and to be followed by a third—contains a most elaborate narrative and interretation of Jewish history from Genesis to the Exodus, including a learned chapter purporting to identify with the Hyksos dynasty those kings of Egypt who ruled when Israel was in the alien land. There are two opinions against him. There are two opinions against him. One maintains that the Hyksos disappeared from the banks of the Nile before Abraham or Joseph lived. Another assumes that the Hyksos and the Israelites were the same; but that idea is vanishing. Kurtz thinks that under the foreign monarchs the Jews were favoured; while under a national Pharaoh, they were persecuted. In his treatment of the earlier episodes, he adopts, as in the essay on 'Astronomy and the Bible,' a bold, plausible, confident tone; supporting his views, we are bound to add, with much ingenious erudition, and steering, stem on, through the mazes, shoals, and unsounded depths of geology. The work, we need scarcely say, with its plenitude of dead-language reference, its complexities of learned argument, its patient building-up of detail, is addressed principally to students of the more advanced classes, and especially to the ministers of religion; but there are many portions which the ordinary theological reader will find suggestive and interesting. Dr. Edersheim, besides translating, has annotated the first volume with considerable care. The second, in the hands of Mr. Martin, has been more simply

Newton Dogvane: a Story of English Country Life. By Francis Francis. With Illustrations by Leech. 3 vols. (Hurst & Blackett.)—' Newton Dogvane' is an entertaining extravagant collection of adventures and misadventures in every branch of what our French neighbours call le sport; they are linked together by the slightest possible narra-tive,—for, except that where there is sport there must needs be people, 'Newton Dogvane' might as well have been without its heroes and heroines. Everybody comes on to shoot, or to fish, or to ride, or to play at cards; but the incident is for the sake of that individual incident, and not to help for-ward a plot, or to develope a character. The ward a plot, or to develope a character. author occasionally takes the opportunity of giving utterance to his own personal opinions on various points,—such as the superiority of the agricultural mind and manners over those of the same class in commercial districts; also on the general conduct of the late war, with thoughts on the Turkish contingent. A good deal of the last volume is occupied by the Siege of Kars, at which some of the characters are suddenly sent to assist. Of story or plot there is next to none,—the incidents being all transacted on independent principles. Many timehonoured myths are brought into play,—such as the old Circus horse, which begins to perform in the Street, to the great discomfiture of its rider, upon hearing a German band strike up some well-remembered "genteelest of tunes," to which it had been taught to dance, &c.: but all is told pleasantly and with spirit, the reader is kept in good humour,—accepting with gratitude the hearty laugh that from time to time is found in the pages. The actors, in the moving incidents the pages. The actors, in the moving incidents of field and flood, are pleasant improbabilities: but there is so much good temper and good feeling shown in the management of the marion-nettes, that the reader is obliged to take an interest in them,-not even excluding from his grace Mr. Tightner, the dog—fancier, we suppose he would call himself. There is a good deal of talent run-ning wild in the book; and though 'Newton Dogvane' is not a novel according to any order of art, it is three amusing volumes. Let the reader be thankful.

She and He—[Elle et Lui]. By George Sand. (Hachette & Co.)—The lovers of scandal and personal history in fiction are to be pitied. In sp of an attempt made in Paris to recommend this novel, as something peculiarly vicious and spiteful, —as an episode of real love-life, done in whitewash —as an episode of real love-life, done in whitewash for the living, and blacking as regards a dead man of genius,—in spite of 'He and She' being set up in counterpart, by one who is pointed out as the survivor of the man of genius, desirous of whitewashing the dead and blackening the living,—the lovers of such wretched work in fiction, we repeat, are to be pitied. Not even when Madame Dudewast wished to show off at the express of her want wished to show off, at the expense of her mother's memory, inher 'Memoirs,'—noteven when she there painted how her sublime devotion to Chopin was utterly worn out by the egotism and exac-tions of her morbid protégé, was she duller than in this new tale, which moreover, she has told twice—what do we say?—twenty times, in 'Horace,' in 'Lucrezia Floriani,' in half a hundred pictures of a woman, herself totally unimpassioned, who, to save some selfish man from suffering, -in the sublimest spirit of a sister of charity,—sacrifices her reputation. Every attempt of the kind made bemes duller and duller, more and more vaporous. Neither those who read for scandal nor those who read for story will derive benefit or pleasure from She and He.

Mickey and Bridget: a Love Poem of Erin. By a Wild Irishman. (Kent & Co.)—This is nonsense unmitigated, drivel irredeemable. It reaches that perfection of helpless folly which becomes pardon-

We must dismiss categorically a number of narnative and dramatic poems, slight in texture, and slighter in pretensions. The Lonely Grave; or, the Power of a Mother's Love, by Angus Macpherson (Glasgow, Watson), is a tale in verse, somewhat harrowing and melancholy, as might be feared.—
Francesca; and other Poems, by William Notley (Saunders & Otley), represent, we fancy, the aspirations of an immature fancy towards poetical ex-pressions.—In Linda; or, Beauty and Genius, by Jane C. Simpson (Glasgow, Murray & Son), we have a more ambitious attempt to dramatize and transcendentalize.—Mary; and other Poems, by the Author of 'Lyrics' (Glasgow, Murray & Son), suggest fertile thinking, and a certain depth of sentiment, with taste and cultivation.—Of course, Wallace; or, the Field of Stirling Bridge, by Charles Waddie (Edinburgh, Nimmo), is "an historical play, in five acts," which is the best, or worst, that play, in five acts," which is the best, or worst, that can be said of it.—We find some real quality in White Hands: a Legend of German Chivalry, by Henry Spicer (Bosworth & Harrison), notwithstanding that it is "a tragedy in five acts," unacted.—Count Manstoff (Bennett) is ballast to a variety of "other poems," more or less melodious.—The Maid of Avenet, by D. M. Aird (Bale), professes to be "a ballad opera," but scarcely pretends to be poetical.—Naturally, there is an abundance of gorgeous imagery in Rubuitjut of Omar Khayyam, the Astronomer-Poet of Persia, translated into English Verse (Quaritch), with an excellent biographical introduction.—Another worshipper of the Star in the East is L. A. D., who publishes a piece of excessive light and who publishes a piece of excessive light and fragile Orientalism, entitled Prince Ahmed and the Fair of Pari-Banon (Saunders & Otley Very much more authentic and serious are Miss Fre-Very much more authentic and serious are alias Frederica Berneastel's Récréations de la Jeunesse; ou, Enigmes Historiques (Rolandi), neatly and cleverly adapted for the use of teachers.—Straying from stories to less formal fragments we come upon a cluster of Canadian Ballads, and occasional Verses, by T. D. M'Gee, M.P.P. (Montreal, Lovell), being from a British colony. a friendship's offering from a British colony.— Next, we have what is intended as a satire, inti-Next, we have what is intended as a satire, inti-tuled Shots at Shadows, by Proteus (Hardwick, but the shafts are blunt and unbarbed.—The Monk of War, by Archibald Johnston (Edinburgh, Collie), is noisy, and the rhymes are smitten violently together.—Spray (Macmillan & Co.) is a light and soft splashing of verse, often tender, always elegant, sometimes kindling into a kaleidoscope of agreeable sometimes kindling into a kaleidoscope of agreeable colours.—It is unnecessary to characterize particularly such productions as Poems, by James Lockhart (Swansea, Pearse & Brown),—The Dream of my Youth, by Thomas Russell (Glasgow, Murray & Son),—Reliquia, by Edward Smith (Saunders & Otley),—Solitude, by James Fraser (Partridge & Co.),—Lyra Anglicana: a Poem, in Four Parta, by B. C. Gidley (Unwin),—Lines for the Gentle and Loving, by Thomas Mac-Kellor (Trilbner),—or, Marina, and other Poems, by Thomas Trevor Griffith (Whittaker & Co.);—but as an example to readers who may condemn flying criticism as readers who may condemn flying criticism as flippant, no less than to writers who may mistake a banjo for the lyre of Apollo, we make one quo-tation from "an utterable cram" of language, of language, called by its author Humanity: a Poem of Sympathy (Hall & Co.)—

outhy (Hall & Co.)—

Air inclining—possessing sympathy—
Water gushing—possessing tendency—
Tendency the possessing tendency—
Tendency the possessing tendency—
And as the ear has—life has harmony—
The life is the possessing harmony—
The life is the possessing harmony—
The life is the possessing tendency—
The day is the possessing tendency—
The night consorm—the flery wrath—
The panting bosom—the flery wrath—
Water bolling—possessing sympathy—
Exciting the possessing tendency—
From east—west—north—south—rising sympathy—
East—west—north—south—descending tendency.

The nameless writer goes on, ringing the chae

—The nameless writer goes on, ringing the changes on "sympathy" and "tendency," until we believe he or we must be mad. Are we wrong in advising some people not to become poets?

LIST OF NEW BOOKS,

LIST OF NEW BOOKS.

About's Roman Question, trans by Coape, 8vo. 7z. 6d. cl.
Adams's Descriptive Guide to the Channel Islands, n. ed. 1z. 8vd.
Adams's Descriptive Guide to the Channel Islands, n. ed. 1z. 8vd.
Adams's Pail of Cresus, 3rd edit. fe. 8vo. 2z. 6d. cl.
Andrew's Critical Latin-English Lexicon, new edit. royal 8vo. 13z.
Arnold's First Verse-Book, Fart 2, 3nd edit. 1zmo. 1z. cl. limp.
Blakey's Old Faces in New Masks, er. 8vo. 7z. 6d. cl.
Brish Controversalist, Vol. 1, New Series, fc. 8vo. 3z. 6d. cl.
Brook Farm. royal 18mo. 3z. 6d. cl.
Brook Farm. polal 18mo. 5z. 6d. cl.
Brook Farm. polal 18mo. 5z. 6d. cl.
Chever's Way-marks of the Pilgrimage, new edit. imp. 32mo. 1z.
Contanseau, Prosateurs et Poètes Français, 5th edit. 12mo. 6z. 6d.
Cook's (Elizal Poems, new edit. illuz. fc. 8vo. 5z. cl.
Cook's (Elizal Poems, new edit. illuz. fc. 8vo. 5z. cl.
De Morentin's Beauties of French and Spanish Languages, 1z. 6d.
De Morentin's Beauties of French and Spanish Languages, 1z. 6d.
Doc's Parliamentary Companion, New Parliament, 1889, 4z. 6d. cl.
Droes's Strictures on Collier's new edit. of Shakespeare, 1865, 7z. 6d.
Doc's Elizal Brook, 18d. cl. 2vols. 6z. 6d. cl.
Droes's Strictures on Collier's new edit. 6d. 8vo. 5z. cl.
Droes's Strictures on Collier's new edit. 6d. 8vo. 5z. 6d. cl.
Brook's Holystory, Red on the British Poets, new edit. 5z. 8vd.
Lexalso Lobrary, Red on the British Poets, new edit. 5z. 8vd.
Eliot's Adam Bede, 4th edit's vols. fo. 8vo. 1zz. cl.
Evans's Biography of the Early Church, 2nd edit. 2 vols. 18z. cl.
Evans's Biography of the Early Church, 2nd edit. 2 vols. 18z. cl.
Evans's Biography of the Early Church, 2nd edit. 2 vols. 18z. cl.
Evans's Biography of the Early Church, 5nd edit. 2 vols. 6z. cl.
Evans's Biography of the Early Church, 5nd edit. 2 vols. 6z. cl.
Evans's Biography of the Early Church, 5nd edit. 2 vols. 6z. cl.
Evans's Biography of the Early

and n a ie), tly

No 160U, JUNE 11, OS

jer Congregational Hymn-Rook, 18mo. 4s. cl.
with and South, by the Author of 'Mary Barton,' 3 ed. p. 8vo. 5s.
with and South, by the Author of 'Mary Barton,' 3 ed. p. 8vo. 5s.
with and South, by the Author of 'Mary Barton,' 3 ed. p. 8vo. 5s.
with and South, by the Author of 'No 5s. bell.
our Farm of Four Acres, 2nd edit. cr. 8vo. 5s. bell.
our Farm of Four Acres, 2nd edit. cr. 8vo. 5s. bell.
our Farm of Four Acres, 2nd edit. cr. 8vo. 3s. del.
policit's Practice of the County Courts, 4th edit. by Nicol, 21s. cl.
Remarks on Coinage, with Divine Life, 2s. 8vo. 3s. ed.
Remarks on Coinage, with 15mo. 1s. 3d. bell. del. 1s.
Reposition of the County Courts, 4th edit. by Nicol, 21s. cl.
Reposition of the County Courts, 4th edit. by Nicol, 21s. cl.
Reposition of the County Courts, 4th edit. by Nicol, 21s. cl.
Reposition of the County Courts, 4th edit. by Nicol, 21s. cl.
Reposition of the South County of the South Courts, 2s. del.
Reposition of the South County of the County of Religion, 6 ed. 5s.
Window's Personal Declarion and Revival of Religion, 6 ed. 5s.

THE ROYAL OBSERVATORY.

On Saturday last, in accordance with ancient custom, the Admiralty barge, manned by her gay and quaintly-dressed grew, lay at noon off White-hall Stairs to receive the Visitors of Her Majesty's Royal Observatory. We are old enough to remember that a trip in this barge to Greenwich, reclining on luxurious cushions beneath an awning, was positive enjoyment; but now, in consequence of the foul state of the Thames, which, just as the summer ripens into glorious prime, realizes Pope's description of the Fleet—

—than whom no sluice of mud With deeper sable blots the silver flood, an excursion down the river is not only no longer enjoyable, but almost unendurable.

Official routine, however, ignoring the altered condition of Father Thames, persistently informs the "Visitors" that the Admiralty barge will convey them in aquatic state to Greenwich; but the "Visitors," wiser in their generation than the red-tapists, prefer for the most part journeying to the Observatory by land.

Joining a carriage party, we arrived at the Ob-servatory at three o'clock,—and shortly after the Astronomer Royal, accompanied by the President of the Royal Society—who, by virtue of his office, is Chairman of the Board of Visitors—and a numerous assemblage of eminent scientific men, explained the various alterations, additions to the instruments, and present condition of this great national establishment.

By far the most important event-according to the Astronomer Royal's official report the Visitors—during the past year has been the erection of the new South-east Equatoreal, which, although not yet in a complete working state, is sufficiently finished to show that it will be, in all probability, the finest telescope of its nature in the world. The want of a powerful equatoreal has long been felt at the Observatory, and Mr. Airy has naturally been solicitous to supply this deficiency. The experience that the Astronomer Royal has had in the erection of the large equatoreals at Liverpool and at Cambridge has led him to adopt the old English, or Shuckburgh, form of construction, in preference to the long polar axis with telescope on one side, or the German form. He has been the more particular with respect to the mounting of the instrument, as he has never lost sight of the consideration, that in observatories like that at Greenwich an equatoreal cannot be considered as a mere commodious support for a gazing telescope, but must be regarded as a firm, graduated instrument, with which right ascensions and polar distances can be determined with considerable accuracy. Remarking, then, the dia-meters of the graduated circles, but still more the diameters of the racked circles and the clamp s, on which the steadiness of clock movement or the firmness of clamps must depend,—remarking also the engineering objections, as regards weakness and friction, to the support of an instrument which projects beyond its two bearings,—Mr. Airy prefers the English form, which he has adopted with no novelty of principle, except that the declination axis is so advanced in front of the centre of the polar axis, and the upper part of the polar frame is so cut away, that the telescope commands the meridian without interruption to, and a little way beyond, the pole. Each cheek of the polar axis is a skeleton prism; and this form is braced against torsion if each of its sides is braced. The bracing is effected by a series of diagonal tension bars, and transversal thrusting bars (each being drawn or thrust by its appropriate screw motion), the long pillars and the bars being of wrought-iron. The upper and lower ovals which carry these are of cast-iron. On the spindle of the lower oval turns freely the hour-wheel, 6 feet in diameter, on which the clock-movement acts. Microscopes are employed to observe the gradua-tions of the circles. The communication of time is made by a small clock with a 10-inch pendulum beating seconds, near the fixed microscope of the hour-circle, and by a galvanic chronometer carried by the eye-end of the telescope; but these clocks do not give independent times: the wire of a gal-vanic battery, whose circuit is completed at 59° of every minute of the transit-clock, is carried through a coil into which swings a bar-magnet carried by the 10-inch pendulum, and is also carried through the coils of the galvanic chronometer, and thus the 10-inch clock is regulated and the chronometer is moved, in exact accordance with the transit-clock. The seconds-wheel of the chronometer has only 59 teeth, and the seconds-dial has only 59 divisions, one of which counts for the two successive seconds (28 and 29); this is necessary in consequence of the loss of one current per minute in the transit-clock, as before remarked. In the 10-inch clock there is no such anomaly.

Another pair of galvanic wires is brought by insulated rings and springs to a touch-piece at the eye-end of the telescope; these wires are connected with the pricker of the chronographic barrel, so that times may be registered on the same sheets as the times of observations with the transit circle and the altazimuth.

The clock movement of the hour-circle is effected by extremely beautiful mechanism. By water falling 25 feet through a tube, a reaction machine (Barker's Mill) is made to revolve four times in a (Barker's Mill) is made to revolve four times in a second. This, acting through two worms, drives the hour-circle. For its regulation it gives motion to an axis revolving in 2', which acts upon a conical pendulum (carried by two pairs of springs that do the duty of a universal joint), by the remarkable contrivance called Sieman's Chronometric Governor, of which the effect is that, if there is a tendency to acceleration, the throttle-valve of the water-pipe is immediately contracted. It is necessary that the pendulum suffer a retarding force, which ought to be strictly tangential; to effect this Mr. Airy has so connected a small spade with the rotatory apparatus, that the pendulum by en-larging its cone dips the spade into a trough of The motion of this apparatus is extremely smooth and uniform.

The object glass has been furnished by Messrs.
Merz & Son, of Munich, and is found to give very perfect definition. In consequence of the focal length being considerably less than was apprehended, the whole apparatus is therefore somewhat larger than is absolutely necessary. It might, with some inconvenience, be made to carry a telescope of above 20 feet focal length; and if the regions or above 20 feet focal regions near the pole were given up, it might carry one still larger. The instrument is, however, regarded by the Astronomer Royal, as a splendid piece of mechanism, and reflects the highest credit on Messrs. Ransomes & Sims, of Ipswich, who executed the engineer's work, and on Mr. Simms, of Fleet Street, who executed the graduations and the optical parts generally. The pendulum of the clock movement, and the 10-inch clock, were furnished and mounted by Mr. Dent, and the galvanic chronometer was made by Mr. Shepherd.

The Astronomical instruments and the Galvanic The Astronomical instruments and the Galvanic apparatus are stated to be in good working order. With respect to the Magnetical instruments, the vertical-force magnet, which rocks on knife-edges, has not performed satisfactorily during the late winter. The daily magnetic curve has been gradually assuming a form approaching much more nearly to a straight line than it had usually given, and, in particular, wanting altogether the remarkable sharp bends at certain hours of the day, which we know to be characteristic of the vertical force. we know to be characteristic of the vertical force. The knife-edges have now been reground and polished, and the agate planes, which on examination were found to be far from correct, re-adjusted, and when the instrument was re-mounted, the magnet again presented curves of the well-known form. Mr. Airy states that there is no difficulty in fixing precisely on the time when the indications began to be faulty.

The Divergencedles still occasion him much per-

The Dipping-needles still occasion him much per-plexity. The Observatory possesses several needles apparently well made, used with great care, each one giving results as consistent among themselves as the deductions of other observers which have reached. Mr. Airx, and was the means of the differreached Mr. Airy; and yet the means of the differ-ent needles are discordant by more than a quarter ent needles are discordant by more than a quarter of a degree. Prof. Hansteen, the best authority of Continental Europe, strongly objects to a reduction of the dimensions of the needle, like that which has been lately introduced in England; Mr. Airy, however, proposes, whether the dimensions be large or small, to alter the arrangement in the following way. There is no reason, he thinks, for confining the mounting of a stationary needle to the same dimensions as are proper for that of a travelling needle. He proposes, therefore, to have a proper rotatory frame with long axis, in a pedestal, and long microscopes for reading, and a revolving gaslight. This arrangement is expected to deliver the observations from some causes of uncertainty the observations from some causes of uncertainty which now attach to them.

which now attach to them.

'The Meteorological instruments are in good working order. In the radiation thermometer a decided improvement has been made by inclosing its bulb in an exhausted glass globe.

The mean westerly magnetic declination for 1858 is about 21° 29° 30°, having gradually diminished about 5' in the year. The mean dip with large needles is 68° 26°-3, and with small needles 68° 20°-7; the change from 1857 (as inferred from considered as hereofore, the most important of the New York of tions is considered, as heretofore, the most impor-tant duty of the Observatory. The large Clock-Star Catalogue of 193 stars is thoroughly observed (if possible) every year. There are likewise stars which have been observed with the moon or in occultations, or stars which have some peculiar claims for observation. Of moveable bodies, the moon never passes unobserved, if visible; the sun and all the planets are observed when they pass before 15<sup>h</sup>, except on Sundays; and when the moon passes after 15<sup>h</sup>, any large planets passing after 15<sup>h</sup> are observed. For transits the chronographic method is used, except for close circumpolar stars.

The number of meridional observations, from the 22nd of May, 1858, to the 16th of May, 1859, inclusive, is as follows:—Transits (two limbs, or two different systems of wires, being counted as two), 5,215; pairs of observations of the collimators by the transit-circle, 305; observations of transitwires by reflection, 350; observations of collimator by collimator, 52; circle observations of all kinds, 5,141; observations of wire by reflection (included in the tale of circle observations), 324. No alteration is made in the system of adjustments.

The determination of co-latitude is rather perplexing. A gradual change seems to be going on from year to year, the greatest co-latitude being that of 1854; but the fraction of a second is so small a quantity that it may even depend upon a change in the observer's habit as to the mode of change in the observer's habit as to the mode of applying his eye to the eye-piece, &c.; and thus the Astronomer Royal is unwilling yet to assert that a real change of latitude is certain. The important labour of comparing chronometers has gone on as usual during the past year. The new chronometer-oven has been in perpetual use,—and numerous faults of adjustment, which had escaped the notice of chronometer-makers, have been detected in chronometers. The Post-Office clocks are duly regulated; and the time-hall at Deal is dropped.

duly regulated; and the time-ball at Deal is dropped by direct current, as formerly.

The Astronomer Royal, impressed with the im-portance of enabling ships departing from England on long voyages to have the true time at the latest

Di of th

any (

Neve

e 8161

than solen

Croc

1848 little kept

"Th

Two

were repor

drain

Gene

on h occu

glori

for t conc

of di

all ti

T

men

Sare

crat

first ever a br

that of p war

sho

did the line

it o cut hor

wor

ver

the

me

wa

jev

scr

moment, has contrived galvanic signals, which he has proposed to the Lords of the Admiralty should be exhibited every hour at the Start Point. A model of the apparatus was exhibited and explained by Mr. Airy. The scheme is under the consideraby Mr. Airy. The sch tion of the Admiralty.

In the last autumn a grant from Government enabled a new work to be commenced at the Ob-servatory. This is a comparison of 'Hansen's Tables' Greenwich observations of late years, both meridional and extra-meridional. The sa meruional and extra-meridional. The same observations had, in the daily routine of the Observatory, been compared with the 'Nautical Almanack' or 'Burckhardt's Tables.' The result, says Mr. Airy, for one year (1852), which alone has reached him, is most remarkable, and he states that 'Hansen's Tables' must be regarded as nearly perfect. So great a step, he adds, to the best of his knowledge has never been made in numerical physical theory.

Under the head of General Remarks, Mr. Airy states that, with the inauguration of the New Equatoreal, will terminate the entire change from the old state of the Observatory. There is not now a single person employed, or instrument used in the Observatory which was there in Mr. Pond's time. nor a single room in the Observatory which is used nor a single room in the Observatory which is used as it was used then. In every step of change, however, except this last, the ancient and traditional responsibilities of the Observatory have been most carefully considered; and in the last, the substitution of a new instrument was so absolutely necessary, and the importance of tolerating no instrument except of a high class was so obvious, that no other course was open.

The new and splendid Equatoreal, while it will doubtless not be permitted to remain unused, will not, we know, while the Royal Observatory is under the direction of Mr. Airy, be allowed to interfere with the standard and staple work of this great and important national establishment, which those who had the privilege and gratification of seeing on Saturday last, admitted was never in a more efficient state than it is at the present time.

LORD NORMANBY'S ROMANCE OF THE REVOLU-

WE are requested to give publicity to the following animadversions addressed by M. Étienne Arago to the Marquis of Normanby :

" May 19. "My Lord,—I crave your pardon for having read as late as yesterday, the 18th of May, your political pamphlet, entitled 'A Year of Revolution in Paris.' The copy before me is one of the first edition, and a second edition is said to have been published.—Well, money makes many things easy enough; but even money does not justify you in reprinting a series of calum-nies against a government which proved a faith-ful ally of England, and to which you were accredited; against statesmen in whose circle you have been so assiduously moving; against public functionaries who remember how courtly your Lordship used to be to them in former times

To search the graves of men who died poor and respected—to throw mud on their ashes—wantonly to slander victims of political dissensions on the very shores that shelter them, and by libellous tittle-tattle to embitter the bitter life of exile,—all this, my Lord, is rather ungenerous; and that it is so you may have learnt, first from my friend Louis Blanc, who has confuted you in two lan-guages; then from all political and literary journal-ists both in your country and my own; for it has been your good fortune, my Lord, to elicit from the world, on this occasion, a unanimous expresthe world, on this occasion, a unanimous expres-sion of feeling. Mine is a less important and quite personal task. I have only to express my astonish-ment at the manner, unworthy of you, my Lord, and of myself, in which you have been pleased to state a fact that concerns me.

state a fact that concerns me.

"Your Lordship speaks of the invasion of the Tuileries on the 24th of February, in the following polite and refined style:—"These having rushed in, the work of destruction immediately began, diversified only by that loo humour, so often, here, the accompaniment of wanton mischief. The example of this variety of insult was first set by M. Étienne

Arago, brother of the great Arago, who wrote his name in the King's visiting book, which he found in the entrance-hall, and invited all who followed him, who could write (which were not many), to do the same

"The fact, my Lord, I acknowledge, with due explanation and various readings. It is true that, having entered the Tuileries at the head of 'these,' who were artists, workmen, journalists, students, who were artist, workmen, journaises, students, merchants'-clerks, national guards (most of them could write), I, at my personal risk, wrote my name in one of the two or three visiting-books in the entrance-hall, and true it is that I invited such as followed me to do the same

Your Lordship, in reference to this, speaks of insult, of low humour, of work of destruction. These are very big words about a trifling ludicrous incident introduced into a moving drama, and your indignation is so grand and solemn, that it seems really as if you had it at command. To be plain with you, my Lord, I take you to be over-classic, being a countryman of Shakspeare's. How now! You do not think it to be an excellent process, in the realities of history, to blend what is comical with what is serious, what elicits laughter with what brings tears? Has to such an extent your national taste been perverted by your residence in France as an ambassador?

"At all events, you seem not to be acquainted with all our French sayings,-this one, for example, drawn from a celebrated comedy: 'J ai ri, me voilà désarmé.

"As for me, I know by heart the Métromanie, and I know the French character, too. Finding myself amongst men who had been, for hours, shot at before the Palais-Royal, some of whom were wounded, whilst others had to mourn for the loss of a friend, of a brother, of a son, I called to mind our generous saying. I saw how much the crowd were excited; I could, so to speak, feel their pulses; and, as I was not yet aware of the escape of the Royal Family, I feared reprisals. So I thought of soothing their angry minds. Hence the insult I offered to the aristocratic visiting-book-hence the wanton mischief adorned with my flourish,-hence that low humour I displayed, so much in keeping with the temper of the wretches, whose work of destruction was brought to bear on . . . . a few sheets of striped

"On one occasion, during the Revolution-I mean the great French Revolution—the cry was raised behind l'abbé Maury: 'à la lanterne!' à la lanterne!' Well,' replied the priest coolly, 'will lanterne!— Well, replied the priest coolly, will my being hanged on a lamp-post make you see better? Whereupon the anger of the crowd immediately vanished. They had laughed, and, as a consequence, they were disarmed. I, too, thought of changing anger into merriment. Having spied out that modest visiting-book which your pamph-let is sure to make known to fame, I exclaimed 'Citizens, it is the first time we get admittance into the palace; let us, above all, show good-breeding by writing our names at the door-keeper's. took care not to use the word Suisse: the date was not that of the 10th of August.

"Now, my Lord, as your Lordship has obviously been supplied with a very scanty sketch of the in-vasion of the royal abode, allow me to complete it by a stroke of the pencil, so that you may see that those barbarians, those sacrilegious hordes, those Parisian Attilas, knew very well how to take a joke, and also how to retort it . ... in the French fashion. "I had some apprehension of the possible results of the popular irruption, and felt most anxious to prevent, as much as in my power lay, anything being spoilt—which, by-the-by, was quite consis-tent with my passion for pictures and objects of Art. Accordingly, I got up on an arm-chair, and addressing the crowd: 'Citizens,' said I, 'all this belongs not to the King, but to the nation. Let national property remain untouched!' A workman, looking at me with a smile, and pointing to the arm-chair on which I stood, exclaimed, 'Well said! but, then, you must begin by sparing the handsome damask of this piece of furniture.'—'Quite right!' I replied to the honest upholsterer, as I fancied him to be; I got off the arm-chair, turned the cushion up-side down, and, standing on the cloth not so likely to be injured, I resumed my en cooth not so takeny to be injured, I resumed my ex-hortation . . . with what success you have your-self acknowledged, by stating that a professed thief, having disregarded the order, was given over to summary justice.

"These are the variety of insults of which I set the example. So, when you insultingly contrast my conduct with that of the brother whom I have lost whilst in exile, and who did not cease for a mo to show me fraternal affection, I can, in vindication of myself, put on record these two circumstances of my revolutionary career, which that very brother used to relate with delight and pride.

"If I, more than once, deemed it necessar take part in street-fighting, my heart, even wh had a gun in my hand, was never closed against mercy. The Duke of Orleans, whose hand-whip so mercy. The Funce of Orleans, whose hand wing so touchingly figures in your book, experienced, at Montrouge, on the 30th of July 1830, that mine are not cruel propensities, and that I am the man to protect and to save my adversaries (see Louis Blanc's 'History of Ten Years'). Further, I might set forth letters from the captain and the lieute of a company of municipal guards, stating that, on the 23rd of February 1848, in the Rue Bong l'Abbé, I rescued them from death at the peril of my own life.

"But let me return to the Tuileries, where I have a chance of meeting you, my Lord, with less danger. I was still on the ground-floor, when I was apprised of the departure of Louis-Philippe's It occurred to me that I had someth better to do than to loiter through the apartmen and I repaired to the office of the Reforme news-paper, where we selected the most liberal members the Provisional Government.

"There I was appointed by popular acclamation Postmaster-General. Now, my Lord, I wonder how it is possible that you, an Englishman, should have forgotten what the new head of that administration did. My first concern was the Indian mail. By a happy thought, I directed my attention to it in Paris, a few hours after it had left London, and, owing to the orders I gave, the mail, duly escorted, went from the landing-place in France to its destination, through the barricades and many a population stirred up to revolt.

"If the Ambassador of England does not ret ber such a fact, I do remember that, after June, 1849, when in London, where I was then living as a refugee, I received the visit of two English traders, anxious to offer their services to the French exile who had protected their fortunes sent to the Indies on the 24th of February, 1848. I must add, that the two traders I speak of had been made acquainted with my conduct by letters from high personages. These letters were published in the Moniteur. Allow me to recall them to your memory, which, on this occasion, has played you false

"A Monsieur Étienne Arago, Directeur-général des Postes.

"Monsieur,—Jai l'honneur de vous transmettre la opie d'une dépêche que j'ai reçue du Vicomte Palmerston qui m'ordonne de vous exprimer la reconsaissance du Gourement de S. M. pour les ordres que vous avez bien vouls donner relativement à l'expédition de la dernière male des Indes. Je profite de cette circonstance pour vous renouveler les assurances de ma haute considération.

"NORMANEY." "Paris, ce 6 Mars 1848.

"Foreign-office, 4 Mars 1848. "Milord, — En conséquence de la dépéche de l'édre Scigneurie, No. 121, du 3 de ce mois, Jinvite Voire Exel-lence à exprimer à M. Etienne Arago la reconnisanne du Gouvernement de S. M. pour les ordres qu'il a bien voul donner relativement à la prompte transmission, par la France, des malles de l'Inde. "PALMERSTON."

These two letters, more especially the former, which shows that you had informed your Government of the service rendered to your countrymen, earned for me the following marks of official approbation :-

"Paris, le 8 Mars 1848 "Monsieur le Directeur-général,—J'ai reçu les copies des lettres des Lords Palmerston et Normanby que vous m'avez adressées, et je vous félicite vivement de la haute appréciation dont a été l'objet le service que vous diriges si bien. L'impulsion que vous avez donnée à votre administration en si peu de jours est justement appréciée de tous à l'Intérieur; l'approbation de l'Étranger ne pouvait manquer de confirmer la justice qui vous est rendue de toutes parts. J'ai envoyé aux journaux, pour y être insérée, votre intéressante communication. Recevez, Mon'59

y ex.

your. thief, er to et the t my y to re I

the eur le Directeur-général, l'assurance de ma considération stinguée, Pour le Ministre Lamartice : "Le Secrétaire-général, Jules Bastide."

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

Florence, May 30.
DISTANT as we are here from the immediate scene of the War, and unvisited as yet, I thank God! by any of its more terrible accessories, the last two days in Florence have been brimful of excitement. days in Florence have been brimful of excitement. On these days the whole city has been keeping high festival, though with very dissimilar manifestations. Never was the well-known saying, that "les jours as suivent et ne se reasemblent pax," better exemplified than on this occasion. On Saturday, the 28th, a solemn service for the dead was celebrated at Santa Croce, in memory of the brave Tuscans who fell in 1848 at the disastrous fight of Curtatone, where a little band, of some five or six thousand volunteers, kept an overwhelming Austrian force at bay for hapt an overwhelming Australia force as bay of many hours, and arrested from grim old Radetzky the half-approving, half-indignant confession, "These boys will make me lose a whole day." Two bronze tablets, bearing the names of the slain, were erected a few months after the event, by the ipality, on either side of the high altar of Santa Croce, and a service was celebrated for their repose both in 1849 and 1850 on the anniversary of the battle. In 1851, when Austrian troops were of the battle. In 1801, when Austrian troops were draining the resources of Tuscany, and Austrian Generals pronouncing sentence of death and exile on her citizens from their head-quarters at Verona, occurred the well-known and most shameful outrage in that venerable church where lie the most gorious of the Tuscan dead. The citizens, for-bidden to have mass sung or commemoration made for their departed, brought garlands on the anni-versary of the battle to hang upon the votive tablets sacred with the names of friends, sons, or brothers. They were pushed back by disguised gadarmes, and on resisting were instantly assailed rious of the Tuscan dead. The citizens, forgenuarities, and on resisting were instantly assumed by more of the same corps, who issued from their concealment in the sacristy and fired on the crowd in the body of the church, which presented a scene of dismay and horror that has burned itself in for all time on the hearts of the Tuscan people.

That very night the tablets were pulled down by order of the Government, and concealed at the Fortezza da Basso. Duplicates of these contraband memorials were erected by permission of the Sardinian Government on the monument conse-crated to their own slain at Turin, and one of the first acts of our provisional Government, after the events of last month, was to restore the tablets to their original place in Santa Croce.

A witty English weekly journal, which amuses the simple credence of its readers at the expense of a brave and long suffering people trying hard to shake off an unendurable yoke, may be assured that our provisional Government, in its first days of power, had something better and more serious to do than to puzzle over the vexed question, whether their courtesy should give up to the Grand-Duchess, as "to a woman in distress," the entirety of her wardrobe, or whether their republican sternness should refuse to deliver it at her entreaty. Neither did they at last, after profound consideration, cut the knot of the difficulty by "relinquishing her linen, and retaining her silk dresses." Surely it is a lamentable waste of wholesome laughter to spend it on Malice gone a masquing in such a flimsy garb as this; and even here, where the taunt should have cut deepest, among the men who worked hard and honestly at our bloodless and unpaid revolution,— worked with heart and soul to keep it unpaid and worked with heart and soul to keep it unpaid and bloodless,—even among them, the good joke of a Go-vernment hungering after the possession of silk dresses seems to excite nothing beyond a shrug of the supremest contempt, so well it is known to all classes that not only did the provisional Govern-ment not piller a single chiffon from the Duchess's wardrobe, but that every article of the very costly jewels belonging to the Grand-Ducal family was scrupulously and immediately sent after them, having been left behind, one can only suppose, by way of temptation, as for many weeks previously large cases of precious belongings had been continu-ally sent out of Tuscany by its then rulers. These very jewels may very probably by this time have been pawned in an outburst of generous family | The Prior of the convent celebrated maffection to feed the soldiers of bankrupt Austria, | due pomp and circumstance, though w like her own crown jewels.

The solemn ceremony for the slain at Curtatone was performed on the 28th of this month instead of the 29th, which is the real anniversary, because the latter fell on a Sunday, and, being a Festa, mass for the dead cannot be solemnized on it. From 5 o'clock on Saturday morning, a dense crowd filled the Piazza Santa Croce, although the church was not to open until 9 o'clock. Over each of the three western doors an inscription was erected, framed in a deep black border. That in the centre announced the anniversary of the struggle for Italian independence. The other two were well fitted to send a thrill of enthusiasm through the hearts of their eager readers. That on the right ran thus:-

Entrate oggi securi
Dagli empi comandi micidiali
A onorare l'estinta vanguardia
Di Liberazion della Patria.

In English thus, though sorely tamed by translation:—"Enter safe, on this day at least, from impious and murderous orders, to do honour to the "Enter safe, on this day at least, from slain vanguard of our country's freedom." the left-hand door was written:-

Portate non lagrime e lutto, Ma corone d'alloro, Dinanzi al prodighi della vita Contro l'Austriaco tiranno.

Anglied,—"Bring not hither tears and lamenta-tions, but crowns of laurel to those who laid down life fighting against the Austrian tyrant."

Half-way down the grand old nave of the church, full in front of the high altar, with proud monuments on every hand of the mighty ones of old Florence—who that has once stood there can ever forget the spot !- was raised a huge military catafalco, rearing itself up towards the bare rafters of Juco, rearing itself up towards the bare ratters of the Gothic roof. It was built up of trophies of arms, bas-reliefs, masses of laurels and flowers white and red, mixed with thousands of wax-tapers and black and silver hangings, and crowned with a richly-decorated sarcophagus. In front of the lofty pile, towards the western doors, stood, telling a tale pile, towards the western doors, stood, telling a tale of strange pathos, to come from such brazen mouths, two of the poor little baby cannon which, on the battle-day, dared to front the thundering Austrian batteries with their puny protest of right against might. On either side, against the pillars of the nave, were numerous inscriptions, framed in wreaths of lawest and flowers come of the thought of the contract of the strength of the contract of the contr of laurel and flowers, some of them of stirring effect on the crowds beneath, such as this:—"The prayers which, for ten years, ye have offered to the Holy of Holies for your Italian brethren are already accepted, and they shall be fulfilled." Over all hung, from the roof, a huge black velvet banner, with the words, perhaps most eloquent of all,—
"To-day we celebrate the morrow of 1848!"
Behind the catafalco facing the high altar, stood a colossal statue of Italy, by Cambi, very admirable for its expressive power, and the earnest entreaty of the outstretched arms, imploringly lifting crowns of cypress and laurel up towards the Eternal Throne. and saying, in the words of an inscription too long for me to quote entire, "Great God! who createds me Queen of the Nations, who willedst in thy justice that I, for my transgressions, should lie en-slaved and trampled on, Great God of Mercy! who now at length grantest me abundant measure of pity for my long sufferings, deign to accept the hallowed memories of these the martyrs for their And, as if in answer from above to the prayer of Italy that the war now waged may "restore me to my own self again, link me in sisternood with the nations, and lay the foundation-stone of holy universal Peace "-so fervently expressed by of noly universal Peace ——so lervently expressed by the upward-gazing figure with her crown of towers and her noble, trustful, beseeching face, the great black banner above her head bore the words, "At last thou hast understood my ways. Thy hope was in me only. With much love hast thou co-vered thy sins; thy faith hath saved thee." The idea is a grand one, and it has been worthily worked out. One transept was entirely occupied by an immense music gallery, filled with every professor, vocal and instrumental, of whom Florence can boast. A Grand Massand Requiem, composed for the occasion by Signor Mabellini, was performed at ten o'clock.

due pomp and circumstance, though with what in-ward recalcitrations and backward readings of the ward recalcitrations and backward readings of the words of blessing, those may guess who know how sedulously the Florentine monastic bodies are said to pray daily for success to the Austrian arms. The whole of the ministry, the Gonfaloniere and municipal officers, were of course present. A few benches were reserved for the specially invited, and places set aside for all the wearers of the medal of 1848. All the rest of the immense church was thronged, packed with thousands of every class, most of them bringing garlands, knots, and crowns of flowers to shower round the base of the catafalco, and beside the bronze tablets, wreathed in their beautiful framework of fresh flowers. And the cost of this noble ceremony—the hard cash remuneration of all the art, labour, invention, lavished lovingly ("not grudgingly nor of necessity") on neration of all the art, labour, invention, lavished lovingly ("not grudgingly nor of necessity") on every part of the pageant,—whence came it? Who pays the assuredly heavy bills for all this array of statues and velvet hangings, new requients, inscriptions, wax torches, &c.,—not to speak of flowers, for they may be had for the asking? Was-Piedmont, perhaps, the paymaster?—Gallant, struggling, bleeding Piedmont, which has just been ging, breeding Fredmont, when has just over represented in some of the monstrous fictions of an influential English journal as having first bought (poor dupe!) the Tuscan troops over at so much a head, and afterwards been forced, of her poverty, to contribute the funds needful to maintain them to contribute the funds needful to maintain them living here at home at ease, merely playing at soldiers, and preventing the tide of volunteers from flowing northwards to the help of the Allies.—Was it deluded Piedmont that paid for our pleasure, yet once again? No. To the honour of Florence and Florentines be it spoken, the commemoration of Saturday last has cost not one cavis it can wind; Saturday last has cost not one crazia to any indi-vidual of any rank of society. From the first maestro who composed the music and led the ormaestro who composed the music and led the or-chestra, to the poorest artizan who nailed the planks-and piled the cannon-balls and muskets, not one-would condescend to accept the hire of his services-nor the payment of his goods for so sacred a work. The whole pageant was a spontaneous heart-offer-ing of every class of the people, and as such it was-invested with a higher beauty and a truer worthi-ness even than that which clothed it bodily.

When I took up my pen, I had purposed giving you a slight pencilling of our second day's solemnity, the blessing of the Tuscan banners, and the any, the dessing of the Tuscan banners, and the unwonted aspect now displayed by our beautiful Cascine; but the length to which this letter has run forbids my trespassing further upon your space, and I must leave my sketch of the second day's doings for another letter.

Th. T.

By permission of the Lord Mayor, the members of the London and Middlesex Archæological Society will hold a meeting, on Tuesday next, at Guildhall.

Four fresh pictures have been added to the National Portrait Gallery:—Abraham Cowley, John Selden, Lord Howe, and the Duke of

A new literary fund is in progress of creation— the Royal Society taking the initiative—with the special character of a fund for the assistance of gentlemen eminent in the lore and service of Science. Such a society should be needless, and would be so were the association in Bloomsbury Square conducted in harmony with the desires of its founder. The neglect of the Literary Fund justifies the action of the Royal Society. Ten thousand pounds are to be raised. About a hundred gentlemen have subscribed their names,—about a fifth of these for 100% each. We shall rejoice in the success of this attempt to create such a provithe success of this attempt to create such a provision, though we may regret the mismanagement which renders a separate provision necessary. So long as the Bloomsbury Square body wilfully sinks itself to the workhouse level, and resolutely rejects every proposal for raising its character and attaching it in spirit and in fact to literature, we must expect to see other institutions arise to do its work.

David Cox, the high priest of rustic nature, has gone from among living men,—leaving, in its way, a void like that caused by the death of Turner.

MUX

There was only one David Cox. He was born in 1783, and died on Tuesday last, in a green and happy old age, at his little Warwickshire cottage, Harborne Heath, by the great hammering town of Birmingham, yet close enough for a ramble to the leafy woods he loved so well. Stony Wales and castled Yorkshire, however, not leafy Warwickshire, had been the scenery of his studies and his triumphs. The wet moorland, the hanging wood, the dark quarry, the rattling rivulet, the stormy sky, the rain-laden and wind-blown cloud—these were the aspects of nature on which his eye dwelt with peculiar love. His brush was easy and his power of hinting detail marvellous. No man who ever lived could say so much with means so slight. This faculty arose from its perfect mastery of his observation. Nothing in nature seemed to escape his eye, and what he saw perfectly he could depict perfectly. Cox has left behind him innumerable proofs of this art of seeing well; of that patience of observation which grows at last into genius. His wonderful eye for the intricacies and tones of shrub, cloud and rain, gives to his drawings the deceptive touch of life. Happy the man who has warns of these in his portfolic!

deceptive touch of life. Happy one many of these in his portfolio!

Charles Ollier, a poet and a friend of poets, is another name to be added to the obituary of the week. Mr. Ollier was born in 1788, and was consequently in his seventy-first year. His first connexion with letters was chiefly that of a publisher; and his name will be found on the titlepage of some of Keata's and Shelley's early works.

page of some of Keata's and Shelley's early works.

Brilliant weather, company and flowers, made up a day of special enjoyment at the Crystal Palace on Wednesday. The Gardeners dined together in the evening, under the presidency of Mr. Justice Halibutton.

Mr. Justice Haliburton.

Next Wednesday the second of the English flower-shows will be held at the Royal Botanic Gardens, Regent's Park.

"The man who would call everything by its right name," says Shaftesbury, "would be stoned in the streets." How of the man who chooses to call things—himself included—by a wrong name? Take the case of the gentleman writing under the mask of George Eliot,—writing 'Adam Bede' and 'Sketches of Clerical Life.' If a man pleases to sign himself George Eliot instead of (say) John Jones, does any one from that fancy or reserve of his acquire a right to assume the credit of his work—to trade on this assumption—to misrepresent his publishers—and raise money on his assumed distress? All this, it is said, has been done by a certain, or uncertain, Mr. Liggins. Mr. Liggins, we are told, claims to be the author of 'Adam Bede,'—claims to have been ill-treated by Messrs. Blackwood,—claims to be in great distress,—and claims also public charity on the ground of having written a successful tale. Hereupon Messrs. Blackwood, under their proper personalities, and the shadowy George Eliot, write to the Times, protesting that Mr. Liggins's claim to renown and halfpence is a mere imposture. Thus:—

"Sir,—If you receive any more letters about the authorship of 'Scenes of Clerical Life' and 'Adam Bede,' will you be so kind as to publish this note? Those works are not written by Mr. Liggins, or by any one with a name like Liggins, and if any person is receiving charitable contributions on the ground of being the author of the said works, he is doing so under false pretences. The author is known to us, and subjoined is a copy of a note we have received from him since the appearance of the letter of your correspondent 'S. G. O.'—We have the honour to be, your most obedient servants,

WM. Blackwood & Sons."

"My dear Mr. Blackwood,—As it seems my statement that Mr. Liggins is not the author of 'Scenes of Clerical Life' and 'Adam Bede' is by certain persons flatly contradicted, I wish you would add the weight of your testimony to the truth of what I have stated. It is the more painful to me that Mr. Liggins, or any one else, should be receiving charitable donations on the ground that your treatment of me has not been sufficiently liberal, because I, for my part, can only wish that every author had equal reason to be satisfied with his publisher. If those benevolent persons who persist in attributing the authorship of the works in question to Mr. Liggins will induce Mr. Liggins to write one chapter of a story, that chapter may possibly do what my denial has failed to do.

"Yours most sincerely, George Eliot."
"To John Blackwood, Eq."

"To John Blackwood, Esq."

—The doubt arises—who is Mr. Liggins? Has anybody ever seen him in the flesh? Is he a shadow like George Eliot?

An error of the press, which the author of 'Robert Mornay' very fairly asks us to correct, described that novel as having for subject the struggles of "modern fanaticism." We should have said, modern Faustism. The error was purely typographical.

Mr. Brent desires to say a word—an unpleasant word—on the Rev. Mr. Jephson's 'Narrative of a Walking Tour in Brittany':—

"Not having the above work before me, reviewed in the Athenaum on the 28th of May 1859, I am unable to say how far the author has omitted to acknowledge the sources whence he has derived a considerable portion of his information. In respect, however, of the extracts given in the Athenaum, No. 1648, I beg to state that the description of the wedding ceremonies at Quimper, and the dialogue between the 'Bazvalan' and 'Breutaér,' and the 'Marriage Song' is taken verbatim from M. T. H. De la Villemarque's 'Baryaz Breiz,' or 'Popular Songs of Brittany,' published 1846—see vol. 2, page 297. A condensed translation of the above appeared in Tait's Edinburgh Magazine for February 1853, page 93, in a paper entitled 'The Popular Poetry of Brittany.' I am, &c., "JOHN BRENT, JUN."

—Mr. Jephson must defend himself—if he can-from this charge of appropriation.

The Medical Society of Geneva offer two prizes, of 1,000 and 500 francs, for the best and second best essays 'On the Diagnosis of Small Pox, Vaccination, and Re-vaccination.' The essays, which may be written in Latin, French, German, English, or Italian, must be sent in on or before the 1st of June, 1860, addressed to the Secretary of the Society.

The gentleman who signs himself "The Reviewing Editor of the World" begs an additional line of explanation:—

"9, Charing Cross, June 4.

"Mr. Cooper's letter is satisfactory of my right to having called myself 'The Reviewing Editor of the World'; but there is one point not touched upon therein, of which, in justice, I must request you to give space for my explanation and denial. The expressions in the letter to which you apply the epithets 'puff past and puff future' were used as expressions of courtesy merely to a well-known author of a meritorious work. Morever, I aver that I have never written a letter to any author or publisher hinting, even in the most obscure terms, that a favourable review would be given of any work amplied for by me."

of any work applied for by me."
Prof. David, of Louvain, has edited the second volume of Jacob von Maerland's celebrated work 'Rymbybel,' at the expense of Government. Belgium has but few works to equal this in typographic luxury. The Royal Belgian Academy has now undertaken the publication of this master-work of old Flemish literature, as a national monu-

The Prussian Government is going to erect a monument on the battle-field of Rossbach. It is to consist of a colossal stone cube, surmounted by a cross, and with the Prussian eagle in a niche. The sculptor, Herr Stürmer, of Berlin, has been intrusted with the execution of this monument.

The town of Damme, in East Flanders, has been permitted by a royal decree to erect a monument to the old Flemish poet, Jacob van Maerlant, who was born at Damme. At the same time, prizes are offered for the best critical biography of the poet (written in Flemish) and a poem in his honour. The expense of the monument will be covered by voluntary subscriptions: the prizes (two gold medals and two purses of 1,000 francs each) are given by the Belgian Government. The sale of the Lee Priory pictures, which was previously announced in these columns, has tak place. The merit of these pictures in point of Art was very far below what had been anticipated. was very far below what and been amendated. Several of the most celebrated, to wit, the Brandon Duke of Suffolk and Mary of France, and the Holbein miniature of Anne of Cleves, which did so much mischief, had been previously abstracted. The one is now, we believe, at Woburn Abbey, the other at Col. Meyrick's, Goodrich Castle. Those that remained seem to have suffered most woefully from damp and neglect. An early Flemish picture, to which the name of Mabuse had been given, was more fortunate in point of condition.

It was fairly well preserved, and excited a great deal of interest. The attractive points, however, deal of interest. In a attractive points, non-tag were almost entirely confined to manipulation and to the exquisite minuteness with which every part to the exquisite influences and a very parties was finished. This large square pannel contains five figures, and was originally only a portion of a large reredos, or a series of pictures forming an a large reredos, or a series of pictures forming an altar decoration. The donor, an ecclesiastic in a white robe, kneels with folded hands, and is supwhite rooe, theels with folded hands, and is sup-ported by two patron saints, a bishop and a monk, probably St. Bernardino, of Siena. Behind him stands a second bishop, and to the extreme left in the distance is seen a beggar advancing along a road. By far the most interesting, and unspoil by restoration, was the so-called 'Portrait of Marby restoration, was the so-called 'Portrait of Mar-garet Tudon,' sister to our King Henry the Eighth. The 'Catherineof Arragon,' once a valuable picture, no doubt, has been so entirely bedaubed and plas-tered over with paint that nothing but the general appearance any longer remains. A small 'Head of Cromwell, Earl of Essex,' although much ruined, was full of individuality of character and expression. A small 'Portrait of Henry the Eighth.' viewed most unusually, in three-quarter, was val able also for portraiture. The much-talked-of picture of 'Henry the Eighth,' life-size and in front view, was as completely defaced by modern paint as the 'Catherine of Arragon.' A characteristichead of Dr. Busby was purchased for the family. Hudson's full-length portrait of a young Barrett, in blue, was an admirable specimen of the peculiar attainments of the artist, and interesting, also, as anticipating much of what Gainsborough afterwards performed in his much-talked-of Blue Boy.

Pre

wer

We Mo

lan

185 Pla wic

Occ Ro

vat

Con No by log

tur

cor

esp Bo

Os:

gu to

ROYAL ACADEMY of ARTS, Trafalgar Square.—The EXHI-BITION of the Royal Academy is NOW OPEN.—Admission (from Eight till Seven o'clock, One Shilling. Catalogues, One Shilling. JOHN PRESCOTT KNIGHT, R.A., Secretary.

SOCIETY of PAINTERS in WATER-COLOURS. — The FIFTY-FIFTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION is NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 5, Pail Mail East close to the National Gallery, from Nine till Dusk.—Admittance, is.; Catalogue, 6d.

JOSEPH J. JENKINS, Secretary.

The NEW SOCIETY of PAINTERS in WATER-COLOURS.

-The TWENTY-FIFTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION of this Society is NOW OPEN at their Gallery, 53, Fall Mall, near St. James's Palace, daily from Nine till Dusk.—Admission, 14; Season Tokets, 58.

'THE DERBY DAY,' by W. P. FRITH, R.A., is now ON VIEW at the GERMAN GALLERY, 168, New Bond Street. Open from 10 a.m. to 5 r.m.—Admission, One Shilling.

FRENCH EXHIBITION, 120, Pall Mall.—The SIXTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION of PICTURES, the Contributions of Artists of the French and Flemish Schools, is NOW OPEN. Also in the same building, the Works of DAVID COX.—Admission, 14; Catalogues, 6d. each. From Tea till Five.

EXHIBITION—NOW OPEN.—Messrs. DICKINSON baring been intrusted by the Proprietors with the loan of the various Pictures and Portraits executed in their establishment, begs to announce that for the next mouth they are on Public Exhibition.—Admittance, i.s.—114, New Bond Street.

ARCHITECTURAL EXHIBITION, 9, Conduit Street, Regen Street, WILL CLOSE JUNE 30.—Admission, One Shilling. JAS. FERGUSSON, Hon. JAS. EDMESTON, Secs.

VICTORIA CROSS GALLERY, EGYPTIAN HALL, Piendilly,—Open from Ten till Six; Evening, from half-past Seven till Ten.—A Sevries of large Historical Paintings, by L. W. Desanges, authentically illustrating with life-size Portraits the bravery and stirring deeds of those who gained the Victoria Cross of Valour in the Russian and Indian Wars.

BENARES and the SACRED GANGES, is NOW OPEN, at BURPORD'S PANORAMA, showing the entire beauties of this Holy City, and the wonderful expanse of Sacred Waters before it. —CANTON, from the Magazine Hill, and the RIGHI KULM at Sunrise, showing a large portion of Switzerland, are also open daily, from Ten till dusk.—Admission, is, to each view. BURPORD S, Leiesster Square.

WILITSUNTIDE HOLIDAYS.—GREAT GLOBE, Leiceiter Square, GRAND MOVING DIORAM AS of SITES and SCENES of the WAR in ITALY, The Tour of the Rhine, China-Japan, and the Campaign in India—Prance, Austria, and the Italian War.—Great Globe, Leicester Square.—Admission to the whole, One Shilling.

WHITSUN HOLYDAYS.—ROYAL POLYTECHNIC INSTI-TUTION.—Patron, H.R.H. the PRINCE CONSORT.—Open daily as usual, from Twelve to Five; Evenings from Seven to Ten-

Art

ted. the nce,

ves,

an n a

in

W

MADAME LOLA MONTEZ (Countess of Landsfeld) will de-liver positively her last Lecture in London, at St. James's Hall, of WEDNESDAY, June 15. Subject, STRONG-MINDED WOMEN, with an amuning Account of the "Woman's Rights Womens in Kight. Carriages, Quarter to Ten.—Stalls, St.; Re-sident Carriages, Quarter to Ten.—Stalls, St.; Re-ventional Musicellers.

BOYAL COLOSSEUM.—OPEN DAILY.—Eight First-Class Rabblitions and Entertainments. Open, Morning, Twelve till five; Erening, Seven till half-past Ten.—Admission, la; Children ander Ten and Schools, 6d. ander Ten and Schools, 6d.

Dr. KAHN'S MUSEUM, top of the Haymarket (open for Gentlemen only).—Dr. Kahn will deliver Lectures daily, at Three and half-past Eight, at his unrivalled and original Museum, on important and interesting topics in connexion with Asatomy, Physology, and Pathology vide Programme). Ad-mission, iz.—Dr. Kahn's Lectures, ac., free by post for twelve samps, direct from the Author, Ir., Harley Street, Cavendish

MADAME CAPLIN'S ANATOMICAL and PHYSIOLO-GICAL GALLERY (for Ladies only), OPEN DAILY, 58, Berners street, Oxford Streets, W. Lectures on Wednesdays by Madame Caplin, commending at 1 o clock.

BOYAL INSTITUTE Of ANATOMY and SCIENCE, 369, OXFORD STREET, nearly opposite the Princess's Theatre—for ERVILEMEN ONLY, from Eleven A.S. till Ten P.M. Popufor ERVILEMEN ONLY, from Eleven A.S. till Ten P.M. Popufine Lectures take place six times every day, illustrated by Scientile Apparatus, and the most superb Collection of Anatomical Specimens and Models in the world: also extraordinary natural weaters and england.—Admission, is.; Catalogue, Pree.—
'A really pleendid collection.

SCIENCE

SOCIETIES.

ASTRONOMICAL. — May 13.— Rev. R. Main, President, in the chair.— Messrs. C. Pinches, W. Davies, W. Thomas, T. Gaunt, and S. Kinns, were elected Fellows.— 'Note from the Astronomer-Royal.' — 'Notice of Traces of Eruptive Action in the Moon,' by the Rev. T. W. Webb.— 'Sur la Variation Séculaire du Moyen Mouvement de la Lune,' par M. de Pontécoulant.— Extract of a Letter from Prof. Hansen at the Astronomor Royal detail Gethe May 21. to the Astronomer-Royal, dated Gotha, May 31, 1859. — Results of the Observations of Small Planets, made at the Royal Observations of Greenwich, in the month of April, 1859, communicated by the Astronomer-Royal.—'Observations of the Occultation of Saturn by the Moon, made at the Communicated by the Astronomer-Royal.—'Right Ascension and North Polar Distance of the Minor Planets, from Observations made at the Madras Observatory in the Years 1853—1857, by Capt. W. S. Jacob, late Director of the Madras Observatory.

GEOLOGICAL.—June 1.—Major-Gen. Portlock, V.P., in the chair.—Messrs. J. Lamont and W. Longman were elected Fellows.—The following Longman were elected Fellows.—The following communications were read:—'On the Sinking for Coal at the Shireoaks Colliery near Worksop, Notts,' by J. Lancaster and C. C. Wright, Esqs.—'Notes on the Geology of Southern Australia,' by A. R. C. Selwyn, Esq., Director of the Geological Survey of Victoria.

ASIATIC. — June 4. — Prof. H. H. Wilson in the chair.—Dr. J. Forbes Watson was elected. — Lord Viscount Strangford concluded his lecture in illustration of Ethnological Sketches from Constantinople. After briefly adverting to the condition of the better-known Asiatic nationalities, residing in greater or less numbers in that capital,—such as the Jews, the Armenians, the Persians and Indians,—the lecturer gave a more detailed account of the widely-extended Turk race, especially of its central Asiatic members,-men of Bokhara, Kokan, and Chinese Turkistan, of whom many are to be found sojourning among their anli brothers. His Lordship dwelt upon these osaiani forthers. His Lorusing dweit upon these widely-spread tribes of one great race; and pointed out that a man acquainted with the Turkish language might travel from the banks of the Danube to the wall of China, and find himself perfectly understood throughout that large tract, without a right hand, the control of t ingle break, in a zone which stretches over nearly quarter of the whole circumference of the globe. A sketch of the physical geography and political history of these remote and almost unknown counwas then given; and special reference was the various religious changes of these races; their once flourishing literature, of which the 'Memoirs of the Emperor Baber' is the best known work; and of the traces of their moral influence to be found in the countries once overrun, or temporarily occupied, by their warlike ancestors. His Lordship concluded with a curious notice of the Turkish language in India. It was the vernacular dialect anguage in India. It was the vernacular dialect of the early Mogul emperors; and, though com-pletely obliterated at present, appears from various notices to have prevailed till shortly before the invasion of Nadir Shah.

Society of Antiquaries.—June 2.—O. Morgan, Esq., V.P., in the chair.—A Report was read from the Council, announcing the receipt by the Society of 2,700l. on account of the Stevenson bequest.—Mr. C. V. Bayley and Mr. W. R. Callender were elected Fellows.—Mr. S. Stone exhibited a pair of fibule, a bucket, and other objects, found at Brighthampton, Oxon.—Viscount Folkestone exhibited a bronze dagger-blade, found on his lordship's estate, with a human skeleton and anurn.—Mr. Evans read a paner (Op the occurrence of —Mr. Evans read a paper 'On the occurrence of Flint Implements in undisturbed Beds of Gravel, Sand, and Clay (such as are known by Geologists under the name of Drift) in several Localities, both on the Continent and this Country.' The first discovery of these implements is due to M. Boucher de Perthes, of Abbeville, who in the pits in that neighbourhood, found flints evidently fashioned by the hand of man, under such conditions as forced upon him the conclusion that they must have been deposited in the spots where they were found at the very period of the formation of the containing beds. M. de Perthes announced his discoveries in a work entitled 'Antiquités Celtiques et Antédilu-viennes,' in 2 vols., the first published in 1849, and the second in 1857; but owing in some measure to the admixture of theory with the facts therein stated, his work has not received the attention it deserves. The late discovery in the Brixham Cave, in Devonshire, of flint weapons in conjunction with the bones of the extinct mammals, had brought the question of the co-existence of man with again prominently forward among geologists, and determined Mr. Prestwich, who has devoted much attention to the later geological formations, to proceed to Abbeville, and investigate upon the spot the discoveries of M. de Perthes. He had there been joined by Mr. Evans, and they had together visited the pits where flint weapons had alleged to have been found, both in the neighbourhood of Abbeville and Amiens. The chalk hills near both these towns are capped with drift, which apparently is continued down into the valleys, ere it assumes a more arenaceous character, and where it assumes a more arenaceous character, and in these beds of sand, as well as more rarely in the more gravelly beds. Upon the hills mammalian remains have been found in large quantities. They include the extinct elephant, rhinoceros, bear, hyæna, tiger, stag, ox and horse—in fact, most of the animals whose bones are so commonly associated together in the drift and caverns of the Post pliocene period. On the hills near Abbeville, and at St. Acheul, near Amiens, the drift varies in thickness from about ten to twenty feet, and consists of beds of subangular gravel, with large flints, and above them sands containing the fragile shells of freshwater mollusca, and beds of brick-earth. It is among the basement beds of gravel, at a slight distance above the chalk, that the flint implements are usually found. They are of three forms:- Flakes of flint apparently intended for knives or arrow-heads.
 Pointed implements, usually truncated at the base, and varying in length from four to nine inches—possibly used as spear or lance heads, which in shape they resemble. 3. Oval or almond-shaped implements, from two to nine inches in length, and with a cutting edge all round. They have generally one end more sharply curved than the other, and occasionally even pointed, and were possibly used as sling-stones, or as axes, cutting er end, with a handle bound round the cen tre. The evidence derived from the implements of made to the regions abounding in gold, readily the first form is not of much weight, on account of approachable from our Indian dependencies, to which our treaty with China ought to allow us access. He then proceeded to give an account of are produced by art or by natural causes. This simplicity of form would also prevent the flint flakes made at the earliest period from fint flakes made at the earliest period from being distinguishable from those of a later date. The case is different with the other two forms of implements, of which numerous specimens were exhibited; all indisputably worked by the hand of man, and not indebted for their shape to any natural configuration or peculiar fracture of the flint. They present no analogy in form to the well-known implements of the so-called Celtic or stone period, which, moreover, have for the most stone period, which, moreover, have for the most part some portion, if not the whole, of their surface ground or polished, and are frequently made from other stones than flint. Those from the drift are, on the contrary, never ground, and are exclusively of flint. They have, indeed, every appearance of having been fabricated by another race of men, who from the fact that the Celtic stone weapons have been found in the superficial soil above the drift containing these ruder weapons, as well as from other considerations, must have inhabited this rom other considerations, must have financiate this region of the globe at a period anterior to its so-called Celtic occupation. This difference in form and character from the ordinary types of stone implements strengthened the probability of their having been found under entirely different circumstances; and Mr. Evans then proceeded to examine the evidence of their having been really discovered in undisturbed beds of gravel, sand, and clay. He in undistureed beds of gravel, sand, and cay. He showed from various circumstances in connexion with them, such as their discoloration by contact with ochreous matter, whitening when imbedded in a clayey matrix, and in some instances being incrusted with carbonate of lime, the extreme probability of their having been deposited in these beds at the very their having been deposited in these beds at the very time of their formation, inasmuch as the unwrought flints adjacent to them had been affected in a pre-cisely similar manner and to no greater extent. This discoloration and incrustation of the imple-ments also proved that they had really been found in the beds out of which they were asserted to have been dug; and their number and the depth from the surface at which they were found were from the surface at which they were found were such that if they had been buried at any period subsequent to the formation of the drift, some evident traces must have been left of the holes dug for this purpose; but none such had been observed, though many hundreds of the implements had been found dispersed through the mass. But besides this circumstantial evidence, there was the direct testimony of MM. Boucher de Perthes, Rigollot and others to the fact of these implements having been discovered underneath undisturbed beds of drift, and many of them under the immebeds of drift, and many of them under the imme-diate eye of M. de Perthes, who, indeed, had been mate eye of M. de Perthes, who, indeed, had been the first to point out the existence of these imple-ments to the workmen. Of the correctness of this testimony, the writer, when visiting with Mr. Prestwich the gravel pit at St. Acheul near Amiens, had received ocular proof. There, at the depth of 11 feet from the surface, in the face of the bank or wall of gravel, the whole of which, with the exception of the surface soil, had its layers of sand, exception of the surface soil, had its layers of sand, gravel and clay entirely undisturbed, was one of these implements in situ, with only the edge exposed, the remainder being still firmly imbedded in the gravel. After having photographs taken of it, so as to verify its position, this implement had been exhumed, and was now exhibited with other speciexhimed, and was now exhibited with other specimens. At a subsequent visit of Mr. Prestwich and some other geologists to the spot, one of the party, by digging into the bank of gravel at a depth of 16 feet from the surface, had dislodged a remarkably fine weapon of the oval form, the beds above being also in a perfectly undisturbed condition. The inevitable conclusion drawn from these facts was, that M. Boucher de Perthes' assertions were fully substantiated, and that these implements had been deposited among the gravel at the time of the formation of the drift. And this conclusion was corroborated in the most remarkable manner by discoveries which had been made long since in England, but whose bearing upon this question had until the present time been overlooked. In the 13th vol. of the 'Archæologia,' is an account by Mr. Frere, in 1797, of the discovery of some flint weapons in Suffolk, in conjunction with Elephant remains, at a depth of 11 to 12 feet from the surface, in gravel overlaid by sand and brick-At a subsequent visit of Mr. Prestwich and coars it is plicit go fi Wife

No

Medi

paint

can glaze

kept

wher

room

burg

an o be c

Bol'

in a

a te of th

> skin you

and fore

over soft

now unfi

tres

elu

Ray

sun

dit

of pro

Do

do Sa

pe

tas fac

me

he sh

a

C

earth, presenting a section extremely analogous with some that might be found near Amiens or Abbeville. Some of these weapons are preserved in the Museum of the Society of Antiquaries and in the British Museum, and are identical in form with those found on the Continent. Mr. Prestwith those found on the Continent. Mr. Prest-wich had been to Suffolk, and verified the disco-veries recorded by Mr. Frere. Flint implements are still found there as well as mammalian remains, but in diminished quantity, only two of the wea-pons having been brought to light during last winter. Another of these implements is in the British Museum, having been formerly in the Kemp and Sloane collections, and is recorded to have been found with an eleghant's tooth in Grav's Inp. been found with an elephant's tooth in Gray's Inn Lane. Similar implements are also reported to have been found in the gravel near Peterborough. These accumulated facts prove, almost beyond controversy, the simultaneous deposition of instruments worked by the hand of man with bones of the extinct mammalia in the drift of the Postpliocene period. Whether the age of man's existence upon the earth is to be carried back far beyond even Egyptian or Chinese chronology, or that of the extinct elephant, rhinoceros and other animals brought down nearer to the present time than has commonly been allowed, must remain a matter for conjecture. Thus much appears nearly indispu-table: that at a remote period, possibly before the separation of England from the Continent, this portion of the globe was densely peopled by man; that implements, the work of his hands, were caught up together with the bones of the extinct mammals by the rush of water, through whose agency the gravel beds were formed; that above this gravel, in comparatively tranquil fresh water, thick beds of sand and loam were deposited, full of the delicate shells of freshwater mollusca, that where all this took place now forms tableland on the summit of hills nearly 200 feet above the level of the sea, in a country whose level is now stationary, and the face of which has remained unaltered during the whole period which history or tradition embraces. In conclusion, Mr. Evans suggested a careful examination of all beds of drift in which elephant remains had been found, with a view of ascertaining the co-existence with them a view of ascertaining the co-existence with them of these fint implements, and still further illustrating their history. Their rudeness, and the fact that they had not been sought for by those who have investigated the drift, may well account for their not having been more generally found. He mentioned the banks of the Thames, the eastern coast of England, the western coast of Sussex, the valleys of the Avon, Severn and Ouse, as localities where the existence of the mammaliferous drift was well known, and where there was every probability of a search for these implements, earliest records of the human race, would be rewarded by success.

NUMISMATIC.—May 26.—W. S. W. Vaux, President, in the chair.—Prof. Donaldson read a paper 'On the Neocor Medals of Cities,' and, more especially, on those of Smyrna, Ephesus, Pergamus, and Perinthus, in which he gave an account of the original meaning of the title "Neokoros," and of its subsequent architectural adoption. In its first sense, it no doubt means simply "the cleanser or sweeper of a temple"; by degrees, however, this humble office became one of great importance, and the title was given, as one of the highest honour, not only to individuals, but also to communities. In the second sense, it occurs in the well-known n the second sense, to occurs in the wen-known passage of the Acts of the Apostles, ch. xix, v. 35, where, however, the Greek Νεωκόρος is very inadequately translated by the English "worshipper." Many hundreds of coins exist, struck by Greek States during the Roman Imperial times, on which this title occurs: in many cases, as on those alluded to above, in connexion with the representations of temples, of which the people or cities are said to have been the Νεωκόροι. There can be no doubt have been the Neuropou. There can be no doubt that, in these instances, the people were considered as the guardians of the sacred fane, and of its treasures, as well as of its rites, festivals, colleges of priests, &c. In this respect, therefore, the rescriptor of the Greeks corresponded very nearly with the additui or addituin of the Romans. A great extension of the principle of the Neocorate occurred when the custom arcse of erecting temples in honour of living or deified emperors, which was, at first, faintly resisted by Augustus, but soon be-came very common in Asiatic Greece; and Prof. Donaldson contends, that this honour carried with it the erection and endowment of a temple by a city, a community, or an union of states. it is, that some cities, like Ephesus, claimed this as an individual privilege; and that, where more than one city were associated together, the coins often indicate this fact by the word "Ομονοια. By this custom may probably be explained the types of some coins, where a female holds one or two temples in her hand, as on a coin of Perinthus, or where, as in some cases, there are two, three, and even four temples on the reverse. Prof. Donaldson described, at some length, the architectural features of the buildings delineated on these Neocorate coins, and stated that the artists had, in most cases, represented the buildings correctly. He concluded his paper with some interesting notices of the places—especially Ephesus—which he had himself visited, many years ago, in search of antiquities.

MEETINGS FOR THE ENSUING WEEK.

British Architects, 8.
Geographical, 8.—Explorations in Eastern Africa, by Capt. Burton and Capt. Speke.
Syro-Egyptian, 73.—On the Ancient Egyptian Cubit of Syro-Egyptian, 73.—On the Ancient Egyptian Cubit of Syro-Egyptian, 75.—On the Ancient Egyptian Cubit of Syro-Egyptian, 75.—On Messar, Sharpe and Bonomi.—Extracts from the Journals of English Residents at Ghadarmes and Diarbekt, by Mr. Bonomi.
Royal Institution, 3.—On Geological Science, by Prof. Morris.

Secial General—Notes on Stitherson.

Morris

Morris

Morris

Morris

Morris

Morris

Moloopieal, 8. "Special General." Notes on Spittbergen, by Mr. Lamont." On the Origin of Dolomites and Gypsums, by Mr. Sterry Hunt." On Tertiary Shells from Central India, by Rev. S. Hislop.

Morris

Morris THURS. L

producing the Spruce.

Royal Institution, 2.—'On the Seven Petroon
Mr. Layard.

Mr. Layard.

Chemical.—'On Gas Analysis,' by Prof. Williamson.—
'On the Action of Carbonic Oxide upon Potassium,' by Prof. Brodie.

Royal Institution.—Meeting at 8; Lecture at 8.—'On Beoquerel's Phenomena of Phosphorescence,' by Prof.

—'On Modern Italian Literature,' by Bequerel's Phenomena of Phosphorescence, by Prof. Faraday, Royal Institution, 3.—'On Modern Italian Literature,' by Mr. Lacaita. Asiatic, 2.

FINE ARTS

BRITISH INSTITUTION.

THIS Exhibition represents the Tory or Conser-It admits none but dead vative school in Art. warve school in Art. It admits none but dead men's works, and holds them up, as it were, as warnings and rebukes to the living. It seems to stand in Pall Mall, between the scarlet sentinels, crying with a loud and denunciating voice, "Buy none but old masters."

Here the favoured public are permitted to annual peeps of family pictures, which students, to the destruction of their own originality, are permitted to copy. Better than this, one day in the fields, or one minute's keen study of a child's face; but every one to his goat: it flatters the proprietors of good and bad pictures, it rouses the servile copi and pleases the public, -so it will go on till public taste widens and deepens.

But while we condemn the dull eclecticism of the ordinary Exhibitions, we would not for amoment condemn the present, or deny its interest and its usefulness. Arranged in groups, and classified so as to show the history of Art, this mere jumbled show-room of good, middling, and bad pictures, would take quite a new shape, and rise at once to be an educational and invaluable exhibition. The bad Art, the smooth, dull, irreligious, attractive eclecticism, the source of our modern pseudo-religious and Keepsake Art, should never be exhibited on these walls, tolerant and catholic as they may be, without a warning and a protest. Classifica-tions would do this; for the great periods, once arranged in phalanx, would kill everything else, and at once assert their educational supremacy. Every now and then a room should be devoted to some special old or modern master—Fuseli, Opie, Cotes, Hilton,—some of those historical men whose works, though they form a leaf or two in the chronicles of English Art, are so rarely to be seen by the student, or the self-educating dilettante. No copies should be allowed, only drawings and sketches, and a prize might be offered for the best sketches, and a prize might be offered for the best study in the manner of a certain master, for this would promote versatility, and discover grasp of mind without injuring originality, the loss of which is irreparable. Art is no longer a plaything, and we trust the time is coming, and that soon, when it will be no longer—a manufacture.

The Exhibition of the older Italian masters is very strong this year, though, as usual, the per-traits and the mere unfeeling Academic studies predominate. In the modern room Gainsborough is grandly represented, and his portrait presides, like Mr. Speaker, over quite a parliament of his own graceful and delightful portraits.

There are one or two fine stormy audacious Tin-torettos, giving us more impression of his force and art than of his religion. His Last Supper (7), except for a certain solemnity and twilight might be a faded Jan Steen. Our Saviour's head is blunt and ignoble, and except the starts of surprise and the ingenious contrasts of attitude, there is nothing serious in the picture. There is great origi-nality and invention, however, in casting the one disciple's head down on the table, and in throwing the dark profiles in such a painter-like way against the background.—There is also an Ecce Homo (26) by the same grand but unequal thinker,—a Christ driving out the Money-changers (44),—and lastly, a large picture of the first order—The Baptism of our Saviour (45). The subject is daringly conventionalized, and the Holy Land figures are mixed up with naked cherubs and the brawny rivergod of a Roman fountain, with the usual strong dash of light on the lip of the murky, transparent web of green water. The Baptist is in rather an web of green water. The Baptist is in rather an academic attitude, but this small affectation is forgotten amid so many beauties. From this work of power (though ill-drawn), with its green tone, luminous flesh, and jungles of dark, solem shadow, we pass to the mere clever and tasteful eclecticism of Cavedone, a rival of the Carracci, eclecticism or Cavedone, a rival of the Carrace, who died the year of our Restoration, after attempting all his life, with various degrees of success, to unite the colour of Titian with the learning of the Carracci. His Martyrdom of St. Bartholomes (51), though always a butcherly and revolting subject, stands well amongst the 173 pictures exhibited. With skill and taste, though the flaying has begun, it is only hinted by a red shadow at the side of the arm, where the knife works. at the side of the arm, where the knife works. The saint is a fine fleshy bit of anatomy, striving in prayer, and the soldiers are stern and stolid, as they should be.

To contrast with this learned finish, take Albert Dürer's hard-enamel Crucifixion (87), with scarcely any relief, yet full of truth, meaning, and faith, and little bits of nature, like the red light in the window in the background; or observe that dry diagramed Venus (39), by S. Botticello, the hide-bound quaint imitator of Fra Lippo Lippi. The colour is not unlike Albert Dürer's larger pictures, and the flowers in the lap of the lady's scarf-like robe are treated in a dull, heavy way.—G. Poussin's Landscape (14) we cannot praise, except as a convention, for it is ambitious, lumbering and unreal; there was an idea in Poussin's pedantic mind that God's world wanted a deal of dressing up before it was fit to be seen. It is severer than Gainsborough's liquorice flighty landscapes, but not half so true. There is no joy of life in Poussin—no love of God's world; nothing but pictorial sense, art, and learning. Amongst the pictures not worth exhibiting are, conspicuously, Schidone's coarse Allegory (37), with its waggon load of a child crowning a skull with laurel, and A. da Selario's Christ bearing the Cross (41). The flesh green and hideous, the cross Cross (41). The flesh green and hideous, the cross dully copied, and smoothed out vein by vein.— Amongst the admirable portraits are the interesting ones of Michael Angelo and Giulio Romano (10), by S. del Piombo, who knew and worked with both of them,—and Raffaelle's Portrait (21), by Titian. One is never tired of the tender angel-face of the young painter.—For simple strength we admire Titian's Head of a Man (40); the scarlet robe and line of fur so grand, unhurried, and thought over; the lean severe face so perfectly given, even to the dry wiryness of the crisper grey hairs in the tufted beard.—G. Romano's Portrait of Giuliano de '59 and best this

P of

s is

por-dies

Tin.

Medici (52); the face is brutally clownish and | coarse, and might stand for the mere ruffian, but it is treated with all the Urbino breadth and simplicity, and is pregnant with life.-For contrast, go first to the vigorous portraits of Snyders, his Wife and Child (42), by Vandyke,—compare the cereful, yet free, and, for Vandyke, almost coarse, painting of his frank, hearty head, and of his full-eyed, good-tempered wife, with Frank Hals's Por-traits of a Gentleman (105) and Lady (108). One traits of a Gentleman (105) and Lady (108). One can see that one was a courtier and cavalier, the other a tavern sot. Hals's painting is full of dashes and slashes like a pen drawing, no softening glazes—all done at a dash, coarse, harsh, clever and hasty—done for money by the hunks who kept Brauwer locked up as a slave in his garret when Ostade was working and singing in the sunny com below. There is, however, a great deal of life and expression about these Opie heads—the burgher with his cloak and collar, the ringletted leading lady with the great ribbon-knot by her laughing lady with the great ribbon-knot by her side, and the black enamelled watch hung to it as side, and the black enamelied watch nung to it as an ornament. To copy these slovenlinesses would be death to a quick-eyed, impatient student.—F. Bol's picturesque Head of a Youth (86) is dangerous in another way. It is smoothed and softened like a tea-tray; clever and smart as it is, it is killed with dull greedy excess of labour. The carnations of this pupil of Rembrandt, this Dort-man, are too brown and Spanish: blood is never brown, though skin may be. Yet, with all its faults, we like the young gallant, with the heavy gold chain, six times doubled; the green-lit gorget, the black "bonnet," and the tall feather arching up straight over his forehead. One could sit and dream a dozen stories over this frank-eved head .- The Duchess of Buckover this frank-eyed head.—The Duchess of Buckingham and Family (46) seems raw, and injured by cleaning, just as the Snyders does. The glow is gone, the greys are green and harsh, the eyes stare, the dark lines cut crudely, because the softening mist of glaze is gone. As they stand now they are not bad pictures, certainly, but merely unfinished pictures. The last touches are cruelly peeled off. The Duchess in profile seems to retreat; the Jewish-faced boy behind to advance.— Days Dessi whom Aricete revised as Dayte did Dosso Dossi, whom Ariosto praised as Dante did Giotto, is not seen to much advantage in the clumsy group of studies called Grief, Laughter, Rage (33). None of the expressions look real but sunburnt face, who grins and shows his teeth. Passing contemptuously by an odious, artificial Dutch moonlight piece, we come to a mass of cre-ditable Eclectics—good painters, but poor thinkers—surrounding a gorgeous mass of Still Life (22), by De Heem, where the scarlet lobster burns out amongst drinking-glasses and coloured fruits. Here is Domenichino's Lucretia (30), a glowing bit of rich colour, studied action, and appropriate expression, though utterly uninteresting and without pression, though utterly uninteresting and without a spark of genius. Christ disputing with the Dectors (31), by Strozzi, the Genoese Capucin,—the old men, as usual, are good, and look, as they should do, perplexed and baffled, yet unconvinced. Our Saviour, however, seems by no means wise. The Christ healing the Blind (32), by A. Carracci, is the perfection of Eclecticism,-the Saviour's head as asual the blot of the picture; but the blind youth's face admirably expressing a sense of the com-mencement of the miracle and a rising joy and gratitude. Then there is Salvator Rosa's curious picture of Fortune showering her Gifts on the Asses and Swine (17), for which as a rebuke on the Pope he was banished from Rome; nor must we forget the exquisite flesh painting in the St. Sebastian (23), by Baglione, one of the Carracci pupils. The body is beautifully rounded, and the colour rich and true, -the profile face nervously given.

that of the sturdy looking Roman clown with the

—the profile face nervously given.

Perhaps, however, the most gigantic fragment or echo of a great thought in the room is Michael Angelo's Virgin and Child (15), two figures of which are as yet only washed in with dull green. The colour is dull and mannered, but there is divinity and consummate power in the Virgin's head. St.

(47), by Pordenone, with no expression, but much | Veronese richness of costume, and a fine grave tone of colour; and Tintoretto's senatorial portrait of one of the Pesari (1), who looks every inch a doge, -an oligarch, dark, stately, wise, and subtle. The Salutation (3), by Manzuoli di San Friano, is too large to be overlooked,—and the Head of a Man (6), by S. del Piombo, with the flaunting scarlet head-dress, black eyebrows, and bad mouth, is worth all observation.

Leaving some unfaded Flowers (85), by Van Os, some tiresome Dutch landscapes, vulgar Honde koeter fowls, and clear-coloured, coarse Jan Steens, -we come to the throne-room of Gainsborough, —we come to the throne-room of Gamssorvegs, watched by his own dogged, rustic head,—stopping only for a moment at a tearing race of yelling and bleeding dogs (110), by Snyders, the most epical and potent of animal painters. Here are the Suffolk man's transparent brown trees, his blue-green distances, his chubby peasant boys, his graceful ladies in large hats and powdered hair; here his shapeless drawing, his fading outline, his bewitchsnapeness trawing, ins nating outsine, ins outside, ins magic, his airy lightness, and easy, unlaboured elegance, sometimes breathing away into smoke, scurry, fuss, blur, and tangle, but often settling down like a magic vapour, as you gaze into a vision of some siren of beauty disguised by the vanity of an untoward dress; gentleman in scarlet, gentleman in pea-green, stout gentleman in amber waistcoat and tambour-work, with grey coat, dissolving-view of grey spotted horse, sentimental village boy, fleshynosed pigs, vivacious dogs, Suffolk sea-coast, with a long roll of combing wave; many changes, but everywhere the same honest, manly painter, con-veying, without much learning or education, his sense of the beautiful and true; never teaching any-thing but the one truth of grace, not with Reynolds's sculpturesque strength and fire, but with a delicious, pure-hearted dreaminess that is as indescribable as is the difference between the scent of a narcissus and that of a violet. Compare his vision of Georgiana, First Countess of Spencer (163), dressed as a man with strained back, powdered hair, and coat with the vision of a rose in it, with that bold selfasserting head, by his rival, Reynolds, of Mr. Weddell (168). The Suffolk work is a dream beside that Devonshire work, with its rich yellow glow and its strong lake markings of lip and nostril; it looks a sketch beside that highly-modelled work, as it would beside that fine candle-light group of Wright of Derby (144), representing the artist and two of the first Royal Academicians examining a statuette of 'The Fighting Gladiator.' Yet who would know which to choose, if the choice were offered. Compare his Girl Feeding Pigs (172), perhaps the very one Peter Pindar laughed at, with Sir Joshua's Contemplation (145), so thought out and worked out, so innocent, yet so full of the painter's art. The choicest specimens of this Suffolk master are here, from the graceful pair, Mr. folk master are here, from the graceful pair, Mr. and Mrs. Hallett (83), in all the bloom of life, to the equally admirable, though rather pert, Duke and Duckess of Cumberland and Lady Elizabeth Luttrell (97).—from the fascinating Georgiana, Duckess of Decombire (149), a very queen of the fairies, with a dewy-rosebud mouth, and eyes wickedly amused and astonished at the mischief they do to the scripmaging sketch for Miss. they do, to the scrimmaging sketch for Miss Gainsborough (173), left unfinished, with transparent smears for the hands and guitar, parts of the cheek and chin elaborately modelled. Then, amid Zoffany's stage scene, and Stothard's pleaamid Zoffany's stage scene, and Stothard's plea-sant, quiet scrap from the Spectator, and Hilton's grand flatulence, and Wilton's Italian Scene (164), Morland's Dogs (126) and Death of the Fox (118), we come to the tremendous Family Tableau (150), by Gainsborough, showing him in his most am-bitious climax of portraiture, with mother, baby, little buttoned-up boy in blue, with a red scarf, and sturdy, sensible father looking on, on the side, with a certain English confidence, pleasure and pride. Then there is his almost historic likeness of Mrs. Sheridan (Miss Linley) (152), beautiful as the day, and her little brother, with a pretty beseechfulness in his face and a clever earnest-John has the usual wild, gipsy character that M. Angelo generally gave him. Equally grand and soaring is Raffaelle's Madonna dell' Impannata bird's nest, is rather sham, and is a mere scrap of (16), though not in the painter's happiest vein of Shenstone incarnated beside that shrewd, kindly, colour. Observe, too, the Adoration of the Magi velvet, faded brown on the shoulders .- Romney's Portrait of Hayley (143), weak, but with a charm is interesting,—and so is his siren head of Lady Hamilton (121).

Amongst the miscellanea, we must mention Sir J. Reynolds's admirable Sir Watkin and Lady Wynn (70),—the monochrome vigorous study of the head of St. Francis de Paula (74), by Velasquez, —Northcote's clever Portrait of Himself (57),— Kneller's unusually rugged and forcible portrait of our gossiping frank old friend Samuel Pepys (68),— and Romney's graceful Portrait of a Lady (148).

This does not include many admirable studies of female heads by Sir Joshua, hewn out as he alone female heads by Sir Joshua, hewn out as he alone could hew them out; the eyes not even round, so neglected was his drawing, but still swimming with brown or blue light, or the dark twilight of the full black orb. Those heads puffed up snowily at the top, in such airy balloons of playful hair, knotted with ribbon, or turbaned with gauzy knotted with ribbon, or turbaned with gauzy scarves,—the lips (when not cracked or faded) moist with a perpetual carmine,—the chin, dimpled as by the baby impression of Cupid's finger,—the neck, a flexible ivory pillar,—the bosom rosy snow,—the form pliant with poetry and grace—all combine to make those queens of womanhood that Reynolds immortalized with his magic brush.

FINE-ART GOSSIP.—A magnificent work of Art has just been deposited in the Royal Gallery of the Houses of Parliament. Mr. Maclise's cartoon, illustrative of the Battle of Waterloo, has recently been placed against the wall, in the position ultimately to be occupied by the fresco. The moment selected by the artist is the meeting of Wellington and Blucher, after the contest has been decided. The difference of character between the two generals is admirably observed. Blucher, with his fine rough countenance, grasps Wellington's hand with an almost savage cordiality, whilst the Iron Duke here exhibits a sad and depressed aspect. He is attended by the remnant of the Guards. All the figures of this vast composition are life size. The differences of nationality are strikingly depicted, and all the FINE-ART GOSSIP. - A magnificent work of this vast composition are the size. The differences of nationality are strikingly depicted, and all the minute details of costume, armour, equipments, implements, including even surgical instruments (for amid carnage and strife the medical staff are from and carnage and strict the medical star are prominently seen ministering alike to friend and foe), are exhibited with a precision and fidelity almost surpassing the celebrated works of Vernet. The knowledge of the horse is also a striking feature in Mr. Maclise's performance. So wonderfully allowed to a properfully allowed. fully elaborate, so powerfully conceived, so well drawn, and exquisitely finished in fine touches of black chalk is this work, that we earnestly express a hope that it may not suffer the usual fate of cartoons, which are only regarded as the means to an end, and suffer destruction when copied from, but be preserved with care, as a work of Art in itself, among other cartoons which were made for the Houses of Parliament, and now at Hampton Court Palace. Less hopes are to be entertained of Mr. Maclise's success when the subject comes to be thrown into colours. The opposite compartment in the Royal Gallery will be appropriately devoted to Trafalgar.

An important event for the picture-world will take place in July or August. Lord Northwick has determined to sell by auction the vast collec-tion formed by his uncle at Thirlestaine House. The sale is to be at Cheltenham.

The statue of Lord Clive, by Marochetti, which now occupies a temporary place in Privy Gardens, facing the Treasury, is a remarkable instance of perfect ease and repose in point of attitude. Whether this be thoroughly consistent with the character of the stern and haughty Indian hero is not so certain. But in this bronze statue we recognize that freedom from affectation which most of our public statues display. The counte-nance, to which, perhaps, a dark material is less favourable, is not strongly characteristic of Clive as seen in the well-known portraits. Judging by the costume, wig and pose, the statue would as well have suited Washington as the hero of

An artist wishes to make the following statement :- "The Royal Academy Exhibition Cata-

Nº

reading to att

meeti

tion t

unce

Mad

her ( musi

done

stret

tax

and

ed 1

urge con' An mos

inv

at :

con

rep

of

Er ha thi

W

pu va ed

sed

be ot

to ar

be be

in

P

logue for 1858 shows the number of exhibitors to ave been 786; of these 49 only were member the Academy. The number of works exhibited was 1,330, of which 152 were by Academicians, &c. The result, therefore, was that of the exhibitors about one-sixteenth were members of the Academy, and their works about one-ninth of all those included in the Exhibition. This may be taken as about the usual average, and yet none but the Academicians have any voice either as to hanging the pictures, or the application of the funds of 7,000L a year derived from this Exhibition.

Industry 1900. A year that it is this just it is this just it is this just it is this just it is the just week by Messrs. Sotheby & Wilkinson, brought good prices. The following may be deemed worthy good prices. last week by Messrs. Sotheby & Wilkinson, brought good prices. The following may be deemed worthy of note: Heliodorus, and companion print, by Anderloni, 6l.—Angelo with the body of St. Catherine, beautiful proof by Felsing, 5l. 2s. 6d.—The Little Gardeners, a charming work by Mandel, proof before letters, 10l. 10s.—Magdalen at Devotion, after Murillo, by Morghen, a fine proof, 12l.—The principal work of Toschi, beautiful proof, 90l. 5s.—Madonna della Passeggio, after Raffaelle, by Anderloni, proof, 8l. 8s.—The Immaculate Conception, after Murillo, by Bridoux, first India proof, 17l. 17s.—Francesca da Rimini first India proof, 17l. 17s.—Francesca da Rimini after Ary Scheffer, by Calamatta, an artist's after Ary Scheffer, by Calamatta, an artist's proof, 114.—Descent from the Cross, after Rubens, by Claessens, proof, 244.—Holy Family, called La Vierge au Bas Relief, after Raffaelle, by Forster, proof, 151.—The Reading Magdalen, chef-d'œuvre of Longhi, 171.-Marriage of the Virgin, after Raffaelle, by the same engraver, proof, with letters, 201.—The Transfiguration, after Rafwith letters, 20t.—The Transfiguration, after Raf-faelle, by Morghen, the last work of the great painter, 15t. 10s.—Last Supper, after Leonardo da Vinci, by Morghen, an open letter proof, 32t.— Madonna di S. Sisto, after Raffaelle, by Müller, a fine impression, 12t.—Assumption of the Virgin, after Titian, by Schiavoni, proof before any letters, 26t.—The Annunciation, after Guido, by Traval-loni, 11t. The 12t lots produced 611t. 5s. 6d.

Mr. M'Lean, whose works of Art are not generally very artistic, has published a caricature on the war, entitled 'The Kiss of Judas,' a little profane, if we follow out the thought of the artist, but not wanting in à propos cleverness. It represents Louis Napoleon, with his wax-ended moustache and sinister eye, saluting the gross-faced, snubby Victor Emmanuel with a kiss of alliance. The figures are clothed in red and green, and have gilt aureoles round their heads. Political caricature seems now too much concentrated into caricature seems now too much concentrated mother the large sheet of Punch. Hogarth, Gillray, Rowlandson, moved freer, unfettered by editorial restraint. A north-east blast of political satire, free and unrestrained, would do no harm in these lukewarm days of sham toleration.

M. Horace Vernet has left Paris for Italy, having orders to paint the Battle of Montebello for the Museum at Versailles. Montebello is situated in one of the loveliest spots of lovely Italy; the artist has an opportunity here to blend the beauty of the landscape with the horror of the battle

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

Mr. BENEDICT'S ANNUAL MORNING CONCERTS, at St. James's Hall, on MONDAYS, June 13 and July 4, when the following distinguished Artists will appear;—Madame Clara Novello. Madame Sherrington Lemmens, and Mdlle, Artot, from the Imperial Opera, Paris ther first appearance), Mesdames Guarducci, Badiani, Sherrington Lemmens, and Mdlle, Artot, from the Imperial Opera, Paris ther first appearance), Mesdames Guarducci, Badiali, and Marini, from the Royal Italani, Londovico Graziani, Badiali, and Marini, from the Royal Italani, Dadovico Graziani, Badiali, and Marini, from the Royal Italani, Dediction Sherring, Marini, Francis Control, Lander, Marini, Francis Control, Marini, Jules Stockhausen, Herr Reichardt, and Mr. Santley, Miss Arabella Goddard, Herr Leopold de Meyer, Messra, Joachim, Wienlawski, Ginlio Regondi, M. Louis Engel, Signor Stalls, to Hall, Santley, Marini, Marin MISS ARABELLA GODDARD'S MATINÉE will take place on FRIDAY, June 17, at 8t. James's Hall, on which occasion she will perform the Kreutser Sonata with Herr Joschim for the last time, and Beethoven's Grand Sonata in B flat, Op. 106, for Piano, Solo.—Stalls, 10s. 6d. each; Balcony, Sz. (Gallery, Zs. 6d. Tickets may be obtained of Miss Goddard, 47, Welbeck Street, and of all Musiceellers.

ST. MARTINS HALL.—Mr. HENRY LESLIES CHOIR will give a CONCERT on THURSDAY EVENTAG, June 23, Eight and terminate at Half-past Ten.—The Frogramme will consist of popular Madrigals, Glees, and Part Songs.—Stalls, 3s.; Gallery, 3s.; Are, 1s.; Addison, Hollier & Lueas; 21, Regent Street, W.; at the Hall; or at Keith, Frowse & Co. s. &, Cheapaide.—Post office orders to be made payable to the order of Stalley Lones.

Mr. W. H. HOLMESS THIRD PLANOPORTE CONCERT, WEDNESDAY MORNING, July 13, Hanover Square Rooms, Two o'clock. - Tickets, all Reserved, 10s. 6d. each, 36, Beaumont Street, Portland Flace, W.

CHRISTY'S MINSTRELS.—ST. JAMES'S HALL, Picca-dilly.—Crowded Houses and continued Success.—Open EVERY NIGHT at Eight; and SATURDAY AFTERNOON at Three.— Grand Change of Programme.—Stalls, 2s.; Unreserved Seats, 2s.; Gallery, 1s.; which may be obtained at Mr. Mitchell's Koyal Library, 33, Old Bond Street, and at the Hall (Piccadilly en-trance), from Nine till, 8sr.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

The Saints' Day of Ploermel: a Comic Opera, in Three Acts—Voice and Pianoforte—[Le Pardon, &c.]. By G. Meyerbeer. (Paris, Brandus.)—That "comic opera" with the French merely means "comic opera" with the French merey spoken dialogue in place of musical recitative, every one knows. Were the adjective taken literally, it in which the heroine only revives from madness in the very last notes of the drama.—The perusal of the pianoforte score gives us nothing to correct in the remarks [ante, p. 522] which presence at the last full rehearsals of the opera enabled us to offer. We can, on the contrary, confirm what was there stated as to the picturesqueness of the music, and the curiously characteristic manner in which M. Meyerbeer has made his simplicities more difficult than his com-plications. We fancy that the overture might bear shortening,—the beginning of it, however, is charming, so is the religious march; and the chant behind the curtain, we suppose, was needed as an anticipation. The duett, No. 4, and the terzett closing the first act, gain rather than lose by examination; but when did ever precision in notifying intention take such whimsical and perplexing forms as in this score of M. Meyerbeer's? His fancy of introducing score of M. Meyerbeer's? His fancy of introducing odd bars in a different rhythm, where any one else would content himself with noting an accellerando or ritenuto, has been here pushed to an excess all or riteratio, and seem here pushed to an excess an but morbid,—and will be a perpetual puzzle to all who prepare the music, unless they can keep firmly in their minds that these patchings and changes are apparent, not real. In the second act, we are more pleased than ever with Dinoral's romance, (Lewing Songier, and her Shadow days). 'Le vieux Sorcier,' and her Shadow dance. The buffo duett, too, is very good,—as effective in its way, without being so complicated, as the sprightly scene betwixt the suttler girls in 'L'Étoile.' In the third act, the entr'acte is excellent. M. Meyerbeer is as notoriously happy in such movements (vide, again, 'L'Étoile') as in his ballet music he is frank, fresh, and delightful. When the over-anxiety which appears parcel of his nature (to which is as cribable too, possibly, part of his success) comes over him, the whole inspiration seems to change, and without losing its talent to take forms of intricate and tormented felicity, which are not those of the highest art-not those of the Handels, Mozarts, Beethovens, Rossinis. In this third act perusal, as well as performance, makes us again fix on the duett, No. 21, as its strong point,—though pure and romantic, to our thinking, is the chant which enters, swells, passes, and dies away as close to the Breton opera. — These are merely hasty remarks on a work which a few weeks hence will occupy all opera-goers; a remarkable work (let cavillers say what they will) by one of the very few remarkable men left to Music in Europe.

CONCERTS OF THE WEEK .- That there is "wear" in 'Eli'-a fact questioned by such meagre folk as can only admit one style, one school, or one elect as can only admit one style, one school, or one elect composer of music—was proved by the interest which its performance at the Sacred Harmonic Society excited yesterday week. The oratorio went with great spirit, before a crowded audience. The singers were Madame Novello, Miss Dolby, Mossrs. Sims Reeves and Santley, and Signor Belletti.

Miss Arabella Goddard gave another Soirée on the same evening. This lady has so clever a pair of hands, and plays so large a round of music, that we have now a right to expect from her something more, in acknowledgment of the singular good for more, in acknowledgment of the acceptance, and the unanimous praise with which it seems agreed that she shall be put forward. That her playing till now, has been only that of a first-class pupil, we cannot but feel. More intelligence, expression and cannot but feel. More intelligence, expression and poetry may come with time,—till they come she will not be what her friends are ceaseless in persuading her that she is.—It is unjust to other pianists, more seldom heard, not to state this without reserve, as without offence.

From the list of Concerts of the Week, those by the concerts of the Week, those by the concerts of the Week.

Madame Cedroni Francia, Mdlle. Anichini, Mdlle Finoli and Miss Leffler must not be omitted. - That of Herr Pauer claims minuter notice, as an orches tral concert of high interest (excellently conducted let it be said, by Herr Molique), given by one of our most strenuous resident professors. Herr Pauer deserves every one's good word for his resolution against supineness as a composer. Of music by him-self, he gave an Ave-Maria for mezzo-soprane, which was familiar to us,—a brilliant solo concert Polonoise and a Fest-Overture, in which there is much to like, -pomp at the commencement, -animation perhaps rath er than originality as the move ment proceeds,—and at the end (what was mean in companionship to Weber's Jubel-Overture) a most overcoming introduction of 'Rule Britannia,' scored with spirit enough to be heard as far as Cherbourg. Herr Pauer has one great merit in writing for an orchestra, -his sonority is admirable. He was assisted by Herr Joachim, the incom-He was assisted by Herr Joacnim, the incomparable,—by Madame Mösner, who is a harpist of the first class—the best female harpist in our recollection — by Mdlles. Johanna Martin and Jenny Meyer. The latter lady makes a favourable impression by the good quality of her voice; but she will forfeit it if she sings Handel,—unless, but she will forfeit it if she sings Handel,—unless, but he will forfeit it if she sings Handel,—unless that the source from the state of the stat that is, she sings Handel better than the song from that is, she sings Handel better than the song from 'Semele,' which was given by her on Wednesday, with care, but without vocal charm or purity of declamation. It is one thing to please in a lied, another to work out a grand aria:—this young German ladies do not sufficiently understand.—Of M. Halle's Pianoforte Recitals we must speak on a future page.

UNIFORM MUSICAL PITCH .- The preliminary meeting convened by the Society of Arts to consider the possibility of taking any measures on this side of the Channel, correspondent with or in adoption of those agreed on in France, for the establishment of a normal diapason, was held yes-terday week, with an attendance of some half hunguests, by whom the different interests of music were fairly represented. Dr. Whewell was in the chair, and introduced the subject by a short address, calling attention to the elaborate French Reports and to the restrictive measure which had been based upon it. "The first question to be determined was, whether it was desirable that a uniform nusical pitch should prevail; and, secondly, whe ther it was possible to establish such a uniform pitch in this country. The latter question came before them very naturally, inasmuch as the establishment of a uniform pitch was to be enforced by stringent legal means in France, a course which could not be imitated in this country. The French legislative provision upon the matter was that musical instruments not conforming to this regulation, were not to be admitted to any Exhibition of Industry. It amounted, in fact, to a prohibi tion of instruments which were not of the pitch determined upon; and the man who gave measure in music, was to be dealt with in the same manner as a fraudulent purveyor of meat, or a dishonest vender of cloth. Of course, it could not be expected that their musical friends in this country were to be subjected to penalties such as those, or that a uniform pitch could be enforced here by any such means. Therefore, they had to consider what means short of these could be used, and whether any influence beyond a general understanding among those engaged in music could be brought to bear. The discussion which followed was prefaced by a te on

pair that thing

and

e by

he ading of letters from many musicians, unable to attend the meeting, the bearing of all of which tended to recommend the adoption of a uniform pitch. The question was then discussed as to the possibility of this being attained. The meeting was addressed by Dr. Wylde, — Mr. Hullah—who, it appears, gave considerable attentions. Hullah—who, it appears, gave considerable attention to the subject some years ago (to the point of regulating a family of tuning-forks, by aid of M. Cagnard de La Tour's instrument called the Sirène),—Mr. Nicholson, the professor of the oboe,—who illustrated the inconveniences of the present uncertain state of the diapason,—Sir George Smart, Mr. Benedict, Mr. Ella. To this ensued a discussion as to what the proposed uniformity (the desirableness of which was carried nem. con.) should be. Herr Otto Goldschmidt warmly recommended the adoption of the Ersech proving learners. nded the adoption of the French normal la,menage the appropriate of the French hormal ta,— Mr. Tutton a semi-tone below the present pitch,— Madame Goldschmidt some letting down. "For her own part there was a considerable amount of music that she could not think of singing at the present pitch; and music which she sang with the greatest ease about twelve years ago, when the tch was lower, she would not now attempt. If the raising of the pitch went on as it had hitherto human voice would lose its beauty and strength; and she did not consider it was proper to tax the voice to that extent. In her opinion the standard of the pitch ought to be regulated by the human voice."—Sir George Smart produced a tuning fork, prepared by the Messrs. Broadwood tuning-fork, prepared by the Messrs. Broadwood for him some thirty years ago, with the con-currence of Mrs. Billington, Messrs. Braham and Griesbach.—The Rev. G. T. Duffield exhibit-ed Handel's fork, considerably flatter than the present ones. The question then arose, as to the practicable reconciliation of orchestras and organs, —Mr. Davison recommending that if the latter instruments were altered it should be by transposing the pipes a full semitone. Mr. Hullah urged the adoption of a pitch of 512 vibrations a second, in place of the French pitch of 522, as more convenient, on the score of numerical calculation.

An attempt to propose the French pitch, as the one most expedient to adopt, was met by a recommendation that the subject should be more closely investigated, by a sub-committee, than was possible at a general meeting. The appointment of a subcommittee was unanimously carried, and the gentlemen nominated in its formation, from whom a report will be submitted to the Society. Such comments as suggest themselves on the discussion, decision, and the possible working out of the same had better, therefore, be reserved for a period when the subject is before the Society in a more complete form.

Anglo German Handel Society.—Three volumes have been issued from the Leipsic press of Herren Breitkopf & Härtel of the publications of the German Handel Society,—henceforth to be called the "Anglo-German Handel Society," the English "Handel Society" being understood to have merged itself in the foreign enterprise. That this may lead to difficulties is possible. Either want of uniformity must result, or some valuable publications be displaced from their position of due value as part of a series. To illustrate—is the edition of 'Israel' by Mendelssohn to be superseded?—an edition which is a masterpiece of editorial respect and sagacity. That edition, however, if adopted, as containing an organ part, must be out of symmetry with the editions of Handel's other sacred works from German sources; since our "cousins" do not generally use the organ in Oratorio, howsoever essential it be to every performance of the master's works,—as no one knew better than Mendelssohn. This is only one among the questions arising out of the "fusion" of undertakings belonging to two countries, which will have to be solved, if a complete and consistent edition has to be produced. There must either be "odd volumes" or else precious matter discarded.

No prejudice to the undertaking entered on is intended by the above remarks.—It is needless to describe to any one familiar with modern musical publication in how sumptuous and complete a fashion the volumes before us are "turned out."

What is a luxury in London is daily fare in Leipsic. Dr. Chrysander, too, seems excellently to understand his duties as an editor, which are those of research, comparison, but not dogmatism. This last bad quality is particularly bad in the case of Handel's works, where variations, changes, afterthoughts in the text abound; and there is no more possibility of including all these in any one edition than there would be of assembling all the discrepancies of Shakspeare's text in an issue of Shakspeare's plays. That 'Susanna' is not complete without an organ part, more especially since the bass is not figured, we English cannot but feel. The pianoforte accompaniment is masterly, as might be expected from the skilled hand of Herr Rietz of Leipsic.

Leipsic.

And now, a word—this being the Handel time—concerning the little-known Oratorio with which the German Publishing Society has commenced its operations. The chorus "Righteous Heaven!" and the grand song, "If guiltless blood," are almost the only fragments from 'Susanna' which are ever heard in our concerts.—The Apocryphal story, indeed, dear though it be to the French, who have danced it in a ballet, and have sung it in opera, will always (and richtly) keen it in the background. will always (and rightly) keep it in the background. Though the Elders have been transformed by the poetaster from evil and lascivious patriarchs into a couple of love-sick old shepherds, there is a taint on the legend, which renders downright execution of it impossible. A passionate situation, which has to be treated with reserve, * implies anti-climax as a necessary alternative to offence. With all this, 'Susanna' is full of admirable songs. Not only is the music given to the abominable elders, per se, full of life and colour; the character of the spotless wife (written for a mezzo soprano) is as complete as that of Iphis, the daughter of Jephtha. No other female part in oratorio (for Handel's Miriam is but a procession figure with a chant) occurs to us as so clear and noble as these two. The husband, so clear and noble as these two. The husband, Jouchim (a part unfortunately written for a con-tralto voice), is effaced and sickly. Daniel is more distinct and vigorous. To venture among the musical peculiarities and merits of this setting of a strange apocryphal legend—all but destroyed by the desperate platitudes of the text—would lead us beyond possible limits. Suffice it to say, that freshness and brilliance of idea are these in refreshness and brilliancy of idea are there in no freshness and brilliancy of idea are there in no common quantity,—yet more, a hardy anticipation of some modern tricks of effect (observe the instance of broken rhythm in the song "When the trumpet calls to arms"). In brief, like 'Troilus and Cressida,' here is a work, though unavailable in all its completeness, and with all its conditions,—the work of a limitless genius.—The other two volumes of this publication, so nobly begun, already published, contain the Harpsichord Lessons and 'Acis and Galatea.'

STANDARD.—On Saturday, 'Henry the Eighth' was produced at this theatre, for the purpose of affording an opportunity to Miss Glyn, as Queen Kathavine, and to Mr. Phelps, as Cardinal Wolsey. It was refreshing to have an opportunity of re-witnessing this historical drama, disencumbered of spectacular accessories, and depending solely on the quality of the acting. The arrangements were ideal to the point of bareness. There was abundance of suggestion, and no attempt at actuality. The sublime sorrows of Katharine, and the grand misfortunes of Wolsey, stood out singly and purely as poetic drama; and suffered no interruption from vain shows and scenic impertinences. The effect was proportionally impressive. The audience yielded to the legitimate influence of the acting, and lent to every phase of the action the full amount of sympathy. Not a word was lost;—every cadence was apprehended, and the elocutionary effects duly appreciated. Applause was judiciously bestowed. Mr. Phelps depicted Wolsey in his fall with a pathetic power, which made itself felt even through the formal declamation with which he invested the grand speeches attributed by the poet to the ambitious and unfortunate Cardinal. The death of Katharine was unaccompanied with machinery, and Miss Glyn had to trust to her own spiritual sensibility, in order to convey to the minds of the audience the visionary state of the heroine's mind;—but this, according to her usual wont, she did effectually, without any need of the mechanical aid which has recently been thought necessary. A profound and solemn feeling pervaded the audience at the fall of the curtain; and the well-merited ovation was bestowed on the performers. We must add, in justice, that the part of Buckingham was acted with fine elocutionary power by Mr. Rayner, who has been lately at this theatre entrusted with characters of great importance, and has sustained them with conscientious care. On Tuesday, 'The Merchant of Venice' was acted, Shylock by Mr. Phelps, and Portia by Miss Glyn.

Musical and Dramatic Gossip.—We are glad to give publicity to the following communication, fixing precisely the date of the Halle Handel Festival:—"The inauguration of the statue of Handel, at Halle, in honour of the centenary of his death, takes place on the 1st of July. The great feature of the celebration will be the performance of the Oratorio 'Samson,' in the Marktkirche. Musikdirector Franz, who will hold the bâton, has for some time bestowed great care on the practice of the very numerous chorus, and for the soli the most eminent singers of Germany have been secured. Alto, Frau Johanna Wagner-Jachmann, from Berlin; Soprano, Fräulein Wippern, a singer of promise, from the Royal Opera at Berlin; Tenor. Tichatscheck, from Dresden, and, Bass, Mr. Sabbath, from the Berlin Dom-chor. The Halle Orchestra is to be strengthened by the best of the Leipzig performers, with Concertmeister David at their head. After the Oratorio, the procession moves from the church to the place where the monument is to be erected,—all the trades of the town, in festive order, forming lines along the streets and a ring round the monument. The President of the Halle Committee, Ober-burger-meister von Voss, will then perform the real act of inauguration, by delivering a speech and by handing over the monument to the Burghers of Halle for all times to come. Handel's 'Hallelujah,' sung by the chorus, will conclude the festivity. The day will terminate with a dinner, and in the evening with a réunion at the Wittekind Bath, close to Halle. As to the reception of visitors, the Committee can fully rely upon the hospitality of the inhabitants of Halle."

The Handel Festival at Königsberg is to be given on the 14th of June; the principal work performed there is to be 'The Messiah,' with two other performances devoted to miscellaneous selections. A performance of 'The Messiah,' in memoriam, has taken place at Hanover.

The Gloucester Festival is to begin this year on the 13th of September.—We should now be hearing some particulars of the Bradford Meeting, at which, it is said, that no novelty is to be attempted. We trust the contracting parties will profit by past experience in making their engagements this time, and secure the best of the best artists without regard to fashion, fear or favour.

The performance of 'Il Giuramento,' by Signor Mercadante, at Drury Lane the other evening,—a fine opera, with just that level merit that precludes any great success,—gave us an opportunity of hearing Mdlle. Guarducci, and of anew regretting how the sweet art of singing has fallen in Italy. Though her voice—a mezzo-soprano—is not extraordinary either in compass or quality, it has the South in it; the charm which belongs to none but Southern voices. But it has been imperfectly cultivated or abused,—possibly both. Her execution is ambitious, but unreal; belonging to the same school as that of Mesdames Penco and Borghi-Mamo—inferior to that of either lady. It was impossible to hear her sing the beautiful caratina, "Or la sull'onda," without thinking how a former contrulto—

* A confirmation of this assertion recurs at the moment of writing too emphatic to be withheld. In 'La Tempesta' (Shakspear's 'Tempest', transmogrified by MM. Scribe and Halévy, the scene betwirt Caliban and Miranda, based by the librettists on a passing word of the poet, was so perilous, that the consummate art of those consummate artists, Lablache and Sontag, was never more excellently shown than by the manner in which they avoided acting it. But this very avoidance of theirs was one among many reasons why the opera "fell flat."

Mdlle. Brambilla—used to sing it, and that after her voice was gone. Mdlle. Guarducci, though not unpleasing as an actress, can but be accepted here during a time of dearth.—Signor Graziani, the tenor, is agreeable, with some of the delicious family quality in his voice, and not without method.—Mdlle. Weisser re-appeared, as the heroine. Madame Miolan-Carvalho is expected in London almost immediately. We have heard that before she appears in M. Meyerbeer's opera she will make her appearance as Rosina in 'Il Barbiere.' She is engaged for the first days in August at Baden-is engaged for the first days in August at Baden-Baden; there, says the Gazette Musicale, to create the principal part in a work by M. Gounod. The effete state of the world of Italian music was never more clearly shown than in the fact that to replace Madame Bosio in St. Petersburg, besides Madame Charton, Mdlle. Lagrua and Madame Nantier-Didiée (both French) have been also engaged. 'Les Vépres Siciliennes' has been revived at the Grand Opera of Paris without success, thus prov-ing the work (pretending as it seemed) a "bubble" of the Great Exhibition year, one—which has suc-ceeded at no other time and in no other place than in Paris. Madame Barbot was the heroine. What has become of the tenor, who was to out-tenor everybody else,—M. Lebat? Madame Arnould-Plessy and Madame Guyon have been adventuring in a revival of 'Adrienne Lecouvreur'—made so popular by Mdlle. Rachel and Madame Allan. The revival seems to have been successful with the public,—not so with M. Janin, who is critical on both ladies, and complains that the tragedy has got old already. Such must be the fate of ninety-nine works out of a hundred which are written to order.—A three-act play, 'A Proof of Friendship,' by Count Sollohub, play, A Frost of Friendsup, by Count Solomto, whom some of our readers may remember as the lively author of the 'Tarantasse,' a book of Russian sketches, has been produced at the Thédire Gymnose in Paris. The scene is laid in the French capital.

MISCELLANEA

MISCELLANEA

Moore and Lord Edward Fitzgerald. — Permit me, in justice to the memory of Moore, and also to that of Samuel Neilson, to observe (with reference to an article in your last), that the former, who,
in his 'Life of Lord Edward Fitzgerald,' inserted a passage, which (though not inculpating Neilson in treachery) was deemed by some offensive, made all the reparation in his power. Dr. MacNevin and Hamilton Roman wrote to Moore, who published a letter in the Freeman's Journal, in Novemlished a letter in the Freeman's Journal, in November, 1831, promising to do justice to Neilson when he should write of 1798 in the 'History of Ireland'; which, however, does not come down so low. But Moore, in the second edition of the 'Life of Lord Edward Fitzgerald, erased the passage complained of, and expressed his regret that it gave offence to the relatives of Neilson,—whom he describes as "brave and true in his devotion to the cause, for which his all was sacrificed."—I remain, &c., JAMES BURKE.

The Comet of 1859.—This new comet, discovered by M. Tempel at Venice about the beginning of April last, has been observed at Rome by Father Secchi, and at Paris by M. Y. Von Villarceau. It has been rapidly approaching the sun, and but a few days ago was only about 8,000,000 of leagues from it. Since the 29th ult., however, it has begun to recede at the rate of 2,000,000 of leagues in twenty-four hours, or twenty-four leagues per in twenty-four hours, or twenty-four leagues per second, being a velocity at least 200 times greater than that of a cannon-ball. This velocity is, indeed, gradually declining; nevertheless, enough of it remains to carry the comet to a distance of 36,000,000 of leagues from the sun. As to the distances of the comet from the earth, its nearest approach, which occurred on the 24th of April, was to within 26,000,000 of leagues. At present its distance is about 42,000,000, and by the 30th of the present month it will be 49,000,000 of leagues distant from our globe.

To Correspondents.—P. M.—A. E.—W. C.—S. R. P.—W. P.—L. S.—E. L.—J. B.—W. B. F.—T. C. A.—A Professional Chorister—received.

CHAPMAN & HALL'S

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

MR. DICKENS'S NEW WORK. Just published, No. I., PRICE ONE SHILLING,

A TALE OF TWO CITIES.

By CHARLES DICKENS. With Two Illustrations by Phiz. Uniform with the Original Editions of 'Pickwick,' David Copperfield, &c. To be completed in 8 Monthly Parts.

THE ORDEAL OF RICHARD FEVEREL.

A HISTORY OF FATHER AND BON. By GEORGE MEREDITH. [ Next week.

OUR FARM OF FOUR ACRES. AND THE MONEY WE MADE BY IT. Second and Cheaper Edition. Post 8vo. price 2s.

"This is a genuine little book, full of the most serious talk about new milk, fresh butter, and poultry, by a lady who left Loudon for a country house, in which she was to study health and a reasonable on an example. We are shown how the two isdies established themselves prosperously....The lady's very way of writing has in it a beaith tone, that helps to commend to us the country life by which she has been influenced. It possesses all the charm of a pare style; and while the language is reflued by cultivation, it is also welcome as true, wholesome speech, open and fresh.—Examiner.

NORTH AND SOUTH.

By the AUTHOR of 'MARY BARTON,' 'RUTH,' &c. Third and Cheaper Edition. Post 8vo. 5s.

AURORA LEIGH: a Poem.

By ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING. FOURTH AND CHEAPER EDITION. With Portrait. Fcap. 8vo. 7a.

MR. LEVER'S NEW WORK.

DAVENPORT DUNN:

A MAN OF OUB DAY.

By CHARLES LEVER, Author of 'Harry Lorrequer,' &c.
In 18vo. vol. price 23a. With 44 Illustrations by H. K. Browne.

ROBERT MORNAY: a Novel.

ROBERT MORNAY: a NOVel.

By MAX FERRER.

1 vol. price 92.

"A striking and powerful production, at once profoundly thoughtful and brilliantly imaginative." Morning Post.

"There is a thoughtful style about this book that may attract the notic of the about to the serious part of the reflections, mayind ample amusement in the vivid descriptions that abound in this sparking volume." "Sun, "There is a fine wholesome spirit in this volume, which is a first novel of certain promise, contains not a few capital sketches of life, and some shrewd astire upon the insincerities of Emmisser.

"As far as delimentions of character in this exceedingly elver book are concerned, it is difficult to speak to highly of the vigour, truth, and freshness which distinguish them."—Literary Gazetta.

MEMOIRS OF ROBERT-HOUDIN.

AMBASSADOR, AUTHOR, and CONJUROR. Written by HIMSELF. 2 vols. post 8vo. 21a.

"Most diverting, and in many respects, really instructive Me-moirs, which have been well put into English by Mr. Weaxall."

MR. ANTHONY TROLLOPE'S NEW NOVELS. "To those who are in the habit of reading Novels it is unnecessary to say that Mr. Trollope is one of the most amusing of authors." — Times, May 23.

THE SECOND EDITION OF

THE BERTRAMS: a Novel. By ANTHONY TROLLOPE, Author of 'Doctor Thorne,' Barchester Towers,' &c.

Author of 'Boctor Thorne,' Barchester Towers, do.
"Considering the pace at which he produces his novels, Mr.
Trollo-maidering the pace at which he produces his novels, Mr.
Trollo-maidering the spite. Even the mote allowly, they would be exceedings; host price. Even we fast ortainly heightens our admiration..... 'The Bertrams' is a great improvement on its predecessors. We confess that we like this new tale better than any that Mr. Trollope has written."

DR. THORNE: a Novel.

By ANTHONY TROLLOPE. THIRD and CREAPER EDITION, price 54 "We can promise a hearty laugh to all who undertake' Doctor Thorne, "a laugh that does good to the laugher, not cynical and cruel, but hearty and sympathetic, and there are so few books now-a-days that make us laugh. 'Doctor Thorne' is an excellent novel, and as such we someoud it to our readers." A diseasemen

London: CHAPMAN & HALL.

Library of Old Authors.

Nº 1650, June 11, '59

Handsomely printed in Foolscap 8vo. cloth; each Author sold separately.

ANECDOTES, OBSERVATIONS, AND CHARACTERS of BOOKS and EN collected from the Conversation of Mr. Foys an architecture of the Time. By the first JOSEPH SPENCE; with Notes of his Life of the Author, by S. W. SINGER, F.S. A. Second disk fine Portrait, etc.th. 62 8,2 A few copies on large paper, post 8vo. 7a 64.

The WORKS of THOMAS SACKVILLE. Lord Buckhurst, afterwards Lord Treasurer to Queen Elimbeth, and Earl of Dorset. Edited by the Hon. and Rev. E. W. SACKVILLE-WEST. Fine Portrait, cloth. 4s.

RICHARD CRASHAW'S POETICAL WORKS. Now first completely edited by W. B. TURN-

LA MORT D'ARTHUR. The most noble History of King Arthur, and the Heroic Decis of the Kuights to the Kuights of Caxton's of 1485, with Hinstrative Non-and Introduction by THOMAS WHI (bill T, MA., Membre is Plantitut de France, &c. 3 vols. 156. 34 & A few copies on large paper, 3 vols. post 8vo. 11 &c. 6d.

which the s thou stane

indu

riper

of th

ende

appr

INST

APF

Ess

COF

Bro

NA

Ex

Pro

HOMER'S BATRACHOMYOMACHIA HYMNS and EPIGRAMS. - HESIOD'S WORKS and DAYS. - MUSÆUS' HEBO and LEANDER. - JUVENALS FIFTH SATIRE. Translated by GEORGE CHAFMAN. With Introduction and Notes by the Rev. RICHARD HOOFER. Frontispiece after W. Pass. 6a

HOMER'S ILIAD. Translated by George CHAPMAN. Edited, with Notes and Life of Chapman, by the Rev. RICHARD HOOPER. 2 vols. Portrait and Fran-tispiece. 124

CHAPMAN'S HOMER'S ODYSSEY,
Edited by the Rev. RICHARD HOOPER. 2 vols. Frontier

THE DRAMATIC WORKS OF JOHN
WEBSTER. Edited by W. HAZLITT. 4 vols. 11.
*** A few copies on large paper, 4 vols. post 8vo. 11. 10s.

The DRAMATIC WORKS of JOHN
LILLY (the Euphuist). Now first collected. Edited by F. W.
FAIRHOLT. 2 vols. 10s. *** A few copies on large paper, 2 vols. post 8vo. 15s.

AUBREY, F.R.S. Fourth Edition, with some additions, and an index, Portrait, and Cuts. 4s.

GEORGE WITHER'S HALLELUJAH: or, Britaiu's Second Remembrancer, in Praiseful and Penteutial Hymns, Spiritual Songs, and Moral Odes. With lutroduction by ED WARD PARK, Portrait. 62.

GEORGE WITHER'S HYMNS and SONGS of the CHURCH. Edited, with Introduction, by EDWARD FARR. Also, the Musical Notes, composed by Orlando Gibbons. With Portrait after Hole. 5s.

The WORKS in PROSE and VERSE of SIR THUMAS OVERBURY. Now First Collected Edited, with Life and Notes, by E. F. HIMBAULT. Por-trait. after Pass. 5a.

The POETICAL WORKS of the REV.
ROBERT SOUTHWELL. Now first completely edited by
W. B. TURNBULL. 42

The DRAMATIC and POETICAL WORKS of JOHN MARSTON. Now first Collected a Edited by J. O. HALLI WELL. 3 vols. 15s.

"The edition deserves well of the public; it is carefully printel, and the annotations, although neither numerous nor extender, and the public; it is carefully printel, and the annotations, although neither numerous nor extender, and the public of the estimate points, and the public of the publi

The VISION and CREED of PIERS PLOUGHMAN. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT. A New Edition, revised, with Additions to the Notes and Glossar, "The Vision of Piers Ploughman' is one of the most precise and interesting monuments of the English Language and Litera-ture, and also of the social and political condition of the country during the fourteenth century,"—Literary Guartie.

INCREASE MATHER'S REMARKABLE PROVIDENCES of the EARLIER DAYS of AMERICAN COLONISATION. With Introductory Preface by GEORGE OFFOR. Portrait. Sa.

FRANCIS QUARLES'S ENCHIRIDION-Containing Institutions-Divine, Contemplative, Practic Moral, Ethical, Economical, and Political. Portrait.

The POETICAL WORKS of WILLIAM
DRUMMOND OF HAWTHORNDEN. Edited by W. B.
TURNBULL Portrait. 36.

JOHN SELDEN'S TABLE-TALK. With a Biographical Preface and Notes. By S. W. SINGER, F.S.A. The Second Edition, revised and augmented. Fine Portrait. 4 *4 Several other Works of our good old Authors in progress

JOHN RUSSELL SMITH, 36, Soho-square.

Y.

N

N w.

I;

nd by

E

7. by

L nd

5, PATERNOSTER-ROW, LONDON.

TO BE PUBLISHED JULY 31, WITH ILLUSTRATIONS.

PART I., price EIGHTPENCE,

RECREATIVE SCIENCE:

A RECORD AND REMEMBRANCER OF INTELLECTUAL OBSERVATION.

The popular literature of the present day does not present one single example of a Journal wholly devoted to the interests of Science, or in which Scientific questions are dealt with in a spirit of earnest inquiry. We have excellent Reviews and many Serials which are dedicated to the special elucidation of particular divisions of knowledge, but it is felt that there is a deficiency in Current Literature for the young and thoughtful Student, and it is the object of 'Recreative Science' to supply that want.

In an age which derives its lustre from the arts of peace, Intellectual Inquiry and Scientific Research have numerous adherents, notwith-standing the very general prevalence of a taste for dramatic effects in literature, and mere momentary glances at the results of Philosophical industry. An age that rejoices in the fruits of what were not long since mere speculative inquiries, and which has witnessed the practical ripening of the crude ideas of the Scientific men of the last century in the applications of Chemistry, Electricity, Magnetism, the Power of Steam, &c., needs to have its philosophical light concentrated in a focus for the illumination of the masses of the people, no less than for the aid of those who find a high reward for the exercise of their intellectual powers in adding to the stores of knowledge by original investigation.

'RECREATIVE SCIENCE' is intended as a medium of intercommunication among Students of every department of Physical Science, and it is intended also to teach the chief branches of human knowledge as far as concerns the earth we inhabit, and the universe around us. Its endeavour will be to engender and foster a love of all that is beautiful and true, and to lead the contemplative mind to the knowledge and appreciation of the works of the Creator.

The First Part, to be published on the 31st of July, will enable the public to judge as to the general scope and plan of the work more justly than can be explained in a Prospectus, but we may here define, as follows, a general outline of

THE PROMINENT FEATURES OF 'RECREATIVE SCIENCE':-

- INSTRUCTION IN EVERY DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE, including knowledge as revealed by the Microscope—Astronomy—Chemistry—Botany—Zoology—Geology—Physiology—Mechanics—Meteorology, &c. &c.
- APPLICATIONS OF SCIENCE, including Photography and the Stereoscope, Electro-Metallurgy, &c., with all their minute and recreative manipulations.
- ESSAYS ON THE RESULTS OF SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH as witnessed in the Civilization of the Nineteenth Century, which derives so much of its strength and moral excellence from the Steam-Engine—the Electric Telegraph—and other applications of scientific principles.
- Correspondence between those who seek knowledge on specific subjects and those who can impart it. It is anticipated that this feature will induct to the pages of 'Recreative Science' many interesting discussions on subjects which might not occur to an Editorial or Literary staff.

  Biographies of Eminent Scientific Men, and Analyses of Old and New Scientific Books.
- ILLUSTRATIONS OF NATURAL PHENOMENA, and Diagrams of Optical, Mechanical, and other principles as required by the subject-matter of the papers published in the work.
- NATURAL HISTORY will occupy a prominent position among the various subjects to be dealt with, and regard will be paid to those HOME RECREATIONS of which the love of Nature may be said to be the basis. The Management of Collections of Living Animals, the Preparation of Specimens by Taxidermy, and the Arrangement of Cabinets of Insects, Birds, Shells, Plants, &c. &c.
- EXPERIMENTAL PHILOSOPHY AND RECREATIONS IN CHEMISTRY will be introduced, with a view to explain principles and give a zest to study.
- 'RECREATIVE SCIENCE' will be in all respects popular in tone and attractive in its subjects. It will be sustained by writers of the highest eminence in the several departments of Scientific Knowledge. In a word, it will be a Record of Discovery, Observation, and Intellectual Progress—an Instructor in First Principles, and an Exhibitor of the Accomplishments of Research.

THE FIRST PART OF

RECREATIVE SCIENCE

Will be published on the 31st of July next, price Eightpence, and will be continued Monthly,

WITH ILLUSTRATIONS.

London: GROOMBRIDGE & SONS, 5, PATERNOSTER-ROW;
And Sold by all Booksellers.

and w

I

DEDICATED BY SPECIAL PERMISSION TO THE QUEEN.

Fifth Edition, royal folio, half-bound in calf, 21 10s.

PIRE Edition, reyal tono, nair-bound in early 21 to ELL'S CHRONOLOGICAL TABLES.

By Major JAMES BELL. These Tables, arranged in a series of Twenty-five Coloured Charts, exhibit at a slance a complete contemporary view of Universal History, Literature, and Art, from the earliest period.

Edward Law (saucessor to Robert Baldwin), Essex-street, Strand.

POPULAE MANUALS OF NATURAL HISTORY.
With many Illustrations on Steel and Wood. feap. 8vo. cloth, WITHERING'S BRITISH PLANTS and FERNS A complete Hard Machalland Complete H FERNS. A complete Handbook of the British Flora. Revised by W. MACGILLIVRAY, LL.D. Teuth Edition, 10s. 6d. WOODLAND GLEANINGS. A Complete andbook of Forest Trees. New Edition. 4s. 6d.

Handbook of Forest Trees. New Edition. 4s. 6d.
Dr. J. LINDLEY'S BOTANY: Structural,
Physiological, Systematic, and Descriptive. New Edition. 3s.
Edward Law (successor to Robert Baldwin), Essex street, Strand.

STEREOSCOPIC MAGAZINE: TEREOSCOFIC

A PICTURE GALLERY OF

LANDSCAPE SCENERY, ARCHITECTURE, RARE

ANTIQUITIES, &c.

In Monthly Numbers, each containing Three Stereographs, with Descriptive Letter-press, price 2s. 6d.

No. XIII.

(By Permission of the Trustees of the British Museum.)

1. TEMPLE COLLECTION OF ANTIQUITIES, No. 2.

2. TEMPLE COLLECTION OF ANTIQUITIES, No. 2.

3. TEMPLE COLLECTION OF ANTIQUITIES, No. 2.

No. 21. ASSAPŒTIDA PLANT IN FLOWER.
2. PETERBOROUGH CATHEDRAL.
3. THE MEGATHERIUM, BRITISH MUSEUM.
[On August 1.

No. XV.

1. IVORY, THE TEMPTATION, BRITISH MUSEUM.
2. IVORY, JESUS AND ANGELS. Ditto.
3. IVORY, MARRIAGE OF ST. CATHERINE. Ditto.
[On September 1.

No. XVI.

No. AVI.
(Completing Vol. I.)

RUINS AT GLONMACNOISE
2. GROUP OF CORALS, BRITISH MUSEUM.
3. HEVER CASTLE, KENT. [On October 1.

The Stereosopic Magazine is a new monthly periodical of an inal and very interesting character. It gives a series of adminus-zerouted double photographs for the stereosope, each of ich is accompanied by a well-written description of the place work of art represented.—John Bull.

Lovell Reeve. 5. Henrietta-street, Covent-garden

MR. SKEET

HAS NOW READY:

A SECOND EDITION of

CHIEFS OF PARTIES.

By D. OWEN MADDYN, Esq., Author of 'The Age of Pitt and Fox,' &c. 2 vols. post 8vo.

The Atheneum, Literary Gazette, Critic, Press, Leader, Observer, Bell's Messenper, Sunday Times, Morning Chronicle, Sun, and other Journals, have extended critiques, highly commending this work "as a valuable contribution to the political literature of the day "--- "full of attraction"—"executed with great vigour of touch and brilliancy of colouring "--- displaying minute knowledge of contemporary history"—and "cordially recommending the pleasant, eloquent and informing volumes" as "the very work for Book Clubs and readers anxious for a trustworthy insight into the circle where the great and most active-minded men of our country 'live, move, and have their being."

New Work by the Author of the 'History and Political Philo-sophy of the Productive Classes,' &c.

WOMEN, Past and Present:

Their Social Vicissitudes, Single and Matrimonial Relations, Rights, Privileges, and Wrongs. By JOHN WADE, Author of 'The Cabinet Lawyer,' &c.

By JOHN WADE, Author of 'The Cabinet Lawyer,' &c.

1 vol. price 10s. 6d.

Females of the Primitive Ages.
Greek and Roman Ladies.
Greek and Roman Ladies Freidd.
Females under the Tudors and Stuarts.
Modern Ladies, French and English.
Frenchwomen before the Revolution.
English.
Frenchwomen of the Eighteenth Englishwomen of the Eighteenth
Englishwomen of the Eighteenth

NEW WORK BY CAPTAIN CLAYTON.

PERSONAL MEMOIRS OF

CHARLES THE SECOND:

With Sketches of his Court and Times.

By CAPTAIN CLAYTON.
Author of 'Letters from the Nile, 'Ubique.'
2 vols. with Portraits, 21s. [Now ready.
"More romantic than a romance."—Morning Herald.
"A very pleasing and also very instructive work."—Observer.
"These rollumes are full of incident and interest."—Shon.

CHARLES J. SKEET, Publisher, 10, King Williamstreet, Charing Cross.

Next week will be published, in 12mo. with Portrait, price 5s.

MARY STUART.

By ALPHONSE DE LAMARTINE.

Edinburgh: ADAM & CHARLES BLACK.

CHEAPER EDITION.

In Two Volumes, price Twelve Shillings,

DAM $\mathbf{B}$

By GEORGE ELIOT.

A New Edition, being the Fourth.

WILLIAM BLACKWOOD & Sons, Edinburgh and London.

NEW WEEKLY ILLUSTRATED PERIODICAL.

ONCE A WEEK:

A MISCELLANY OF

LITERATURE, ART, SCIENCE, AND POPULAR INFORMATION.

To be illustrated by LEECH, TENNIEL, MILLAIS, HABLOT K. BROWNE, C. KEENE, WOLF, &c. &c.

Will be published every Saturday, price Threepence. The First Number will appear on the 2nd of July.

All Literary arrangements will be made by the Editor, who is to be addressed, for the present, through the Publishers, Messrs. Bradburk & Evans, at their Offices, Bouverie-street, Fleet-street. The Publishers will also receive Orders for the Miscellary itself; and a limited number of Advertisements for insertion in the Wrapper to be issued will it regularly "Osce A Week."

NOTICE TO THE TRADE.

HOUSEHOLD WORDS.

Conducted by CHARLES DICKENS.

Complete in NINETEEN VOLUMES, price 5s, 6d. per Volume.

The Back Numbers, Parts, and Volumes for the future may be had at CHAPMAN & HALL'S, 193, Piccadilly; and 'ALL THE YEAR ROUND' Office, 11, Wellington-street North.

THE EXHIBITIONS OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY, &c.

THE ART-JOURNAL FOR JUNE.

Contains two Engravings from Pictures in the Royal Collections. "THE SINTERS," by Sir C. L. BASTLARE, P.R.A., and "THE HERDSMAN," by N. BERGHEM. An Engraving from MICHEL ANGELO'S LAST JUDGMENT' is also given in

The principal Literary Contents include-

Notices of the Exhibitions of the Royal Academy and the Water-Colour Societies.

Excursions in South Wales, Part VI.: Tenby, by Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Hall—"distrated.

The Mosaic Rug-Work of Messrs Crossley, by R. Hunt, F.R.S.

Lady Morgan, by Mrs. S. C. Hall.

Last Hours of the Painters, No. 2, Fra Angelico, by G. W. Thornbury.

The French Exhibition.

Rome and her Works of Art, Part II., Michel Angelo, by J. Dafforne—"dilustrated.

Rietschelt's Monument to Luther.

Obituary: C. R. Leslie, R.A.; E. V. Rippingille, &c. &c.

VIRTUE & CO. 25, Paternoster-row.

THE DAILY

A FIRST-CLASS LONDON PAPER,

Established 1846,

Price THREEPENCE.

ALL OVER ENGLAND AND AT ALL THE RAILWAY STATIONS.

ALL OVER ENGLAND AND AT ALL THE RAILWAY STATIONS.

In Politics the DAILY NEWS has, from its establishment, maintained an independent course, having the single aim of advancing Liberal opinions, regardless of the selfish interests of faction. The services it has rendered in the successive triumphs of the cause of Civil and Religious Liberty are known and appreciated. In the Daily News, Reform in allied developments—educational, social, sanatory—possesses a faithful chronicler; and in this characteristic, as in others, the consistency of its advocacy has increased the sources of its intelligence.

The character of the paper stands deservedly high in reference to its Foreign Correspondence, and the arrangement made by the Conductors for securing early information of the War in Italy, and of all circumstances connected with its are, it is believed, unsurpassed in the English Press. No efforts have been spared to obtain the failest accounts; as the special advantages possessed by the Daily News insure that is intelligence will be impartial and trustworthy.

Of the repute which the Daily News insure that is intelligence will be impartial and trustworthy. Of the repute which the Daily News insure that is intelligence will be impartial and trustworthy. Of the repute which the Daily News insure that is intelligence will be impartial and trustworthy. Of the repute which the Daily News insure that is intelligence will be impartial and trustworthy. Of the repute which the Daily News insure that is intelligence will be impartial and trustworthy. The cocasions are present as the present, when advice and warning relative to unreasonable panic and ruinous speculation are of almost priceless value; and the public will find that no such opportunity is neglected by the Dail's News.

The Parliamentary and Law Reports of the Dally News are acknowledged to be second to none; and in all the divisions of News, whether Home or Foreign, it is able, by the largeness of its staff of correspondents and agents, to meet every requirement of the times.

In Literature, Music, the Drama, and the Fine Arts, the utmost care is taken to supply the public with sound and impartial criticisms, and prompt and accurate information.

The DAILY NEWS is printed on paper of excellent quality, in clear and legible type, and is now sold all over England and at all the Railway Stations at THREEPENCE per copy—a price which brings it within the reach of every class. Orders may be given to any News-agent or Bookseller for any period of time, or may be sent addressed to the Publisher, W. K. HALES, DAILY NEWS OFFICE, 10, Bouverie-street, Fleet-street, London, E.C., to whom Post-Office Order should be made payable.

, '59

٧.

Pub

d with

, and en is

, by 0, 65

it,

NEW VOLUME BY THE AUTHOR OF 'ERIC.'

This day, fcap. 8vo. cloth, 4s. 6d.

OF LYRICS LIFE.

By FREDERIC W. FARRAR,

Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge; and Author of 'Eric,' &c.

MACMILLAN & Co. Cambridge, and 23, Henrietta-street, Covent-garden, London.

3 vols. crown 8vo. cloth, 31s, 6d.

THE RECOLLECTIONS OF GEOFFRY HAMLYN.

By HENRY KINGSLEY.

ATHENAUM.

"A work that keeps up its interest from the first page to the last. It is full of vigorous stirring life; and though an eager reader may be prompted to skip intervening digressions and details, burrying on to see what comes of it all, he will, nevertheless, be pretty sure to return and read dutifully all the skipped passages after his main anxiety has bealiayed. The descriptions of Australian life in the early colonial days are marked by an unmistakeable touch of reality and personal experience... Mr. Henry Kingsley has written a book which the public will be more inclined to read than to criticize; and we commend them to each other."

JOHN BULL.

"Mr. Kingaley's style is as free and vigorous as the exuberant natural life which he delights to draw; and his characters are always true to nature.... The story is told with skill and spirit.... and teeming with pictures of the primeval forests of that far land (Australia) so life-like, that the reader annot help fancying he has been among these scenes in some previous stage of existence."

OVERLAND MAIL.

"Fresh, vigorous, and full of adventure.... A manly book, full of active, stirring life of what the author has seen and what he has felt. There is no question about the genuineness of the whole picture of colonial life."

FREEMAN.

"We believe that a reader would be both better and wiser for the perusal of these volumes....Mr. Henry Kingsley is no ordinary writer. He has both the eye and the heart of a poet; and, like a true poet, he knows how to reach the hearts of others."

MACMILLAN & Co. Cambridge, and 23, Henrietta-street, Covent-garden, London.

DEDICATED, BY PERMISSION, TO THE EARL OF ROSSE.

This day is published, with Illustrations in Colours, and other Engravings, price 7s. 6d.

TELESCOPE TEACHINGS:

A FAMILIAR SKETCH OF ASTRONOMICAL DISCOVERY:

Combining a Special Notice of Objects coming within the range of a SMALL TREESCOPE, illustrated by the Author's Original Drawings, with a detail of the most interesting Discoveries which have been made with the assistance of Powerful Telescopes concerning the Phenomena of the Heavenly Bodies, including the Recent Comet.

By the Hon. Mrs. WARD,

Author of 'A World of Wonders Revealed by the Microscope.'

LIST OF PLATES

FROM THE AUTHOR'S ORIGINAL DRAWINGS.

- The Sun—Solar Spots.
   Observations of the Sun.
   Eclipse of the Moon.
   Map of the Moon.
   Portions of the Moon's Surface.
- 6. Partial Eclipse of the Sun.
  7. Mercury, Venus, and Mars.
  8. Jupiter and its Satellites.

- 9. Saturn.
  10. The Comet of 1854.
  11. Donati's Comet.
  12. Donati's Comet, on October 11, 1858.
  13. Miniature Chart of the Apparent Path of Donati's 14. A Falling or Shooting Star.
  15. Fixed Stars.
  16. Clusters and Nebulæ.

Imperial 16mo. cloth gilt, price 3s. 6d.

A WORLD OF WONDERS REVEALED BY THE MICROSCOPE.

A BOOK FOR YOUNG STUDENTS.

By the Hon. Mrs. WARD.

With COLOURED ILLUSTRATIONS, delineating One Hundred and Thirty Microscopic Objects.

Wings of Insects.
Wings and Scales of Moths and Butterflies.
Scales of Beetles and Fishes.
Hairs of Animals.

Human Hair. Down of Birds.

Hairs of Insects. Hairs of Insects.
Structure of a Feather.
Sections of Limestone.
Mineral Productions.
Structure of the Crystalline Lens.
Section of the Eye.
Eyes of Insects. Feet of Insects.
Petal of Geranium.
Pollen of Flowers.
Grain. Claws of Spider. Foot of Butterfly. Seed Vessels of Ferns.

Crown 8vo. with ONE HUNDRED ENGRAVINGS, price 7s. 6d.

THE STRUCTURE AND FUNCTIONS OF THE EYE.

ILLUSTRATIVE of the POWER, WISDOM, and GOODNESS of GOD.

By SPENCER THOMSON, M.D.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS:—Sensation—Light—Anatomy of the Human Eye—Physiology of Human Vision—Comparative Anatomy and Physiology of the Eye—Invertebrate Animals—Vertebrate Animals—The Philosophy of Vision.

GROOMBRIDGE & Sons, Publishers, 5, Paternoster-row.

MICROSCOPES.—J. AMADIO'S Improved COMPOUND MICROSCOPE. 22. 2a.; Student's, 2l. lia. ed., "Both these are from Amadio, of Throgmortou-street, and are scorlent of their kind, the more expensive supecially."—House-And Words, No. 345.—as. Just published, an ILLUSTRATED CATALOUUE, containing the Names of 1,600 MICROSCOPIC OBJECTS, post free for four stamps.

PHOTOGRAPHY.—T. OTTEWILL & CO., Wholesale and Retail PHOTOGRAPHIC APPARATUS MANUFACTURERS, Islington, London.
T. Ottewill & Co.'s NEW TEAR CAMERAS expressly for INDIA.

N. B. First-class work only. Illustrated Catalogues sent free on application.

M A L T W O O D 'S F I N D E R.

SMITH, BECK & BECK are now prepared to supply this useful adjunct to the Microscope. Price, in a leather case, 7a. 6d.;

A Description, containing directions for use, &c. sent on application. "6, COLEMAN-STREET, London.

GORHAM'S KALEIDOSCOPIC COLOUR

HOCKIN'S OPERATOR'S NEGATIVE
COLLODION is unsurpassed in sensitiveness and density, price 19s. per 20 oz. exclusive of bottles.

price 13s. per 20 os. exclusive of bottles.

POSITIVE COLLODION unequalled in sensitiveness and delicacy of detail, 6d. per os., 5s. 6d. per 20 os.

ALBURENIZED PAPER, 17½ by 11, 5s. per quire; Wared do., 7s.—Amber Varnish, 12s. per pound; Crystal do., 4s. both dry hard immediately without artificial heat—Lenses and Apparatus of their own Manufacture—Pure Chemicals.

HOCKIN'S *PRACTICAL HINTS on PHOTOGRAPHY,*

Third Edition, 1s.; per post 1s. 1d.

HOCKIN & CO. Operative Chemists, 3s, Duke-street, Manchester-square, London (late 289, Strand).

A CCIDENTS are of DAILY OCCURRENCE.

—Insurance data show that ONE PERSON in every FIFTEEN is more or less injured by Accident yearly.

An ANNUAL PAYMENT Of all secures

A PIXED ALLOWANCE OF 6L PER WEEK

IN THE EVENT OF INJURY, OR

FROM ACCIDENTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,

BY A POLICY in the

RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ANSURANCE COMPANY, which has already raid in compensation for Accidents 37,088.

RAILWAY FASSENGERS ASSURANCE COMPANY, which has already paid in compensation for Accidents 37,000.

Forms of Proposal and Prospectures may be had at the Company's Offices, and at all the principal Railway Stations, where, also, Railway Accidents alone may be insured against by the Journey or Year. No charge for Stamp Duty. Capital One Million.

WM. J. VIAN, Secretary.

Railway Passengers' Assurance Company, Offices, 3, Old Broad-street, London, E.C.

LONDON LIFE ASSOCIATION,
The Directors of this Association hereby inform the Members that the Premiums falling due in the year commencing on the lat July next from those Members who have been assured for seven or more entire years, will be reduced at the rate of 39 per cent., leaving 15 per cent. only to be price.
EDWARD DOCKER, Secretary.

ARGUS LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY,

29, THROGMORTON-STREET, BANK.

Chairman-WILLIAM LEAF, Esq.

Deputy-Chairman-JOHN HUMPHERY, Esq. Ald.

Richard E. Arden, Esq.

Edward Bates, Esq.

Thos. Farncomb, Esq. Ald.

Professor.

Thos. Farncomb, Esq. Ald.

Saffery Nm. Johnson, Esq.

Jeremiah Hicher, Esq.

Surgeon-W, Coulson, Esq. 9, Frederick place, Old Jewry.

AdvantaGES OF ASSURING IN THIS COMPANY.

The premiums are on the lowest scale consistent with security.

The Assured are protected by an ample subscribed capital—an assurance fund of 470,006, invested on mortgage, and in the Government Stocks—and an income of 85,000.a year.

Premiums to Assure £100.			Whole Term.
Age.	One Year.	Seven Years.	With Profits.	Without Profits.
20 30- 40 50 60	£0 17 8 1 1 3 1 5 0 1 14 1 3 9 4	£0 19 9 1 9 7 • 1 6 9 1 19 10 3 17 0	£1 15 10 2 5 5 3 0 7 4 6 8 6 19 9	£1 11 10 2 0 7 2 14 10 4 0 11 6 0 10

MUTUAL BRANCH.

Assurers on the Bonus system are entitled, at the end of five years, to participate in nine-tentha, or 50 per cont. of the profits.

The profit assigned to each policy can be added to the sum-ceived in cash. in reduction of the annual premium, or be received in cash.

At the first division a return of 20 per cent. in cash on the premiums paid was declared; this will allow a reversionary increase, varying, according to age, from 68 to 25 per cent. on the premiums, One-haif of the "Whole Term" Premium may remain for its as a debt upon the Policy at 5 per cent, or may be paid off at any time without notice.

Loans upon approved security.

No charge for Policy Stamps.

Medical Attendants paid for their reports.

Persons may, in time of peace, proceed to or reside in any part of the profit of the premium and the profit of the paid of the profit of the paid of the profit of the 790 THE LAST ANNUAL REPORT, CASH ACOUNT and BALANCE-SHEET of THE MUTUAL LIFE ASSUBANCE SOCIETY (a. D. 1884), may be had on a written or personal application to the Actuary, or to any of the Society's Country Agents. To the Report and Accounts is appended a list of Benusse paid on the Claims of the Year 1888. No extra charge for joining Volunteer Rite or Artillery Corpa. The Mutual Life Assurance Offices, LES INVALL, Actuary. 20, King-street, Cheapside, London, E.C. MPERIAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. 1, OLD BROAD-STREET, LONDON. Directors.

GEORGE WILLIAM COTTAM, Esq. Chairman
FREDERICK PATTISON, Esq. Deputy-Chairman , Esq. Deputy-Chairman.
George Hibbert, Esq.
Bamuel Hibbert, Esq.
Thomas Newman Hunt, Esq.
J. Gordon Murdoch, Esq.
William R. Robinson, Esq.
Martin T. Smith, Esq. M.P.
Newman Smith, Esq. omas G. Barelay, Esq. mes C. C. Bell, Esq. mes Brand, Esq. James Brand, 254. Charles Cave, Esq. George Henry Cutler, Esq. Henry Davidson, Esq. George Field, Esq. George Field, asq.

SECURITY.—The assured are protected by a quarantee fund of upwards of a million and a half sterling from the liabilities PROFITS.—Four-fifth, or Eighty per cent of the profits, are assigned to Policies every fifth year. The assured are entitled to participate after payment of one premium in payment of claims and the profits of the profits of the profits are CLAIMS.—The Company has disbursed in payment of claims and the profits of th and additions upwards of 1,800,0001
Proposals for insurances may be made at the Chief Office, as above; at the Franch Office, it, full Mall, London; or to any of the Agents throughout the Kingdom, SAMUEL INGALL, Actuary. SCOTTISH EQUITABLE LIFE ASSUR-

The TWENTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING of the Society was held at EDIN BURGH on 3rd May, 1859. of the Society was held at EDIN BURGH on 2rd May, 1889.—
J. WHITEFOORD MACKENSIE, Eeq. W.S. in the Chair.

From the Report by the Directors, which was unanimously approved of, the following particulars are extracted:—
During the year ending 1st March last, 461 Policies had been issued. The sums thereby search amounting to 200,8954, and the amounting the pear, the sums assured on their lives being $3,896, with Bonus Additions of 18,376, amounting ty september 07,293. These claims were fewer in number by 37, and less in amount by 21,0001, than the claims of the previous year. aims of the previous year.

The following was the position of the Society at 1st March AMOUNT of EXISTING ASSURANCES ... £5,272,367
ACCUMULATED FUND ... ... 1,194,657
ANNUAL REVENUE ... ... ... 187,244

The particulars of the Triennial Investigation into the Society's affairs for the Seventh Allocation of Profits were then detailed:—
First—The GROSS FUNDS, ASSETS, and PROPERTY of the Society amounted at 1st March, 1859, to 2,804,348. 9. Balances due
10. House and Furniture, No. 20, 32
Edinburgh
11. Premises, No. 26, Poultry, London, and Fur-3,000

IL PRESENT VALUE of CONTRIBUTIONS or FRE. MIUMS of ASSURANCE receivable by the Society, after deducting two and a half per cent for expense of collection. £2,804,349

Second—The WHOLE OBLIGATIONS of the SOCIETY amounted, at lat March, 1889, to 1,602,171, viz.;

I. Various sums outstanding, chieff Policies which had not been paid at that date. £36,781

II. Present value of sums contained in, and to become due under, the Society's Policies 2,566,936 Total obligations .. £2,603,717

By the law regulating the division of surplus, the Directors have properly the property of the law regulating the division of surplus, the Directors have thirds of the surplus then declared in vested additions to Politice of not less than five rear's standing; and a sum of not less than one third is appointed to be reserved at each investigation for contingent prospective additions, and for other purposes of the contingent prospective additions, and for other purposes of the one third is appointed to be reserved at each investment of contingent prospective additions, and for other purposes of the Society.

Two-birds of the aforesaid surplus of 800,632, amount to Two-birds of the aforesaid surplus of 800,632, amount to Two-birds of the aforesaid surplus of 800,712, of this sum was made a reacted addition at last March, 1839, at the ratio and the rested addition at last March, 1839, at the ratio of the parties entitled thereto. After providing for this vested and the two-birds of the surplus of the parties entitled thereto. After providing for this vested and the two-birds of the surplus of the parties of the surplus of the surplu

London Office-26, Poultry, E.C. ARCHD, T. RITCHIE, Agent.

Empowered by Act of Parliament, 3 Wm. IV. THE ECONOMIC LIFE ASSURANCE

6, NEW BRIDGE-STREET, BLACKFRIARS, LONDON. Established 1823. Directors

ROBERT BIDDULPH, Esq., Chairman WILLIAM ROUTH, Esq., Deputy-Chairm MILLIAM ROUTH, Eq., Deputy-Chairman.

Affred Kingsford Barber, Esq. Passeo Charles Glyn, Esq.
Henry Bernett, Esq. Esq. Passeo Charles Glyn, Esq.
Sir Alex, Duff Gordon, Bark.
Tit, M. Charles Morris, Esq.
Charles Morris, Esq.
Actuary—James John Downes, Esq. F. R.A.S.
Secretary—Alexander Macdonaid, Esq.

Audito John Howell, Esq. | John Gilliam Stilwell, Esq. Henry Roberts, Esq. | Henry Roberts, Esq. Richard Taylor, Esq. Physician—William Emmanuel Page, M.D. Oxon, N.D. II, Queen-street, May Fair.
Surgeon—Benjamin Travers, Esq. F.R.C.S., No. 9, Dover-street, Solicilor—Henry Young, Esq. No. 19, Essex-street, Strand.

ADVANTAGES—
Mutual Assurance.
The LOWEST rates of Premium on the MUTUAL SYSTEM.
THE WHOLE OF THE PROFITS divided every Fifth Year.
ASSETS amounting to
During its existence the Society has paid in Claims, and in reduction of Bonus Liability, nearly ... 3,00,000
Hererstonary Bonuses have been added to Policies to Policies in Force
The Latt Bonus, declared in 1850, which averaged 63, per Cent, on the Premiums paid, amounted to Policies in force
The Annual Income exceeds ... 385,000
In purmance of the INVARIABLE practice of this Society, in the event of the Death of the Life Assured widd, the Claim will be admitted, subject to the payment of such Premium Assurances effected prior to 3ist December, 1859, will participate in the Division in 1864.
Prospectuses and full particulars may be obtained on applica-ances effected prior to one and privision in 1864.

Polytision in 1864.

ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Secretary.

NORTH BRITISH N S U R A N C E C O M P A N Y, 64, PRINCES-STREET, EDINBURGH. 67, SACKVILLE-STREET, DUBLIN.

corporated by Royal Charter and Act of Parliament, 1809.

New Assurances during the past year £577,485 0 0 1 relations 1.5 relatio

PELICAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,
ESTABLISHED in 1797.
70, Lombard-street, City, and 57, Charing Cross, Westminster.
Directors.

Octavius E. Coope, Esq.
William Cotton, D.C.I. P.B.S.
William Cotton, D.C.I. P.B.S.
William Valler Fuller, Esq.
James A. Gordon, M. D. F.R.S.
Kirkman D. Hodgson, Esq. M.P. M. Wylli, jun. Esq. M.P.

This Company offers COMPLETE SECURITY MODERATE RATES of Premium with participation in Four-fifths or Eighty per cent. of the Profits.

LOW RATES without participation in Profits.

LOANS
in connexion with Life Assurance, on approved security, in sums of not less than 500 ANNS of 1981.

BONUS of 1861.

ALL POLICIES effected prior to the 1st of July, 1861, on the Bonus Scale of Premium, will participate in the next Division of Profits.

ROBERT TUCKER, Secretary and Actuary.

FISHER'S DRESSING CASES

FISHER'S PORTMANTEAUS. First-Class Workmanship, at Moderate Prices 188, STRAND, LONDON. Catalogues post fro

OSLERS' TABLE GLASS, CHANDELIERS. LUSTRES, do. 44, Uzford-street, London, conducted in connexion with birt. In the state of the st

DINNER, DESSERT, and TEA SERVICES A large variety of New and good Patterna. Best quality, opportor taste, and low prices. Also, every description of Cut Table Glass, equally advantageous. THOMAS PEARCE & SON, 23, Ludgate-hill, E.C., Established nearly a Century.

LAWNS.—In Use in the Royal Gardens.—

SAMUELSON'S ROYD'S PATENT LAWN MOWING and ROLLING MACHINE, the only one that will out wet as well as dry grass, is guaranteed efficient in use, easily handled, and readily kept in working order—doing the work of five or six English and the same of the same CREDERICK DENT, Chronometer, Water and Clock Maker to the Queen and Prince Consort, at Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, a Strand, and 34, Royal Exchange. No connexion with 33, Cockspur-street.

CHUBB'S LOCKS, with all the RECEPT CASH and DEED BOXES.—Complete Lists of Sizes and Transmay be had on application.

CHUBB 8 SO., 87, 81, Paul's Churchyard, London; 28, Lectron, Liverpool; 16, Market-street, Manchester; and Hency Fields, Wotershampton.

FURNITURE.—Where to Buy, What to Buy,
How to Buy.—COMPLETE FURNISHING GUIDE
WHO THE STREET STREET STREET STREET
Had post-free of P. 4 & BEYFUS, City Furniture Warehouse, 9, 10, 11, Finsburg-place, City-road. Goods delivered free to my part of the kingdom, and exchanged if not approved.

HANDSOME BRASS and IRON BED ANDSOME BRASS and IRON BED.

STEADS—HEAL & SON'S Show Rooms contains him assortment of Brass Bedsteads, suitable both for Home Usual Mountings and elegantly inpanned; Plain Iron Betteads Servants; every description of Wood Bedstead that is massub-tured, in Mahogany, Birch, Walnut Tree Woods, Polished Da and Japanned, all fatted with Bedding and Furniture compies, as well as every description of Bed-room Furniture.

HEAL & SON'S ILLUSTRATED CATA LOGUE, containing Designs and Prices of 100 Relations as well as of 150 different Articles of BED-ROOM FURNITURE sent free by post.—HEAL & SON, Bedstead, Redding, and be room Furniture Manufacturers, 196, Tottenham-court-read, T.

A LLEN'S PATENT PORTMANTEAUS
And TRAVELLING BAGS, with SQUARE OPENING.
Ladies' Dress Trunks, Dressing Bags, with Sliver Pitting
Despatch Boxes, Writing and Dressing Cases, and 80 offe
New Catalogue for 1859. By post for two stamps.

T.W. & T.ALLEN, Maurfacturers of Officer's Barrack Puniture and Military Outfitters (see separate Catalogue), 18 and 8, Strand.

HALL'S EAU de COLOGNE, an inimitable perfume, which for duliesey and durability of edour came be surpassed by any foreign article imported. In full-issed total practice, and the surpassed by any foreign article imported. In full-issed bottle process. July 18 H. HALL, 300, Holborn, two doors was dubancery-lane, W.C.

A LL THE YEAR ROUND, a Perfume for every Season, dedicated to Charles Dickens, Esq., by is kind permission. Made only by E. RIMMEL, Perfume, a Strand; 24, Cornhill; and Crystal Palace; and sold by all refumers and Chemists.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCE,
USED IN THE ROYAL LAUNDRY,
And pronounced by HER MAJESTY'S LAUNDRESS SOM

THE FINEST STARCH SHE EVER USED. Sold by all Chandlers, Grocers, &c. &c. WOTHERSPOON & CO. GLASGOW and LONDON.

THE SCOTCH TWEED and ANGOLA SUITS, at 47s., 50s., 60s., and 63s., made to order him materials all wool and thoroughly shrunk, by B. BENJANI, Merchant and Family Tailor, 7d. Regent-street, W. are better value than can be obtained at any other house in the Kingism. N. B. A perfect fit guaranteed.

ORNAMENTS for the MANTELPIECE, & Statusties, Groups, Vases, &c., in Parian, decorated Bigg and other China; Clocks (gilt, marble, and brouse); Alabaie, Bohemian Glass, first-class Bronses, Candelabra, and other As Manufactures, combining Novelty, Beauty, and High Art. Price

THOMAS PEARCE & SON, 33, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

THE EUROPEAN AND COLONIAL WINE COMPANY,

Bottles and packages included, and free to any London Railway Station. Terms, cash. WILLIAM REID TIPPING, Manager.

METCALFE, BINGLEY & CO.'S New Pat-If FIUALIFE, BINGLEY & CU. S. New Training to the Trushes, Penetrating the leached Hair Brushes, Improved Flesh and Cloth Brushes, and every description of Brush comb, and Perfumery for the Toilet. The Tooth Brushes sand here the training the training the Tenth and clean the nost effectually,—the hairs never come loose. M., B. & O. M. is a considerable of the Ostmes and Camphor, and Orris Boot Sewy old makers of the Ostmes and Camphor, and Orris Boot Sewy old makers of the Ostmes and Camphor, and Orris Boot Sewy old makers of the Ostmes and Camphor, and Orris Boot Sewy old makers of the Ostmes and Camphor, and Orris Boot Sewy old makers of the Ostmes and Camphor, and Orris Boot Sewy old makers and Camphor, and Orris Boot Sewy old makers and Sewy Boot Sewy old makers and Sewy Boot Sewy old makers and Sewy Boot Sewy old Sewy old Makers and Sewy Boot Sewy old Sewy ol

BUPTURES.—BY BOYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC.MAIN LEVER TRUSS is allowed by upwards of 300 Medical Gentlemen to be the most office of the control of the to nau street to the body, two inches belowing sent to the Manufacturer, MR. WHITE, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c. SwELLING of the LEGS, SPRAINS, &c. They are ported light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an other mary stocking. Price, from 7z. &d. to lac. each; postage dd. JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 228, Piccadilly, London

"E inspect WA M MAI

ELI SMITI added t the hig the Par Honou

to then

M

671

1, '59

Watch ment, al ment, a

RECENT SAFES, ad Prices

28, Loni. Horsky

O Buy, UIDES, gu; to be rehouses, se to any

BED.

n a large Use and
th Bruss leads for nanufacneed Deal complete,

ATA. TURE ad Bat ad, W.

EAUS

nitable

ne for , by his ner, a, all Per-

CH,

to be

OLA ANIX, better ngdon. i, de

IAL

INES dores.

S is

V.

LKINGTON & Co., PATENTEES of the ELECTRO-PLATE, MANUFACTURING SILVERBANTHS, BRONZISTS, &c., beg to intimate that they have added to their extensive Stock a large variety of New Designs in the highest Class of Art, which have recently obtained for them at the Paris Exhibition in the decoration of the Cross of the Legion of Hanser, as well as thraded, The Gouncil Medal was also awarded to them at Exhibition in 1850.

The Council of the C

psystantice of quanty.

E. REGENT-STREET, S.W., and 45, MOORGATE-STREET, (DNDON: 20, COLLEGE-GREEN, DUBLIN; and at their MANUFACTORY, NEWHALL-STREET, BIRMINGHAM—ALMSTRACT BOOK MORE ARRESTS AND DRAWIngs sent free by post. Re-plating and Gild-Emissies and Drawings sent free by post.

EXCELLENTE BIJOUTERIE COUR-"XCELLENTE BIJOUTERIE COUR-ATTE: Modeles speciaux à as Patrique."—WATHER-STUR À BROGDEN, having been bonoured with a First-class Relai at the Paris Universal Exhibition, accompanied by the significant desired of the Paris Universal Exhibition, accompanied by the impetion of their GOLD CHAINS and extensive assortment of INVELLERY, all made on the premises. WATHERSTON & BROGDEN, Goldamiths, Manufactory, 18, Begrietta-street, Covent-garden, W.C. Established a.D. 1798.

N.B. Assays made of Chains and Jewellery for 1s. each.

MAPPIN'S "SHILLING" RAZORS.
Warranted good by the Maketa.
MAPPIN'S ta. RAZORS Shave well for Three Years.
MAPPIN'S ta. RAZORS (suitable for Hard or Soft Beards)
Sam well for Ten Years.

MAPPIN'S DRESSING CASES AND

nd 68, KING WILLIAM-STREET, CITY, LONDON;

BEDSTEADS, BATHS, AND LAMPS.—
BOWLLIAM S. BURTON has SIX LARGE SHOWBOOMS devoted exclusively to the SEPARATE DISPLAY of Lamps, Baths, and Metallic Bedsteads. The stock of each is at see the largest, newest, and most varied ever submitted to the public, and marked at prices proportionate with those that have submitted to the statement of the control distinguished in this senter.

THE PERFECT SUBSTITUTE for SILVER. THE FEAR SOULD SUBJECT TO THE STATE LET.

- The REAL NICKEL SILVER, introduced more than 30 years up by WILLIAM S. BURNEY, when FLATED by the pairs up by WILLIAM S. BURNEY, which was subject to the pairs of the state of the st

	Fiddle or Old Silver Pattern			Bruns- wick Pattern			King's Pattern			Mili- tary Pattern
	4	8.	d	£.	8.	d.	£.	8.	d	£.		d
19 Table Forks	11	18	0	13	8	0	13	0	0	13	10	0
12 Table Spoons	11	18	0	18	.8	0	3	0	. 0	3	10	0
13 Dessert Forks	11	10	0	1	15	. 0	12	3	0	3	10	0
19 Dessert Spoons	1	10	0	1	15	0	3	3	. 0	3	10	0
19 Tea Spoons	0	18	0	1	- 4	0	1	10	0	1.1	18	0
6 Egg Spoons, gilt bowls	0	13	0	0	15	0	0	18	0	1	1	0
2 Sauce Ladles	0	7	0	0	- 8	6	0	10	6	0	16	0
1 Gravy Spoon	0	. 8	0	0	11	0	0	13	- 6	0	16	0
3 Salt Spoons, gilt bowls	0	4	0	0	5		0	. 6	0	0	7	6
1 Mustard Spoon, gilt bowl	0	3	0	0	3	6	0	3	0	0	3	9
1 Pair of Sugar Tongs	0	3	0	0	3	9	0	- 8	0	0	7	0
1 Pair of Fish Carvers	1	- 4	. 0	1	7	6	1	12	0	1	18	0
1 Butter Knife	0	3	6	0	- 5	9	0	7	0	0	- 8	0
1 Soup Ladle	0	13	0	0	17	- 6	1	0	0	1	1	0
1 Sugar Sifter	0	4	0	0	- 4	9	0	5	9	0	8	6
Total	11	14	6	14	11	3	17	14	9	21	4	9
	1

Any article to be had singly at the same prices. An oak chest to contain the above, and a relative number of knives, &c. &t. 18. Tea and coffee sets, cruet and liqueur frames, waters, candle-ticks, &c. at proportionate prices. All kinds of re-plating done by the patent process.

WILLIAM S. BURTON'S GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGERY CATALOGUE may be had gratis, and free by post. It contains upwards of 400 Illustrations of his illimited Stock of Electro and Sheffield Plate, Bickel Silver and Herkamia Metal Goods, Dish Covers and Hotsafer Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marbie Chimney-pieces, Kitchen Rages, Lamps, Gaszliers, Tes Ums and Kettles, Tea Trays, and Brass Bedistands, Bedding, Bed Hanging, &c., with Liest of Prices, and Plans of the 16 large Show Rooms at 20, Oxford-Street, W.; 1, 1a, 2, 8, Newman-street; and 4, 5, 8, 6, Perry's-Blace, London. Established 1890.

MORTLOCK'S, Oxford-street, near Hyde Park.

—JOHN MORTLOCK respectfully informs the Public that he has the largest veriety of CHIA A and EASTHENWARE in London, amongst which will be found Minton, Rese, &a, at the lowest price for cash.—280, Oxford-street, near Hyde Park.

MR. HOWARD, SURGEON-DENTIST, 52, PLEET-STHEET has introduced an ENTIRELY NEW DESCRIPTION of ARTIFUCIAL TESTH, fixed without sprines, wires, or ligatures. They so perfectly resemble the natural teeth as not to be distinguished from the originals by the closest observer; they will never change colour or decay, and will be found superior to any teeth ever before used. This method does not require the extraction of roots, or any painful operation, and will rection the control of the co

DR. H. JAMES, the retired Physician, dissumption, Ashma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and General Debility. The remedy was discovered by him when his only child, and the property of the proper GREY HAIR RESTORED to its NATURAL O'CHOUR.—Neuralein, Nervous Handache, Rheumatism, and SULUUR.—Neuralein, Nervous Handache, Rheumatism, and SULUUR.—Neuralein, Nervous Handache, Rheumatism, NETIU BRUSHES, 10s. and 15s. Comba, 3s. 6d. to 3us. Grey hair and baldness prevented by P. M. H. a Patent Preventive Brush, price 4s. and 5s. Offices, 32, Hasinghall-street, London. Where may be had, graths, or by post for four stames, the Illustrated pamphlet, 'Why Hair becomes Grey, and its Remedy.' Sold by all Chemiste and Perfumers of reputs.

HAIR DYES ABOLISHED.—NO MORE ACTION HOLD THE A

HARVEY'S FISH SAUCE.—Notice of Input of the particularly requested to observe that none is genuine but that which bears the back label with the name of WILLIAM LAZE'NY, as well as the front label signed "Elizabeth Lazenby." Elizabeth Lazenby, This notice will be engine a second label, printed in green and red, as follows:—'This notice will be affixed to Lazenby's Harvey's Sauce, prepared at the original warehouse, in addition to the well-known labels, which are protected against in addition to the well-known labels, which are protected against 1855. "-6, Edwards-street, Portman-square, Lendon.

NO MORE MEDICINE. —PERFECT DIGESTION, Sound Lungs, Strong Nerves, Refreshing Sleep, and Healthy Action of the Brain, restored to the most enfeetbed without medicine, inconvenience, or expense, by which saves 5fty times its cost in other remedies. Cure No. 51,016—"Fifty years' indescribable agony from dyspepsis, nervousness, asthma, cough, constipation, fishulency, sysams, nickness of the atomach and vomitings, have been removed by Du Barry's excellent food, siter all medicine had falled. Maris, Joly, Worthing, cough, indigestion, and general debility have been removed by Du Barry's excellent food. James Porter, Athol. street, Perth. Cure No. 4,806—"Sight years' dyspepsis, nervousness, debility, with ramps, passens, and nauses, have been effectually removed with remover of the control of the

DU BARRY'S DELICIOUS REVALENTA ARABICA POOD,

In Canisters, 1 B., 2s. 9d.; 2 B., 4s. 6d.; 5 B., 11s; 12 B., 22s. The 12 B. carriage free, on receipt of a Post-office order.

BARRY DU BARRY & Co., 77, Regent-street, London; Fortnum, Mason & Co., 193, Piccadilly; also at 49 and 6 Bishopsgate-street; at Abbis, 60, Grace-burch-street; 4, Chesp-side; 8t and 150, Vord-street; 50, Tottenham-court-road; and all Chemista and Grocers in Town and Country.

THORLEY'S FOOD FOR CATTLE.

THORLEY'S FOOD FOR CATTLE.

IMPORTANT TO EVERY MAN WHO

KREPS A HORNS, COW, SHEEP, OR PIG.

THORLEY'S FOOD FOR CATTLE, IN THE Majesty'S Stables; His Royal Highness the Prince Consort's Farm, Windsor; throughout the Royal Military Stables; His Royal Highness the Prince Consort's Farm, Windsor; throughout the Royal Military Stables; His Royal Highness the Prince Consort's Farm, Windsor; throughout the Royal Military Stables of Frusis, by order of His Kreellency Lieutenant-General Willissen, Head-Master of the Horse; patronised by Son Excellence le Minister & Agriculture et de Commerce, Paris; and approved by the leading Nobility, Clergy, and Agricultural the Stables of His Royal His And Consorting Royal R

For export the 56s. Cases only are shipped.

40 The Public are cautioned against being imposed upon by yorthies imitations.

POWLANDS' KALYDOR, an Oriental Botanical Preparation for Improving and Beautifying the Complexion and Skin.—This Royally-patronized and universally scienced Specific exerts the most scotting, oodling, and purifying
scienced specific exerts the most scotting, oodling, and purifying
coloration and other catastes I vehice, Tan, Pimples, Spots, Dira
coloration and other catastes I vehice, Tan, Pimples, Spots, Dira purity of complexion and a softness and classrass of skin. During the heat and dust of Summer, or the frest and bleak winds of winter, its virtues are universally acknowledged—Price 4a, 6d, and 5a, 6d, per bottle.

CAUTION.—The words "ROWLANDS" KALYDOR, "&c. are on the Wrapper, and their Signature, "A. ROWLAND & SUNS," in Red Ink, at foot.—Sold at 20, Hatton-garden, London; and by Chemists and Ferfumers.

REFRESHING BALM for the HAIR,—

Every one values and admires a beautiful head of hair; yet there are hundreds who desire to make their hair look well, keep it from turning grey and fulling off, but are unacquainted with the means to do so. O.LDRIDGE'S BALM OF COLUMBIA to the means to do so. O.LDRIDGE'S BALM OF COLUMBIA to the means to do so. O.LDRIDGE'S BALM OF COLUMBIA to the means to do so. O.LDRIDGE'S BALM OF COLUMBIA to the means to do so. O.LDRIDGE'S BALM OF COLUMBIA to the means to do so. O.LDRIDGE'S BALM OF COLUMBIA TO SERVICE AND THE SERVICE AN

A STHMA.—DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAPERS
They give instant relief, and a rapid cure of Asthma, Consumption, Coughs, and all Disorders of the Breath and Lungs. They have a most pleasant teste. Frice is, 144, 28, 94, and 112 per box. Sold by all Medicine Yenders.

EFFECTUAL CURE, without MEDICINE, of INDIGESTION (dyspensia), habitual constitution fintulency, asidity, palpitation of the heart, torpidity of the liver, bilious beachaches, nerrousness, biliousness, greatest debility, diarrheas, ouign, asthma, comumption, despondency, spleen, seed al. in stamps, and you will receive, free by post, a popular

Treatise, 4s pages:—RAL RECENERATION OF THE DIGESTIVE OHGANS.

Without Pills, purpatives, or medicines of any kind, and without expense, by a simple, pleasant, and infallible means, which saves fifty times its cost in other remedies; adapted to the general reader.

Mann Sephews, 30, Cornhill; and through all Boomeliers in Town and Country.

Seliers in Town and Country.

DO YOU WANT LUXURIANT HAIR, WHIRKERS, &s. ?—If so, use ROSALIE COUPELLE'S CRINURALLA, for the growth of Whiskers, Moustanline, &c. restoring Relations, &c. restoring to the strengthening Weak Hair, and cheeking Grayness. For the nursery, as promoting a fine healthy head of Hair, and averting Baldness in after-life, it has no equal. Through all Chemistry, price Ex., or sent, post free, on receipt of 24 penny stamps, by Miss Coupellé, or, Casalie-st, Oxford-st, London.—" I have ordered its use in hundreds of came with success. Dr. Walsh.—" the distribution of the control of the coupels of the control of the coupels of the control of the country of the coupels of the control of the coupels of the control of the coupels of the control of the coupels of the coupels continues her vivid, useful and interesting delineatious of character from the handwriting of individuals, in a style never before attempted in England. Ferrassus desirous of Anowing a specimen of writing, stating sex and ags, with 14 penup postage stamps, to Marie Coupellé, 60, Castle-st., Navman-st., London, W., and they will receive per return a full detail of the gifts, defects, talents, tastes, affections, 4c., of the writer, with many other things calculated to be useful through life—From F. M. "I consider your skill surprising." C. 2. "Your decide of my character rous estime is a true one."—W. N. "Your akteto of my character rous sext me is a true one."—W. N. "You have described him very accurately."

Makon.

K NOW THYSELF.—MARIE COUPELLÉ.

COCKLE'S ANTIBILIOUS PILLS for Indi-gestion, Bilious, Liver, and #8tomseh Complaints. Prepared only by Jawas Cockle, Surgeon, 18, New Ormondstreet; and to be had of all Medicine Venders, in boxes, 24 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 4d. and 11s.

SEE YOURSELF AS OTHERS SEE YOU.

The celebrated Frunch Chairplegist gives her useful Sketches of the character and epablilities of individuals from an examination of the handwriting. All persons desirous of knowing their own peculiar characteristics or these of any relatives or friends, must send a specimen of their writing, stating the sex and age, and inclosing 12 penny peculiar to their writing, stating the sex and age, and inclosing 12 penny peculiar states, affaction in the property of the peculiar o DINNEFORD'S PURE FLUID MAGNESIA has been for many years anotioned by the most eminent of the Medical Profession as an excellent remedy for Addity, Hearthurn, Headache, Gout, and Indigastion. As a mild aperical it is admirably adapted for delicate females, particularly during premancy; and it prevents the food of infants from turning sour during digestion. Combined with the ACIDULATED LEMON highly agreeable and efficience. Frapared by Dissuscent & Co. Dispensing Chemists, (and general Agents for the improved iteration by all respectable Chemists throughout the Empire.

PUPTURES.—All sufferers from this complaint are invited to communicate with Dr. THOMSON, as he can confidently guarantee them railed in every case. His calebrated Remedy has been successful in earling hundreds of cases, and is applicable to every variety of single or double kupture, however bad or long standing, in male or female, of any age, cassing no incorrenience in its use, and doing away with any further necessity for wearing transes, &c. Beat post free on receipt of the y post-office order or stamps, by Dr. Rainpo Rusptures, with testimonials, will be sent post free on receipt of one penny stamp.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT. For all Skin Discases, however inveterate, these medicines are a sovereign remedy. While the 0 interest passes through the pores of the skin, as water saturates the soil, or as alt penetrates meat, the Fills act upon the blood, which they correct and purify. The whole physical machinery is thus rendered healthy, requiar, and riporous. The cure thus effected is not partial and temporary, the disease is entirely and for ever driven from the system, and the patient need not be apprehensive of its return. As these medicines have no violent action they do not necessitize any interespiction of the ordinary avocations. Directions for the use of these noble medicaments are affined to each pot and box.